Cut in Water Rates Effective June 1

BILL IN APPROVAL OF COUNCIL'S ACT

Reduction in City Department Appropriations May Be Made Later, Says Alderman Bachman.

Subcommittees Appointed To Begin Immediate Study and Search for Avenues of Economy.

Mayor Walter A. Sims Saturday afternoon approved the water rate reduction, voted by council Monday, to go into effect June 1, dashing all hopes of the finance committee that the might veto the reduction in view of the school board ultimatum that council must provide at least $334,000 more money or the schools will not open in September.

The subcommittee of the finance committee, designated to confer with a school board subcommittee after the finance committee had found that sacrificing all public improvements for the year would salvage only $300,000 of unspent money, found Saturday that only $34,000 could be cut from the school budget. This would meet the school emergency, but still would leave the city $100,000 short as a result of the water reduction.

The subcommittees were to meet again Monday morning to make further study of both school and city budgets in an effort to find further avenues of economy.

Alderman J. R. Bachman, council finance committee chairman, said that the other city department appropriations—declared in January to be the minimum on which the departments could operate safely—might have to submit to further shrinkage for the last six months of the year.

"It is no longer a question of what we should do for the best interests of Atlanta," he declared after the meeting, "it is a question of what we must do to keep going."

The alderman expressed the opinion that, with water rates cut, the only solution would be a tax increase effective this year.

He said that he had been "besieged"

Atlanta To Join
Nation in Paying Mothers Tribute

Roses and Tender Sentiments
Bespeak Love and Adoration for All Mothers.

BY STEWART F. GELDERS.
A red flower is worn for love of the living, a white one to reverence memory of the dead during America's most tender festival, "Mother's Day," today.

In the fragrance of delicate blossoms, Americans are to symbolize today the adoration which ancestors of the race, in the deserts of Asia 50 centuries ago, expressed in the wild dances and incantations of their worship of Cybele, "mother of all the gods and men."

In soft syllables of affection, voiced or written, Americans today are to tell the love of mother which the votaries of pagan Rome told during the Ides of March, in the rites of the mother-goddess Hilaria, centuries before the Christ was born.

In every way that the exigencies of time and condition permit, American sons and daughters today will yield to the heart tug that was recognized even by the harsh apprentice laws of medieval England, which permitted boys and girls to go "A-Mothering" back to the home nest on the fourth Sunday of Lent.

America's formal observance of a day in devotion to motherhood had its inception in 1908, when Anna Jarvis arranged a "Mother's Day" in the Sunday schools of Philadelphia.

Congress Sets Day Aside.
The hard practical fact that America boasts was laid open by the tender sentiment. Other communities, other commonwealths, took up its observance, until in May, 1914, the congress of the United States

ONE DEAD, 1 DYING
AS CHOPPERS END
DUEL WITH AXES

Groton, Mass., May 10.—As a result of a duel with axes today in a Groton wood lot Donat Fontaine, 35, of Lowell, is dead and his opponent, Joseph Gagnon, 60, also of Lowell, is not expected to live. Gagnon is in a Lowell hospital.

The men were chopping wood at some distance from others of a chopping gang. When Frank DeFoe, the foreman, went to inspect their work, he found Fontaine dead from many deep gashes and Gagnon about to lose consciousness from wounds almost as severe. Gagnon was too weak from loss of blood to make any statement. Both men's axes were bloodstained. None of the other choppers knew what started the fight.

FAMOUS PORTICO

Harding "Front Porch" to Have Its Duplicate on South Facade of Executive Mansion.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
Washington, May 10.—Under President Coolidge's plan of remaining at the white house through the summer, the famous south portico of the executive mansion will serve as the counterpart of the Marion front porch in the Harding campaign four years ago. Many of the scenes which took place in front of the modest Harding home in Marion, will be reenacted on the broad lawn spreading out before the beautiful south portico of the white house. Dozens of delegations will make pilgrimages here to greet the candidate. Republican clubs in uniform, headed by bands, veterans' organizations, women's delegations, foreign born voters, and all varieties of citizen groups may be expected to take advantage of the low excursion rates which the railroads will offer to accommodate those who want to visit the capital during the presidential campaign.

Wilson Felt Differently.
Such a campaign has not been conducted at the white house in recent times. Roosevelt and Taft did their campaigning for reelection on speaking tours. Woodrow Wilson went to Shadow Lawn, near Asbury Park, N. J., during the 1916 campaign. He not only wanted to escape the heat of Washington summers, but he felt that the white house, as the official residence of the president of the United States, should not be used as a political campaign headquarters.

President Coolidge will make several important out-of-town addresses during his campaign. But except for these, he will remain comfortably settled here, keeping up with his routine work, and attending to political matters at the same time.

Keep Eye on Publicity Value.
As soon as the Cleveland convention is over, Coolidge will call in his campaign manager, William M. Butler, and a number of party leaders.

Von Moltke Move
May Start Riot
In German Town

Halle Is Armed Camp as Police Prepare To Suppress Trouble.

Halle, Germany, May 10.—Halle is an armed camp as thousands of nationalists pour into the city for a great nationalist demonstration Sunday before the statue of General von Moltke.

Monarchists, extreme nationalists and Fascists will march in a huge parade. Extraordinary precautions have been taken by the police.

The occasion is dedication of the von Moltke monument, but the presence of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, General Ludendorff and other military leaders who led the imperial armies in search of "der Tag" in 1914, lent a martial, monarchistic air to the gathering.

Police precautions were directed principally against communists, who are extremely disgruntled because the government granted permission for the nationalist demonstration after prohibiting a workers' parade on May day.

DANIEL BROTHERS TO ERECT BUILDING
TO COST $500,000

With 7,000 Square Feet On Ground Floor Building Will Be One of Most Modern in Southeast.

BUSINESS TO CONTINUE IN TEMPORARY STORE

Top Floors of New Building Will Be Available For Office Space or Other Commercial Use.

At a cost estimated at approximately $500,000, Daniel Brothers company, one of Atlanta's leading retail concerns in men's clothing and furnishings, will erect a new twelve to fifteen-story building on the site of the present store at 45-49 Peachtree street, it was announced Saturday.

The new store, which will occupy a ground floor space of 7,000 square feet, will be one of the most modern commercial structures in the southeast, it was stated, and, while a large part will be occupied by the company itself, part will probably be available for office space or other commercial use.

Daniel Brothers company will occupy the lower four floors with its present line of men's furnishings and outfittings, including the famous Hart Schaffner & Marx line of clothing, for which the concern is an Atlanta agent. Other floors will be occupied by departments which will be added to the business, including such as women's wear department, hair dressing parlors, restaurant and others. Just how many of these departments there will be has not yet been decided.

To Continue Business.
During the tearing down of the present building and erection of the new structure, the business will be conducted in temporary quarters convenient to the permanent location and suitably arranged for the service of the many thousands of customers of the concern.

"Plans for the new home were made necessary by two conditions," said L. J. Daniel, president of the company, in making the announcement. "First of all there was the tremendous growth in our business, which made larger and more modern quarters absolutely essential. Secondly, there is the rapid growth of the city of Atlanta."

NEW AGREEMENT ON ANTI-JAP BILL

Exclusion Provision Becomes Effective July 1, 1924, Under New Decision of Conferees.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, May 10.—Faced by the apparently unalterable opposition of the house to any delay in operation of the Japanese exclusion provisions of the immigration bill, conferees upon the measure today again agreed to make the exclusion section effective July 1, 1924.

The agreement has the effect of eliminating completely the proposal of President Coolidge that this government endeavor to negotiate the abrogation of the gentlemen's agreement prior to the effective date of exclusion.

As approved by the conference committee, the section prohibiting admission of "aliens ineligible to citizenship" stands as it came from the house. The senate version would have the section applicable upon enactment of the bill.

The report of the conferees—the third to which they have affixed their signatures since the committee received the house and senate bills—probably will be laid before the house Monday. It will lie over a day under the rules then will come up for adoption. Afterward it will go to the senate.

There was no indication from the white house today that the president would take any further steps to influence the senate and house conferees. Neither would white house officials forecast whether the bill would be approved by President Coolidge when finally submitted to him.

Easy Sailing!

TAX BILL PASSES
SENATE, CARRYING DEMOCRAT RATES

Many Regular Republicans Join Democrats and Insurgents on Final Vote, 69 to 15.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.
Washington, May 10.—The tax bill, with all the important rate schedules of the Mellon plan substituted in their stead, has passed the senate and been sent to conference with the house.

The first effects of tax reduction, under provisions of the bill, would be a flat cut of 25 per cent in income taxes payable in 1924. In cases where the entire tax was paid in March, the payer would be entitled to a 25 per cent refund.

The vote was 69 to 15. The "diehards" who voted against it were republicans, but there was little semblance of a party vote, for 30 republicans, including the insurgent faction, joined with the democrats in the bill's passage.

Republicans who opposed the bill were Senators Ball, Delaware; Cameron, Arizona; Colt, Rhode Island; Cummins, Iowa; Edge, New Jersey; Fess, Ohio; Lodge, Massachusetts; McKinley, Illinois; Moses, New Hampshire; Norbeck, South Dakota; Pepper, Pennsylvania; Phipps, Colorado; Reed, Pennsylvania; Wadsworth, New York, and Watson, Indiana.

The bill is expected to reduce the nation's tax levy by nearly $500,000,000. A determined fight will be made by regular republicans to change the bill when it goes into conference with a committee of the house next week. The measure now bears

SIMS TO DECIDE
BEFORE JUNE 1

Mayor Walter A. Sims stated Saturday that he would announce definitely before June 1 whether he will stand for reelection as mayor this Monday. It will lie over a day under the rules then will come up for adoption. Afterward it will go to the senate.

The date of the primary is to be fixed at a meeting of the city democratic executive committee at noon, May 21, and the mayor indicated that he would not make his plans known until after the date of the primary is settled.

Death Rides City's Streets
WHILE 8 DEATHS SHOCK FRANCE, ATLANTA HAS 27
Killing With Ruthless Hand

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.
Death lurks on every street corner in Atlanta. There is a reign of terror in this city, an unloosed ghastliness even more ghastly than an epidemic. For the grim reaper strikes without warning, with a suddenness and ruthlessness and a fatal precision that is appalling. He attacks in broad daylight and like a thief in the night, in the early hours of morning and at high noon. Young children are mangled to death in sight of their parents, the aged are battered down and stricken with crushing force even before they have a chance to realize that danger is near.

If there were a wild beast loosed from the jungle, roaming around in the residential districts of Atlanta, citizens would rally to arms and not rest until the monster had been slain or chased back to its lair. There would be no waiting until the monster had claimed its first victim. Action would be immediate, spontaneous and effective. If an epidemic threatened this town like a scourge of God and had begun to cast its gloom and terror over the community by snatching away 27 lives and mauling 500 citizens with a few short weeks, there would be a rising flood of indignation not to be abated until the authorities had thrown a cordon sanitaire around the affected districts and every effort had been made to check the spread of the curse.

Monster Ramps Unchecked.
A more dreadful monster than an epidemic, a more bloodthirsty apparition than a mere creature from the jungles is loosed on the streets now. It is roaming unchecked. In the morning he is seen at work with his ghastly execution in West End, in the evening he is reported killing, mutilating and crushing life at the other end of the city.

It is the grim figure of automobile death. The silent footpadding specter that strikes with tigerish ferocity, with cruel impartiality and with merciless torture.

Young lives are cut off before they have fairly begun to blossom. Middle aged people are hurled into eternity without warning of their fate. The ancient days are robbed of the serenity of the quiet and peacefulness of eventide.

Death is loosened on the streets. Death hies behind your door. He

KENTUCKY VOTES

Incomplete Returns Show 1,343 of 2,282 Delegates Instructed for Georgian at Convention.

Louisville, Ky., May 10.—Kentucky's delegation of 26 will be sent to the democratic national convention instructed for William G. McAdoo, returns from 103 of the state's 120 counties in today's county conventions indicated tonight.

Delegates to the state convention in Lexington, Wednesday, were selected at today's meetings and the returns showed 1,343 delegates instructed for McAdoo.

The maximum number of delegates to the state meeting is 2,282. Other groups were. Senator Oscar Underwood, 134; uninstructed, 503; James M. Cox, 3; Senator A. O. Stanley, 36; contested, 162.

Senator Stanley was given the delegation from his home county, Henderson. Davies county instructed for McAdoo and endorsed Urey Woodson, veteran publisher, over his protest, for membership in the democratic national committee, a post he formerly had held for 20 years.

Arrest Is Expected Momentarily in Pursuit of Slayer of Hugh L. McKee—Witnesses To Death of Former Postmaster Are Aiding Police in Their Search.

Spurred by the sensational death of Hugh L. McKee, prominent retired business man and former Atlanta postmaster, under the wheels of a speeding automobile at Brookwood station Friday night, Acting Chief of Police E. L. Jett Saturday night launched what he termed "a finish fight to put an end to automobile killings."

The police committee, in special session Saturday night, also joined in the growing storm of discontent against the ever increasing traffic menace, voicing disapproval of present traffic department methods and serving notice that unless drastic measures to effect a cure are taken at once, sweeping changes will be made in the personnel of the department.

Meanwhile detectives were working overtime on the mysterious slaying of Mr. McKee, whose mangled and dying body was left lying in the center of Peachtree road while a big sedan which struck him flashed away into the darkness with a man and a woman on the front seat and a second man sitting on the back seat.

Absolute silence concerning clues to the identity of occupants of the death sedan was maintained all Saturday by investigators, but it became known that witnesses who say they the machine were working with the detectives. An arrest was expected momentarily.

1 REPORTED DYING,
3 SLIGHTLY HURT
IN AUTO CRASHES

Victor Morgan at Death's Door From Collision Near Fairburn Early Saturday Night.

With police launching what they termed "the most merciless drive on speeders and traffic violators ever known to the city of Atlanta," one man Saturday night was reported to be dying and three others were slightly hurt as the result of auto crashes.

Victor P. Morgan, 419 East Georgia avenue, is near death at the Davis-Fischer hospital following a crash near Fairburn, Ga., early Saturday night. He suffered severe bruises and lacerations, and it is feared he also was injured internally.

Morgan's light touring car crashed into the rear of a sedan owned by Loy Estes, which was parked in front of Estes' home on the outskirts of Fairburn. It is thought Morgan temporarily lost control of his car when he took one hand from the steering wheel to light a cigarette. An unlighted cigarette was found near his body, and he still held a match in his hand when Estes reached him.

Elgin Collins and Estes also narrowly escaped injury. Estes was repairing the engine when Morgan's car rammed his machine. Collins had just stepped from the rear of Estes' car, where he had been standing until a minute before the accident. He undoubtedly would have been crushed if he had not stepped aside, as he would have been pinned between the two machines.

Morgan's Mother Collapses.
After striking Estes' car, the auto driven by Morgan turned over several times, Estes reported. Morgan was taken to Estes' house, where physicians dressed his wounds. He later was removed to Atlanta in the Barclay & Brandon ambulance.

The injured man's wife and his mother, Mrs. Cornelia Cannon, were notified, and started for Fairburn a short time after the accident. As the party reached East Point, however, Mrs. Cannon collapsed, and she was unable to complete the trip with Mrs. Morgan.

Will Brown, 102 Thurmond street, was seriously injured, and lives of pedestrians and customers and employees of a barber shop at Marietta and Foundry streets endangered when a speeding machine crashed into the car driven by Brown at that intersection. The impact of the collision threw both machines across the

Woman's Missionary Union To Open Sessions Wednesday

All Arrangements Made by Atlanta Committees To Entertain Delegates. 1,500 Visitors Expected.

The Woman's Missionary union of the Southern Baptist convention will hold its annual convention at the Baptist Tabernacle Wednesday and Thursday, Mrs. W. A. Hartman, general chairman of the program committee, announces that all arrangements have been completed and that the convention is an assured success. The woman's convention will be attended by 29 delegates and one vice president from each of 18 states, representing 22,000 missionary societies with a membership of approximately a half million members.

The union is an auxiliary of the Baptist convention, which is composed entirely of men. At the beginning of the $75,000,000 campaign five years ago, the union agreed to raise one-fifth of that amount, or $15,000,000. The past four years and nine months have shown a total of more than $13,000,000 collected with excellent prospects of having the balance in hand within the next few months.

Conducts School.

The organization is conducting a school in Louisville known as the Woman's Missionary Union Training school. A $40,000 fund, known as the "Margaret fund," is maintained to enable foreign missionaries to educate their children. This sum is supplemented each year with large gifts from various sources which guarantee boarding scholarships of $200 each to sons and daughters above 15 years of age of missionaries who live outside the United States.

Eighteen committees have been appointed to handle convention crowds. Fully 1,500 people are expected.

Mrs. J. Lawrence, secretary of the third district of the W. M. U., is chairman of the train committee which will welcome the delegates as they arrive in Atlanta. Mrs. Lawrence is assisted in this committee by Mrs. M. O. Mitchell, secretary of the first district; Mrs. Ed. White, of the second district; Mrs. L. O. Freeman, of the fourth district; Mrs. J. W. Smith, of the fifth district; and Mrs. P. A. Williams, of the sixth district.

Mrs. J. W. Autry, chairman of the automobile committee, assisted by Mrs. Joe S. Key and Mrs. W. F. Wesley, has obtained more than 400 automobiles. Each car will be furnished with a banner marked "Welcome Baptists." Representatives will be at the Union station, the Terminal and the Peachtree station ready to convey delegates to their hotels.

Will Register Delegates.

Mrs. Cora Brown, chairman of the registration committee, and Mrs. M. D. Harwell, co-chairman, will be at the Baptist tabernacle Tuesday and Wednesday to register delegates and assign them stopping places while in the city.

Secretaries and field workers council of the W. M. U. will hold an all-day session Monday at the Woman's club to make final arrangements.

Mrs. Laura Lee Patrick, treasurer

MISS BLANCHE WHITE,
Field Worker of W. M. U.

of the W. M. U. of Georgia, and Mrs. Frank Bursey, of Waynesville, chairman of the "Margaret fund," will entertain members of a committee composed of one from each of the eighteen states represented at a luncheon at 1 o'clock Wednesday at the Piedmont hotel, which will be headquarters for the convention.

General officers of the union are Mrs. W. C. James, president; Miss Kathleen Mallory, corresponding secretary; Miss Juliette Mather, young people's secretary and college correspondent; Mrs. W. C. Lowndes, treasurer; Mrs. H. M. Wharton, recording secretary; Mrs. Sumter Lee, Jr., assistant recording secretary, and Miss Eliza S. Broadus, vice president emerita.

APATHY MARKS FRENCH ELECTION

Paris, May 10.—The utter indifference of the man in the street as to the result of tomorrow's election, at which the composition of the chamber of deputies for the next four years will be decided, was the outstanding feature of the final hours of the campaign of the American observer tonight.

Aside from two airplanes which scattered tracts and ballots from the sky in behalf of the two war aviator candidates—on opposing tickets—the day passed with a singular absence of election stunts and no torchlight parades were planned for tonight.

Is Also Fete Day.

True, the city was belaguered with the tri-color and gay bunting, but it was a mere coincidence and the decorations were in evidence because the national fete of Joan of Arc will be held tomorrow. A few streamers over the saloons in which candidates had established campaign headquarters and the ever-present bill boards plastered with declamatory or defamatory posters and cartoons were the only visible signs that tomorrow would be anything but a good day to go fishing on the Seine.

The polls open at 8 a. m., and close at 6 p. m. The voters may bring their own ballots, accept them from party workers outside polling places or get them within.

Many Tricky Ballots.

Many ingenious tricks have been tried throughout the country to hand voters ballots containing the names of the first three or four candidates of their chosen list followed by names from a list diametrically opposed. Thus the national bloc in the first Paris district today charged that some royalists were trying to slip over one of their own candidates by that practice. The chagrin of any Simpsure republican who finds that he has unwittingly voted, through this means, for a candidate championing the restoration of the monarchy can easily be imagined.

The general belief of well-informed observers is that both extremes—the royalists and communists—will make distinct gains, perhaps even doubling the former's 17 and the latter's 13 seats in the outgoing chamber and changes in the intermediate groups may possibly leave M. Poincare without a homogenous majority and as a result for him in the 1919 election.

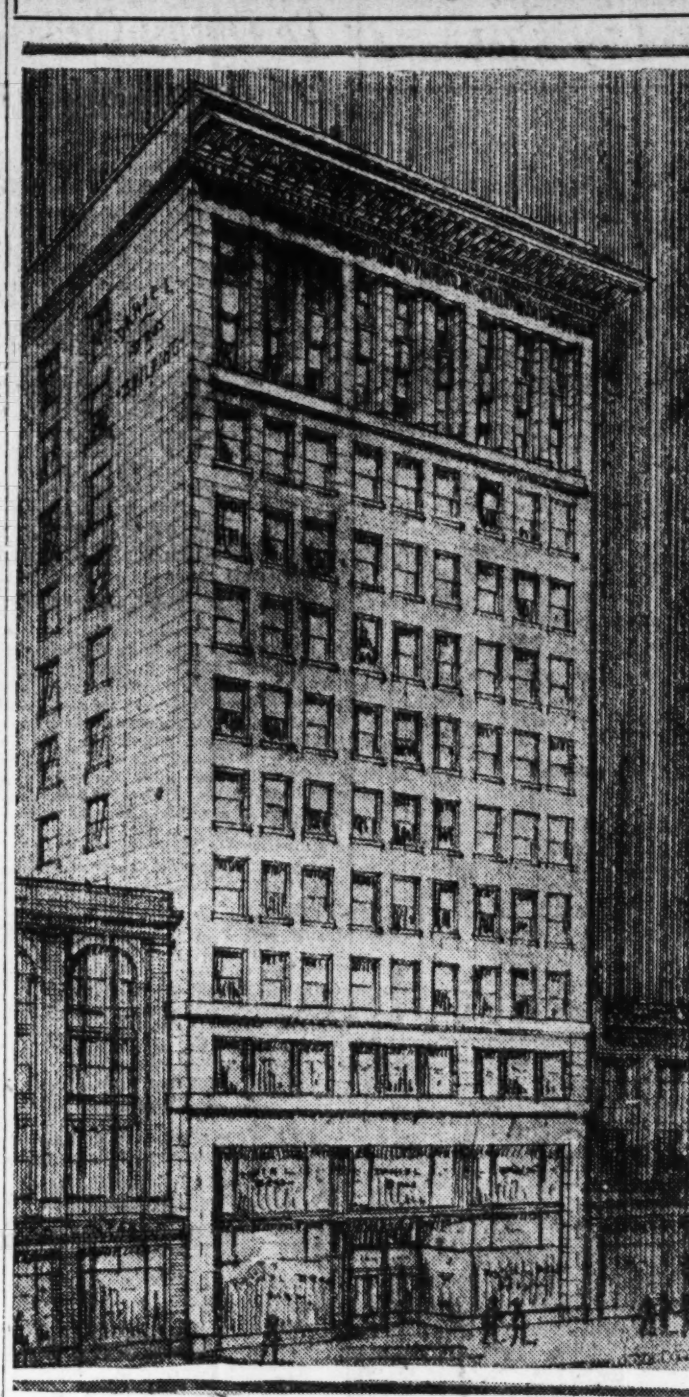

No Issues Affect U. S.

In this case France would be politically akin to Great Britain and Germany wherein neither the house of commons nor the reichstag has any party a sufficient majority for control.

Aside from in the third district of Paris, where former Premier Poincare's left bloc candidates have come out in favor of a general cancellation of the allied war debts, no issues directly or indirectly affecting the United States are anywhere up for consideration.

It is generally believed that the heads of most of the prominent tickets and the best known members of the outgoing chamber will be returned by operation of the proportional representation principle.

lanta, which demands from her business men the finest and best equipment. We plan to make the new building one of the finest in the country for its purpose and, in doing so we do not feel that we are planning anything but what is due to a city of the rapid growth and importance of Atlanta.

The Daniel company was founded on April 10, 1886, by the late W. C. Daniel and his son, L. J. Daniel, the present president. At that time it occupied a small store on north Pryor street in the Kimball house block. Later the business was moved to quarters in the old Peters building on Whitehall, on the site now occupied by the viaduct. When that building was torn down for the building of the viaduct, the business was moved into two branch stores on Decatur street and Whitehall street. This was in 1902 and, after alterations were complete, the company moved back into the Peters building.

One of Landmarks.

Two years later, in 1904, the business was moved into a portion of the building now occupied at 45 Peachtree street. The other part of the building, No. 49, was then occupied by a penny arcade and, one year later, Daniel Brothers bought out this concern, tore down the interior walls and took over the entire floor of the building.

The company was incorporated in 1903. It is one of the landmarks of Atlanta in retail circles and is prominently numbered among the list of great merchandising houses which have made the city one of the most famous business centers in the nation. Present officers of the company are L. J. Daniel, president; Charles Daniel, vice president; Miss Minnie Daniel, vice president; A. L. Zachary, general manager and secretary; L. C. Daniel, advertising manager; Charles B. Daniel, sales manager, and Sime B. Einstein, clothing manager.

and make arrangements for receiving delegations at the which. These will be distributed on a prearranged schedule designed to afford the maximum amount of publicity for the speeches which the president will make to these visitors. Radio broadcasting apparatus will be set up for some of the more important occasions so that the president's words can be carried to all parts of the country.

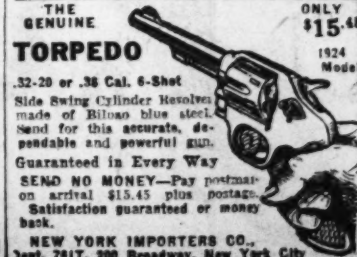

Coolidge regards the radio as an ideal medium for reaching large masses. His voice carries well through the broadcasting apparatus and the lack of oratorical tricks and gesture does not matter. Coolidge never cultivated the popular campaign style of speaking and he always has suffered from his inability to get the value out of his speeches.

METHODISTS RAP CIGARETTE USE

Springfield, Mass., May 10.—The Methodist Episcopal general conference passed its first milestone today. By voting to omit the "roll of the conference" at future sessions, the delegates put a stop to the introduction of new business for immediate consideration. The conference will now devote itself to acting upon the various memorials and resolutions reported by the sixteen standing committees.

Prohibition, immigration, lynching and cigarette smoking were among the many matters discussed this morning. The delegates adopted the following resolutions:

For the admission of all peoples to this country and to citizenship regardless of race, color or nationality. For a committee to present to congress the conference's attitude toward the Dyer anti-lynching bill (the preamble declared lynching to be against democracy and the constitution).

Ask Defeat of Beer Bills.

For the defeat of the beer bills now before congress, the deportation of aliens twice convicted for prohibition or narcotic law violations, a civil service status for prohibition officers and the creation of a federal enforcement bureau.

For a message of greeting and sympathy to the widow of President Harding; for further cooperation with the Near East relief; and for preservation of the rights of Pueblo Indians to their hereditary lands in New Mexico.

The conference referred to a committee a resolution calling for the appointment of a special committee to protest to the platform framers of each major party against the insertion of "wet" planks in either platform.

Would Ban Cigarettes.

Also to a committee went a request for legislation from every state against the sale and use of cigarettes or tobacco; a resolution urging church leaders and boards to encourage church attendance by children went to the board of Sunday schools for consideration and report.

The national council of the Congregational church sent its greetings by its executive secretary and the Holy Synod of Russia in a cablegram gave its fraternal greetings and expressed thanks for the services of the Methodist church in that country.

This afternoon most of the delegates attended the Methodist men's convention which is holding meetings today and tomorrow in conjunction with the general conference.

by citizens from every section of the city protesting against the proposed abandonment of public improvements.

The city stockade removal, proposed for abandonment, had been pledged when the new Girls' High school site, opposite the present stockade, was adopted.

McDonough road bridge now is unsafe for vehicular traffic, according to city engineers, and is inadequate for the service it is intended to render, he said. That is another project to go by the board.

The Peters street widening, new contagious diseases hospital to accommodate patients now housed in shanties formerly occupied by negroes, storm water sewers, water mains, and street and sewer improvements in various sections of town are also slated for abandonment. It is stated.

Is $200,000 Lower.

The new water rate, approved by the mayor Saturday, is estimated by the manager of waterworks to be in the aggregate about $200,000 lower than the one now in effect. The present rate, it is estimated, would have produced about $100,000 more during the year than it was intended to produce. The reduction will produce $100,000 less than the present rate was intended to produce. The difference must be absorbed through repealing appropriations in the sum of $100,000 which were made in January. This reduction is in addition to the reduction of $300,000 declared imperative in order to keep schools open.

Man Disappears From Savannah; Foul Play Feared

True Economy in Piano Buying

NEVER judge piano economy by the first cost of the instrument. The true measure of economy is the degree of satisfaction the instrument brings you over a long period of years.

A Cable-made Piano or Inner-Player is not the lowest priced instrument you can buy—because of the long period of faithful service and high degree of satisfaction it gives, it is by far the most economical.

You are invited to inspect our large showing of Grands, Uprights and Inner-Players. We have instruments to meet every need.

Editor Tri-Weekly Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

The little, four agate line ad I carried in your Tri-Weekly two weeks ago, at the small cost of $3.00 for three editions, brought me more money than any ad I have ever carried in advertising mediums before and I wanted to tell you about it. This ad brought me $120.00 worth of orders from the state of Tennessee. I want to say that, having had several years experience in advertising my leghorns, I am sure that there is no better newspaper in the South for poultry advertising than The Tri-Weekly Constitution.

Yours truly,

Great Florida Development Plan Launched by Seaboard

THE SEABOARD'S NEW FLORIDA LINES
The heavy black line in the center marked "Seaboard Air Line Railroad" indicates the new extension of that system from Coleman to West Palm Beach. Coleman is on the direct main line of the Seaboard System from St. Petersburg and Tampa to Jacksonville. This new north and south extension becomes a part of the main line to Richmond, giving the Seaboard the shortest line east through Richmond. The Seaboard already has a line from Tampa to Peace Valley on the new extension, with the exception of a few miles to be built from Valrico to Welcoming Junction.

Announcement was made during the past week of completion of all financial arrangements for construction of new links of the Seaboard Air Line railroad system in Florida that will give for the first time direct rail-road connection across south Florida from Tampa to West Palm Beach, at the same time giving the Seaboard a line of its own from West Palm Beach to the east.

This will not only give the Seaboard the short line from Richmond to West Palm Beach, but it establishes a direct line from St. Petersburg, Clearwater and Tampa to the east coast of Florida.

This is the most important railroad development that has taken place in the south for several years, and concerning it S. Davies Warfield, president of the Seaboard Air Line railroad, makes the following statement:

"The Florida Western and Northern railroad will run from Coleman, Fla., on the main line of the Seaboard, south and east to West Palm Beach, approximately 204 miles. It will cross the Tampa-Nalac line of the Seaboard Air Line railway at West Lake Wales. The new line, which will be 96 per cent straight, with maximum curvature of 2 degrees and maximum grade of 3-10 of 1 per cent, will be laid with 100-pound rail. Including branches and cutoffs, the Florida Western and Northern will build approximately 238 miles of railroad, which, it is expected, will be completed and in operation during December, 1924. This line will serve three purposes:

"It will form an integral extension of the main line of the Seaboard Air Line system to West Palm Beach, on the east coast of Florida, and will constitute a short line from Richmond to West Palm Beach (954 miles as compared with 970 miles for competing line), making this line of prime strategic importance from the standpoint of both freight and passenger traffic.

"In connection with the Tampa and Nalac line, the Florida Western and Northern will form a route across the southern portion of the peninsula of Florida and will be the only railroad connecting the east and west coasts through the southern part of the peninsula. At present the only feasible road by which the peninsula's east coast points and west coast points is by Jacksonville. This means that, under the present schedules of passenger trains, it requires a day and a night to make the trip from Tampa to Palm Beach. Passenger service of the Florida Western and Northern will reduce this journey to a trip of approximately six hours.

To Lease Railroad.
"The Seaboard Air Line Railway company will lease the Florida Western and Northern railroad for 999 years at a net rental, after maintenance taxes, etc., of not less than $800,000 a year so long as Series 'A' bonds are outstanding.

"In connection with the organization of the railroad, a land company has been organized to acquire a large acreage of land adjacent to the new line. The Seaboard Air Line Railway company will make the initial

COURT RESTRAINS
BUILDING OF COAL
YARD ON DEKALB

Randall Brothers, Inc., Atlanta coal company, was restrained from establishing a coal yard on East Dekalb avenue, near Clifford street, said to be zoned as a residential section, in an order signed Saturday by Judge E. D. Thomas, in Fulton superior court.

The Mutual Home Builders, of which Charles A. Sisson is president, filed the petition for injunction, which alleged violation of the city's zoning ordinance in establishing of the coal yard, and that property values would be deteriorated therefrom.

Recently, Judge George L. Bell, of Fulton superior court, passed an order which restrained the R. O. Campbell Coal company from establishing a coal yard along the Southern railway tracks adjoining Piedmont park, at the instance of a large number of women, residents of the affected section. Attorney Arthur W. Powell is counsel for both sets of petitioners.

Dr. Guy King, Tanlac Executive, Returns From Mexican Trip

Dr. Guy King, former United States consul to Cuba, and now prominently connected with the Atlanta Tanlac company, returned Thursday from an extensive business trip through Mexico.

He declared that the Tanlac company is now operating under eleven different flags, having established branches in practically every capital of South American and Central American countries. His recent trip into Mexico was in connection with business development in that republic. He will sail from New Orleans during the latter part of the month for Colombia and Venezuela.

Georgia Association To Discuss Credits At Annual Meeting

Prominent bankers, business men and farmers of all parts of the state have been invited to attend and participate in the annual meeting of the Georgia association, to be held at Sylvestor Thursday, and acceptance indicate that this will prove to be the most significant and constructive gathering, from the standpoint of agricultural development, ever held in Georgia.

Numerous meetings dealing with the questions of crop production, the livestock industry, soil improvement, land settlement, etc., have been held, but at this meeting the question of farm credit will be discussed from every angle by competent speakers.

Chief among these is J. D. Bell, manager of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, Columbia, S. C., whose subject will be: "The Agricultural Credit Corporation—How Can Cow-Hog-Hen Farmers in Georgia Avail Themselves of Its Benefits?"

Mr. Bell's address will be followed by a discussion of: "The Basis of Agricultural Credit," by J. Sherrard Kennedy, vice president of the Atlanta and Lowry National bank, and who recently was elected president of the Georgia Bankers' association; J. W. Vaughn, president of the Bank of Cartersville, Ga.; J. S. Johnson, vice president of the Ashburn bank, Ashburn, Ga.; J. Phil Campbell, director of the extension department of the state college of agriculture, and R. O. Crocker, manager of the farm sales department of the Atlanta Trust company.

In advance of the general program the directors of the Georgia association will hold an executive session at which officers for the ensuing year will be elected and the routine business properly coming before them will be transacted and matters of operating policy and administration will be acted upon. At this meeting C. K. C. Ausley, Thomasville, president of the Georgia association, will preside.

The Sylvestor Kiwanis club will be host to the association and visiting guests at a luncheon, following that event.

Present officers are: President, C. K. C. Ausley, Thomasville; secretary, F. B. Abbott, Waycross; treasurer, M. Hugh Westberry, Sylvestor; vice presidents, Scott W.

Allen, Atlanta; Mrs. J. E. Hays, Monticello; W. O. Foster, Atlanta. Directors: W. B. Fleming, Bainbridge; W. D. O'Quinn, Waycross; H. J. Parker, Tifton; L. W. Hardy, Ashburn; E. W. Carroll, Athens; M. Hugh Westberry, Sylvestor; D. N. Harvey, Monticello; J. M. Patterson, Putney; John D. Clarke, Darien; Charles Temple, Cornelia; W. V. Mungrove, Homerville; J. T. Jones, Donalsonville; Ira M. Barton, Jeop; H. H. Shackleton, Rome; E. B. Russell, Cedartown; S. J. Henderson, Lyons; G. T. W. Flinders, Swainsboro; F. H. Ficklen, Washington; W. C. Stokes, Jeffersonville; C. B. Jones, Ricesboro; Dr. C. D. McLean, Rochelle; A. V. Howe, Tallapoosa.

Five years in the penitentiary was the sentence imposed Saturday by Judge G. H. Howard in Fulton superior court upon Raleigh W. Wright, Jr., 22, who pleaded guilty to burglary in the entering of the home of Charles A. Conklin, 964 Peachtree street, April 26.

Wright's father, Rev. Raleigh Wright, prominent Texas evangelist, wept bitter tears as the sentence was pronounced. The youth, who was shot by young Dan Conklin in a pistol duel, told Judge Howard he was glad he was wounded—that being shot had brought him to his senses.

"And I am going straight from now on," he told the court.

I hate to pronounce a severe sentence on a boy," replied Judge Howard. "I have five children and know something of the responsibility of a family. If you conduct yourself properly in the penitentiary, you may find you have friends who would like to see you once again making your way honestly in the world. All this court can do, however, is pronounce the sentence the law dictates."

The sentence carried a maximum term of ten years, but the minimum is all the youth will serve if he is an obedient prisoner.

Letters were exhibited to the court attesting to Wright's good name in Greenville, Texas, where he was born, and in Ruston, La., where he attended the Louisiana Polytechnic institute. The youth claimed hunger induced him to enter the Conklin home. He denied intention to steal.

DEAN ON INSPECTION
ATLANTA TERRITORY

Thomas H. Dean, general sales manager of the G. H. P. cigar company, in Atlanta for several days this week, called on the trade in company with Tom Morrissey of the company, and Ernest McCrary, of John B. Daniel, Inc., distributors for El Producto cigars in this territory.

Mr. Dean, who was accompanied by his wife, was very well pleased with Atlanta upon his first visit here. Ernest McCrary reported an increased business on El Producto cigars last week, particularly on the higher priced sizes. Joe Cobb, manager of the cigar department of John B. Daniel, Inc., says he had a very fine week on El Productos in the north Georgia territory. He worked with C. W. Rowland, Fred Bostwick reports a splendid business on El Producto cigars along the Georgia road.

Tom Morrissey, of the G. H. P. cigar company, will be in Atlanta for the next two weeks doing general promotional work on El Producto cigars. L. E. Gillespie, general manager of the John B. Daniel, Inc., says the general volume of business for the past week was the best that his firm has enjoyed in several months.

DEAN ON INSPECTION
ATLANTA TERRITORY

Thomas H. Dean, general sales manager of the G. H. P. cigar company, in Atlanta for several days this week, called on the trade in company with Tom Morrissey of the company, and Ernest McCrary, of John B. Daniel, Inc., distributors for El Producto cigars in this territory.

Mr. Dean, who was accompanied by his wife, was very well pleased with Atlanta upon his first visit here. Ernest McCrary reported an increased business on El Producto cigars last week, particularly on the higher priced sizes. Joe Cobb, manager of the cigar department of John B. Daniel, Inc., says he had a very fine week on El Productos in the north Georgia territory. He worked with C. W. Rowland, Fred Bostwick reports a splendid business on El Producto cigars along the Georgia road.

Tom Morrissey, of the G. H. P. cigar company, will be in Atlanta for the next two weeks doing general promotional work on El Producto cigars. L. E. Gillespie, general manager of the John B. Daniel, Inc., says the general volume of business for the past week was the best that his firm has enjoyed in several months.

NEGRO "Y" CAMPAIGN WORK BEING PUSHED

With only three more days before the annual membership campaign comes to a close at the colored branch of the Y. M. C. A., teams are reporting daily. During this week an effort has been made to get the men and boys of the city lined up with a Christian institution that has for its aim the threefold development of body, mind and spirit.

This afternoon at 3:30 o'clock M. M. Davies will address a mass meeting on the importance of saving the youth of the country. The Lathers' Union Glee club will render music.

Loss of $75,000 to the store building and stock of the J. B. Shelnutt company's branch dry goods store at 150 Peters street, Saturday night, resulted from fire of unknown origin which broke out at about 9 o'clock and raged until early this morning before several companies of firemen, using 12 leads of hose, were able to control the blaze.

Streams of water, played on the blazing building from Peters street and roofs of adjoining buildings, had little effect on the fire, so great was the headway gained before discovery. Firemen were unable to get the configuration under control until practically the entire stock, as well as the building, was a huge pile of smoking ashes.

Stock in the dry goods store of Max Morris, 161 Peters street, was damaged to the extent of $5,000 by smoke and water, and a small junk shop on the other side of the Shelnutt store also was damaged.

The fire was discovered by Patrolman Brown, whose beat takes him

Waves Cheated, Woman Rescued By Ex-Atlantan

Atlantic City, N. J., May 10.—(Special.)—A dependent woman last night was rescued from a heavy sea by Henry S. Badger, night clerk at the resort Y. M. C. A., who staked his life against almost certain destruction and won.

Badger formerly conducted a hotel at 100 Ivy street, Atlanta. He is a former chief musician of General Fitzhugh Lee camp, Spanish-American War Veterans, also of that city.

When Mrs. Eleanor Ang, mother of a 7-year-old child, and separated from her husband, dashed into the surf in an effort to kill herself, Badger plunged in after her. A fight in water beyond their depths took place when Mrs. Ang resisted rescue, but Badger, an expert swimmer, finally got her ashore, carried her to an automobile on a side street, and ordered her sent to the city hospital. It is said she may recover.

Badger was modest to an extreme. "Shanks, in Georgia we swim in bullfrogs. All I want is my dry clothes and some hot coffee."

Two companies first answered the call, but when the headway already gained was discovered, several other companies were summoned. Because of the start of the fire, firemen were unable to combat the flames from inside the building, and were forced to be content with directing streams of water from the outside. A short time after the arrival of the last companies, supporting rafters of the building, entirely eaten away, caved in.

Several futile attempts were made to enter the building to save contents of the safe, but the office was one of the first parts of the structure to fall before the blaze. While it could not be learned definitely Saturday night, it is understood that almost the entire loss was covered by insurance.

MIDDLEKAUFF RAPS LANDIS IN CHALLENGE

Chicago, May 10.—C. W. Middlekauff, assistant United States attorney general, who took exception to recent testimony of former Federal Judge K. M. Landis before the senate Daugherty investigating committee, tonight challenged the baseball commissioner to a debate on aspects of the Philip Grossman case concerning which the former judge testified before the senate committee and to which Mr. Middlekauff took exception.

He proposed that the former jurist meet him in a debate before the Chicago Bar association, where records in the Grossman case would be used to decide the issue. Grossman was found guilty of contempt of court by the former judge for selling liquor after being restrained from doing so by federal injunction and was given a jail sentence, which he never served owing to a pardon granted by President Coolidge several months after he had been sentenced.

These are but externals. The indecipherable charm of the majestic lies in its atmosphere of well-bred refinement, the brilliance and gaiety of its social life, and the spell of its delightful location—overlooking Central Park, out of the city's ceaseless roar yet within a few minutes of the shops and theatres.

Waldorf Cooks Escape Roasting In Hotel Blaze

New York, May 10.—Tons of water were poured into the Waldorf-Astoria hotel today to subdue a fire which started in a sub-basement carpenter shop, nearly trapped 100 kitchen employees and spread to the third floor before it was checked.

Black smoke billowing through the entire structure quickly emptied the lower floors of employees and guests. The heat of the flames was so intense that firemen several times were driven from the basement. Battalion Chief Ross described it as one of the hottest fires he ever had fought.

Thousands of Fifth avenue pedestrians thronged to the scene; traffic was demoralized and firemen were cut off from apparatus until police reserves were called to keep lines clear. The fire burned for an hour and a half. The loss was estimated at $25,000. Many valuable tapestries were damaged by smoke.

TO MAKE EARLY START ON NEW FLORIDA ROAD

New York, May 10.—An early start on construction of the Florida, Western and Northern railroad, which will traverse the southern section of Florida, as part of the Seaboard Air Line system, is assured by successful flotation of the company's $7,000,000 bond issue, officials of the road indicated today.

Because of the acute need of rail road facilities in the territory which the new road will serve, covering a rich citrus fruit and vegetable producing area, Seaboard officials said the line would return satisfactory revenues the first year of operation. It is estimated that the gross revenues on traffic interchanged will be almost $5,000,000.

Great Outdoor Features of Rockbrook Camp Attract Hundreds of Girls Each Summer

In scores of homes in the southeast preparations are being made by girls who contemplate spending the summer months at Rockbrook Camp for Girls, at Brevard, N. C. This wonderful site has attained an enviable reputation as a girls' camp and for many years scores of girls have spent the hot months there, enjoying its hunting, horse riding, camping, hiking, swimming, and other features. It is famous for its good food and splendid climate, and has been regarded for many years as one of the most popular camping sites in the nation.

Rockbrook camp, managed by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carrier, embraces an estate of 1,000 acres. It is divided into two units, junior and senior. Each unit has its lodge—a club house for the girls of massive stones and legs and with a fireplace on one side. Wide porches overlook the valley and give an extended view of the Blue Ridge and the Balsam ranges. Each lodge is furnished with a piano, a Victrola, rustic furniture, books, magazines and indoor games.

Convenient to the lodges are cabins for campers, which are built after the plan of old-fashioned log cabins. Each cabin is furnished with single iron cots and mattresses, and a counselor assigned to each cabin, is responsible for the four or five girls housed.

Camp Conveniences.
Between the two units are the handicraft shop, swimming pool, the infirmary, and the dining room. Special pride is taken in food used at the camp which is produced on Rockbrook farm under the personal management of Mr. Carrier. A plentiful supply of milk, cream and butter is from the tested herd approved by a state officer. Eggs, chickens, lamb and mutton are raised. Hens and pigs are cured for summer use. All vegetables are gathered on the day they are used and every effort is made to have each meal wholesome, nourishing and attractive.

Special attention is given to sports and the physical development of girls at camp Rockbrook. Each department of sports is under the direction of an expert and a corps of assistants. Rockbrook offers canoeing, swimming, hiking, horseback riding, tennis, dancing, rifle-shooting and archery. There are also departments of arts and nature-lore, and a camp publication, "The Carrier Pigeon," issued twice during the season by the campers. The paper is a record of various

PARK SURVEY TOUR WILL START IN JUNE

Washington, May 10.—(Special.) The special commission of experts who are to select a site for a national park in the southern Appalachians, will go ahead some time in June with their survey of all available sites despite the fact that no appropriation has been made to pay their expenses, because of opposition by President Coolidge to the outlay of $10,000.

The members of the commission, headed by Representative Temple, of Pennsylvania, will pay their own expenses, it was announced Saturday by Representative Bell, of Georgia, who introduced the bill authorizing the appropriation and whose efforts to push it through committee were frustrated when the opposition of President Coolidge was made known. Judge Bell already has turned over to Representative Temple a complete description of the section of northeast Georgia, included in the national forest reserve, which Georgia will offer as a site for the proposed park, including all details as to scenery, roadways and other facilities. The commission will make a survey of the region when it reaches Georgia.

2nd Boy Drowns In 24-Hour Space Near Savannah

Savannah, Ga., May 10.—(Special.)—Adrain Dooner, 15, son of William H. Dooner, Sr., was thrown today at Camp Strachan while swimming with two other Boy Scouts. Efforts to save him by a companion at the time failed. The body was recovered by one of the scouts several hours after he went down.

Only late yesterday at Thunderbolt John Quincy Barner, 8, was drowned in a treacherous place in Wilmington river. The body had not been found this afternoon. Several have been drowned at this spot.

GOV. SMITH'S MOTHER FAIRLY COMFORTABLE

New York, May 10.—Governor Smith's mother, Mrs. Catherine Smith, who is ill of pneumonia at the home of her daughter in Brooklyn, rested fairly comfortably today, although physicians said she had not yet passed the crisis.

The governor has been at her bedside almost constantly since he arrived from Albany last night.

Auditors Compliment State Highway Department Heads

Audit of the books of the state highway department, covering the financial year 1923 and the first three months of 1924, was complete Saturday, showing that warrants from the state for 1923 totaled $2,098,651.74, inclusive of $2,888.15 in interest received. The table of disbursements shows a bank balance of $19,563.74, with accounts receivable of $1,836.17.

The total income of the department, with the source of supply, is given as $6,353,610.38, received from various sources as follows:

State auto license fund, $2,098,651.74; from federal government, $2,134,879.32; other state funds, $4,200; counties by work and funds, $1,915,879.32; other work supervised for construction, $200,000; total $6,353,610.38.

Administration costs were $294,500.82 or 4.63 per cent of the amount of money handled.

Concluding its report, the auditing firm says:

Chiefs Commended.
"The system of accounts is well designed and meets requirements of the department in all respects. All vouchers and supporting papers were properly filed and were readily accessible for our inspection. The books have been neatly and accurately kept and those responsible therefor are to be commended."

On January 1, 1924, there were 102 active projects being constructed by the department, of which 15 were bridges. There was under construction 667.3 miles of road. Of the entire 102 projects, 54 are being constructed either in whole or in part by the forces of counties in which projects are located.

The state highway department recently located offices and shops at East Point. Land, building and equipment are all paid for and deed for the land is on record in Fulton county.

Efficient Equipment.
The maintenance forces, throughout the state, it is stated, have been supplied with suitable and efficient equipment, all of which has been paid for. In addition to the regular maintenance section forces and equipment, there has been established 27 heavy outfits capable of making heavy betterments. Eighteen construction outfits have been fully equipped and are at work rebuilding roads. These roads are being straightened, graded, drained, widened, scarified and soil added where needed. These outfits will reconstruct four or five hundred miles of roads this year. After being rebuilt these will be almost as good as federal-aid projects.

All obligations of the state highway department have been met and the department is out of debt, it is stated.

Favorable Comment.

Work of the department is attracting favorable attention in other states. Recently Commissioner Suttles, of Alabama, visited Georgia to study maintenance plans and work here. Last week Georgia State Highway Engineer Neel received a letter from J. M. Page, state highway engineer for Oklahoma, saying in part:

"If our highway commission makes the inspection trip which they are planning, we will be sure to include Georgia in our itinerary. H. K. Bishop, of the bureau of public roads, while here recently, advised us strongly to visit Georgia on this trip and stated that we would probably get more valuable information from the Georgia state highway department than in the United States."

LANGLEY CASE GOES TO JURY MONDAY

Covington, Ky., May 10.—The case of Congressman John W. Langley and two co-defendants, on trial in federal court here since Tuesday on charges of conspiracy in connection with a whisky transaction in 1921, will not go to the jury until Monday, Federal Judge A. M. J. Cochran announced late today.

It was originally intended to give the case to the jury today, but change in arrangements for arguments necessitated further time, only one of the prosecuting attorneys and two of Langley's counsel completing their presentations. Two government attorneys and two for the defense are yet to argue their cases. Milton Lipschutz and Albert F. Slater, both of Philadelphia, are defendants with Langley.

A FINANCIAL RESERVOIR

For Southern Business

THE ATLANTA AND LOWRY NATIONAL BANK makes it possible for the Southern business man to arrange a banking connection that will give him a service fully equal to that which his Eastern competitors enjoy. He is no longer under the handicap of having to divide his financing between three or four institutions, each with a different policy and viewpoint.

Business in the South, whether it be agriculture, live stock, manufacturing or retail, has assumed proportions that a few years ago seemed impossible. To meet the demand for more complete banking service the facilities of the Atlanta and Lowry National Bank have been enlarged until today they are sufficient to care for the increased demand of Southern Business.

For more than half a century the Atlanta and Lowry National Bank has cooperated with the business men of the South, and today offers them a service backed by the largest invested banking capital in the South and by combined resources of more than $60,000,000—making this bank a virtual Financial Reservoir for Southern Business.

F. BARTOW-FORD, JR., WINS DEMOLAY HONOR

T. Bartow Ford, Jr., a past master councillor of Atlanta chapter, Order of DeMolay, has been selected to represent his chapter in an effort to qualify as one of fifty leading DeMolays in the United States in well-rounded development.

The selection was made by a committee composed of Philip M. Colbert, Reid Hunter, E. E. Pomeroy and A. A. Jamieson, after a review of records submitted by two members of Atlanta chapter.

From the fifty leading DeMolays of the United States, one is to be selected by a supervising committee at headquarters of the grand council of the organization at Kansas City, Mo., who will be sent to Europe this summer on a special mission. He will be appointed observer for the Order of DeMolay at the British Industrial exposition in London, at the Olympic games in Paris, and at the Boy Scout jamboree at Copenhagen, with all expense paid.

Tent Meeting Begins

Observance today of Ballou's Tabernacle day will mark the opening of a big tent meeting for negroes of Atlanta, at the end of West Hunter street, care line. Dr. A. M. Townsend, of Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. H. R. Butler and Dr. A. C. Sandford will be speakers in the service beginning at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The Tabernacle was organized last September at the conclusion of a big tent meeting and only recently a site has been purchased for the new structure which it is planned to erect at an early date.

Elderly Woman Couldn't Eat
Because of Stomach Trouble

"I have had bad stomach trouble for years," says Mrs. William H. Brown, sixty-two years old of Northampton, Pa. "I could hardly eat a thing. Sometimes I could only take a cup of coffee for three days. I was very weak from pain and want of food. In fact, I almost gave up hope. Myson's Paw Paw Tonic, however, gave me wonderful relief. My appetite is much better. Food doesn't distress me any more. I feel very much stronger and I am going to keep right on taking Paw Paw Tonic until I am well again."

Every weak, distressed, dependent or nervous person should try Paw Paw Tonic. It costs only $1 a bottle at any first-class drug store. "There's a Munyon's Paw Paw Tonic for you," says Mrs. Brown.

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE IN ATLANTA
PUBLIC SCHOOLS

This is the tenth of a series of articles dealing with the work of Atlanta public schools. The series is sponsored by the Atlanta Public School Teachers' association, and the articles are written by members of the teaching staff and other citizens interested in education.

BY MRS. C. M. NEAL,
Counselor in the Joseph E. Brown Junior High School.

"Education in a democracy should develop in each individual the knowledge, interests, ideals, habits and powers whereby he will find his place, and use that place to shape both himself and society toward ever nobler ends."

"This definition of modern education is quoted for the purpose of calling attention to the words: 'will find his place and use that place.' In the Atlanta public schools a definite effort is made to help each pupil to find his place and to fill that place efficiently. This attempt by the school to aid the pupil in making choices for present and future service and usefulness is called vocational guidance."

The necessity for vocational guidance has been brought about by changes in American life. No longer do the majority of the boys choose their fathers' occupations; nor do the girls receive their training in the home. Modern civilization has destroyed these simple procedures. The boy of modern times must "do better than his father;" the girl is his competitor in almost all occupations. The home is not the unified center that it once was, it becomes the duty of the school to assume responsibility of guiding and directing life careers of its pupils.

Guidance in Atlanta schools is educational and vocational. It is educational, as it offers to a pupil opportunities of a richly varied school curriculum and helps him to select that course of study that will best fit him for present and future usefulness and happiness. It is vocational guidance in that it makes a conscious attempt to help him formulate plans for training courses of study which involve future success.

Vocational Director.

In order to carry on this work adequately, a vocational director is given supervision of vocational guidance. He is assisted by the class room teachers in the elementary schools and by counselors in junior and senior high schools.

In the fifth grade of elementary schools study of geography and history presents many opportunities for acquiring occupational information and for learning about vocations of famous men.

Guidance begins in the sixth grade. "Preparing for the World's Work" is a text book which gives to the pupil an insight into modern business.

Ex-Warren County Residents
Here Organize Country Club

Organization of the Warren County club, with adoption of a plan for an annual luncheon for its members, was perfected Saturday afternoon at a barbecue given by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Howell, of 40 Park Lane, at Yonkers, Lodge on Peachtree road. More than 100 former residents of Warren county, now residents of Atlanta, as well as a large number of present citizens of Warren county, attended.

The barbecue, arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Howell to bring old Warren county citizens together, was declared one of the most successful informal affairs ever held at the lodge. Speeches were delivered by Clark Howell, Albert Howell, Jr., and C. R. Fitzpatrick, of Warren.

The honor guests were Joseph A. McCord, chairman of the board of the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank; Major C. E. McGregor, former pension commissioner of Georgia; Attorney L. W. Long, of Warren; Clark Howell, former Governor Hugh M. Dorsey, J. D. Robinson, Chief W. B. Cady, of the Atlanta fire department, and Albert Howell, Jr.

Other guests were Ed Adams, Emory university; Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Cason, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Cason, Mrs. M. B. YARAB SHRINERS PLAN CEREMONIAL
MONDAY, MAY 19TH

The next big fraternal event in north Georgia will be the ceremonial session of Yarnab Temple, to be held in the Auditorium on Monday, May 19. As this will be the last ceremonial to be held before the fall the nobility of north Georgia are now busily rounding up the "unregenerates" and taking preliminary steps of the great desert between the oasis of Atlanta and the Holy City of Mecca.

Noble George Argard, recorder of Yarnab Temple, states that all applications for membership in the May class must be in his possession not later than Tuesday, May 13, accompanied by check for $112. Printed lists will be sent to all Nobles, same being mailed on Wednesday, May 14, and the business session to elect candidates will be held at Shrine headquarters in Atlanta at 1 o'clock Saturday, May 17.

Potestante Charles A. Bowen and his aids are busily engaged in preparing some special royalties for the ceremonial session, and all old-time nobles are promised interesting experiences, official assent.

ONE KILLED, 10 INJURED IN JAP ELECTION RIOT

Tokio, May 10.—One man was killed and 10 persons wounded in a riot at the naval port of Kure, in Tokyo.

The session of the Baptist convention here this week will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of Dr. W. W. Landrum, which occurred in Jefferson, Texas, in May 1874. He is the only man ever ordained at a session of the body and in its presence it is stated.

He was born in Macon, Ga., reared in Savannah and served as pastor in Augusta and Atlanta. During his pastorate in Atlanta the First Baptist church colonized four times and erected five houses of worship including the edifice of the First church.

Dr. Landrum is a graduate of Brown university, the oldest Baptist university in America, and of the Southern Baptist Theological seminary. During his residence in Atlanta he was president of the home mission board and of the Ten club and was twice vice president of the convention.

At present Dr. Landrum is professor in Bethel college, Russellville, Ky., and pastor of the Russellville Baptist church, which is 107 years old and one of the leading churches in the state.

Washington, May 10.—A third request from the Cuban government for purchase of ordnance materials from the war department's surplus stocks was approved today by Secretary Weeks. The order amounted to $8,000.

Field for Business
Women in Atlanta
Subject of Survey

Dr. J. R. McCain, chairman of the advisory education committee for the Atlanta office of the Southern Women's Educational alliance, announces that a study of occupational opportunities in Atlanta for educated women is to be begun within a few weeks by a competent investigator. This decision was reached at the meeting of the committee in the home of Mrs. Samuel M. Inman, president of the Atlanta branch, Thursday night, when the committee advised with the president of the alliance, Dr. O. Latham Hatcher, who is in the city for a few weeks.

Members of the committee, besides Dr. McCain, are Mrs. Jessie M. Muse, Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, Mrs. Annie T. Wise, H. H. Bixler, Jr., Kendall Weisiger, and Cator Woolford. Mrs. Inman and Mrs. Charles Conklin are members of the committee.

The Atlanta woman closely associated with the vocational and educational interest of Atlanta, has been secured to make the projected study, which will make available for the Atlanta office of the alliance, a storehouse of information as to the fields of work open here to educated women of both professional and business types. This information will also be the disposal of Girls' High school, Commercial High school, the vocational guidance department of the city schools, and the opportunity school, all of which are represented in the committee.

Announcement is also made through the committee that a permanent educational counselor is soon to be installed in the Atlanta office to advise with girls and women in regard to problems of general education and of business and professional training.

Dr. Hatcher will spend as much time in Atlanta as possible to consult with young women on next year's problems of education and business or professional training and will hold conferences by appointment for the next ten days.

Girls' parents or other desiring appointments in this connection may secure them by telephoning to the Atlanta office of the Southern Women's Educational alliance, Ivy 1300. The office is located on the second floor of the Tuff building, 249 Ivy street. Other series of conferences will be announced later.

Catches Carrier Pigeon.

J. C. Lann, Quincy, Miss., has written a letter to The Constitution stating that he has caught a pigeon which has a silver leg band inscribed with "A. J. 23 R. 7938." It is thought that this pigeon is from some distant part of the country and Lann is desirous of learning the meaning of the inscription on the leg band.

SHRINERS PREPARE FOR SPECIAL BALL AT NEW BILTMORE

The potentate's ball, honoring Potentate Charles A. Bowen, of Yarnab Temple, to be held on the night of May 23 at the Biltmore hotel, is expected to attract one of the largest crowds of Shriners in many months. Temple officials stated Saturday.

The dance committee is planning to make the reception and dance the most elaborate social event in the history of the Temple, and that added to the opportunity to dine and dance in this magnificent new hotel, is causing a deluge of requests for tickets at Shrine headquarters, those in charge point out. Announcement has been made that no tickets would be sold at the door and that Nobles must be provided with the necessary credentials.

Potentates of every temple in the south have been invited and several have already signified their intention of being present to do honor to Noble Charles A. Bowen, potentate of Yarnab Temple, in whose honor the event is being held. The ball will be strictly formal, nobles wearing the fez and evening dress. Tickets must be purchased well in advance so that the committee may be able to provide for all who wish to be present. An elaborate musical program will be provided and entertainment features will be introduced during the dinner, according to present plans.

GEORGIA JEWELERS WILL MEET FRIDAY

The Atlanta 24k club and the Georgia retail jewelers will meet informally at the Ansley hotel Friday evening, May 16. E. H. Quigley, assistant to President Edward H. Hufnagel, of the American National Retail Jewelers' association, will be the principal speaker. Hubert W. Anderson will be toast master.

The meeting will be held in the mahogany room at 6:30 o'clock and dinner will be served.

Henry Muench, president of Georgia Retail Jewelers' association, urges full attendance as the meeting will be of great importance to jewelers.

CAVE-IN CATCHES 5 IN ZINC

Leadville, Col., May 10.—Five miners were imprisoned in the 1,500-foot level of the Empire Zinc company mine at Gilman late today, following a cave-in of sulphate ore, according to word received here tonight.

The men were working on the sixth level and are thought to be the only workers in that section of the mine. Superintendent A. H. Buck has requested a force of 30 men who are attempting to drive an emergency drift through the debris in an effort to reach the men before they are overcome by gas.

COMPLETES TERM IN FEDERAL PEN; IS REARRESTED

When Howard Ivey, alias Howell Ivey, walked out of the United States penitentiary here Saturday after completing a sentence imposed for the theft of an automobile involving interstate traffic, he was met by P. C. Herbert, transfer agent for the Alabama convict department. Herbert held requisition papers from the governor of Alabama, properly honored by the governor of Georgia, which empowered him to carry Ivey back to Alabama.

Ivey escaped from the Alabama prison on January 30, 1923, where he was serving a sentence of from 3 to 4 years after conviction of a charge of grand larceny in the state courts there, also involving an automobile theft. He will be taken back to complete his term in the Alabama prison.

COOK HEADS JUNIORS AT MERCER UNIVERSITY

Macon, Ga., May 10.—(Special.)—J. Eugene Cook, of Wrightsville, was elected president of the 1924-25 junior class of Mercer university today. Mr. Cook is prominent in student activities, having recently been on the debating team from Mercer that won a debate from Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

Other officers of the junior class chosen were C. E. Greene, of Sylvest, vice president; J. B. Dearson, Sylvest, secretary; and E. R. Collins, Macon, treasurer.

Priceless Collection of Paintings and Sculptuary, Insured at $1,000,000, To Reach Atlanta Monday

Assistant Manager of Grand Central Galleries Arrives This Week To Prepare for Opening.

The great exhibition of modern paintings and sculptuary sent here by the Grand Central Art Galleries of New York for a two weeks' showing, will open Saturday at the Atlanta Biltmore. More than 200 of the finest examples of the work of modern American artists will be included in the exhibit, and the opportunity thus given to Atlantans to view this magnificent collection, free of all charge, is one unique in the annals of any southern city.

W. Walter Wiseman, assistant manager of the Grand Central galleries, will arrive in the city Monday and will immediately take charge of the work of preparing the parlors and ballroom on the second floor of the Biltmore for the priceless paintings. A few hours after Mr. Wiseman's arrival, an express car laden with these pictures and sculptuary will arrive. They will be heavily guarded and are insured for $1,000,000 during their absence from the galleries in New York.

This exhibit is conceded by all connoisseurs to be the finest collection of the work of living American artists. It is declared an achievement of artistic and cultural significance in its own field as great as that of the Metropolitan Opera company in the field of music, and bringing of the exhibition to Atlanta marks an epoch in the city's development exceeding in cultural importance anything that has been achieved here since the first presentation of a season of grand opera in this metropolis of the new south.

Officials To Attend.

Walter L. Clark, president of the galleries, and Erwin S. Barrie, general manager, will arrive in Atlanta during the week to be here before the exhibition is opened to the public.

It is chiefly through the efforts of the art committee of the Chamber of Commerce, with J. J. Haverly as chairman, and of allied organizations and individual art lovers here that this collection has been brought to Atlanta. The undertaking was started with the aspiration that it would be a step towards establishing Atlanta as the art center of the south-east, just as she is now recognized as the center of the world in the field of the music center. It is believed that the great latent love of the beautiful in the people here, and the universal interest in the arts of color, design and form will be awakened, and as a result, in a few years a great permanent art museum may be erected here.

"Erection of a great art museum in Atlanta, one of the greatest cultural needs of the community, is to be expected as an outgrowth of the movement of which this art exhibit is the start," said Paul H. Norcross, president of the Chamber of Commerce Saturday.

Haverly Pleased.

A more comprehensive statement as to the significance of the coming art exhibit to Atlanta came from Mr. Haverly, who has worked tirelessly for months on plans for the exhibit, and who is a widely-known connoisseur of the arts and the owner of one of the finest individual collections in the south.

"Art interprets life and is the faithful record of countries and nations," said Mr. Haverly. "We know the physical beauty of Greece through her marble festivals. The Italian Renaissance used art as a handmaid of religion, and Botticelli and Raphael and Leonardo da Vinci and Michael Angelo curbed men's hearts by gentle saints and angels and changed the standard of page beauty of Venus to the Christian standard of womanhood—the Madonna enthroned."

"The Dutch home is familiar through Rembrandt and Frans Hals and Vermeer; the Spanish court is real to us through Velasquez, by team and Boucher and Fragonard held a garlanded mirror to the French court of pleasure, and the reaction to simplicity is breathed through the exquisite landscapes of the Barbizon painters."

"Americans are living in a frenzy of jazz, perhaps, but that doesn't mean they lack ideals. We have weak people in every age, even in our own, but they do not sway the character of the big majority, nor do they dim the beauties of the art, the ideals of the scholar or the refinement of the average citizen."

"America's colonial days, her patriots, are recorded by Stuart, Peale, Trumbull, Henry Inman. Each are products of artists, who, looking at life through the eyes of beauty and truth, have written their vision for the generation to come."

"Art is a heritage. It is not a luxury, an amusement for the cultivated few—it is a heritage of all who have beauty in their souls and is a glorious connecting link with all the ages."

"In this exhibition by American artists which will be shown in Atlanta the spirit of American art is forthright. This is a fresh and virile art. It knows the old forms of beauty of centuries past, and it sees and portrays in them the glorious spirit of American freedom."

"Atlanta welcomes the Grand Central galleries; we thank them that they are giving our people this opportunity to see the splendid paintings and sculptures that American artists produce and we feel that from this exhibition will arise a new love of art, a keener appreciation of the fact that the record of the south, our record of America, will be painted by the dreamers of beauty and truth; and chiseled from the rock, like our gallant and beloved chief of the lost cause, will be again through the genius of Stone mountain."

Mr. Haverly explained that the Grand Central Art Galleries is an institution maintained by the Painters and Sculptors' association, an organization operated without profit and with the intention of providing a public and of attracting interest and attention to the work of living painters and sculptors. A group of lay art lovers and of artists, the former contributing funds and the latter presenting each year a piece of work to the galleries, make up the organization. There are only two members in the southeast—Mr. Haverly in Atlanta and Colonel J. B. Stahlman, of Nashville.

Distinguishing Artists. Of the artists affiliated with the Grand Central galleries, the most distinguished figures in American painting and sculpture are included. Many of these will come to Atlanta in connection with the presentation of their works, and with them will come distinguished connoisseurs and art critics.

For the notable visitors, a program of social activities has been arranged. The program will be a dinner Saturday night at the Biltmore, to be given by the finance committee of the Atlanta organization is G. F. Willis, whose efforts with those of Mr. Haverly, Frank Lowenstein, John W. Grant and other leaders in the movement, have resulted in arrangements to present the great exhibit to the Atlanta public without charge for admission or programs. This arrangement has not been possible even for the special exhibits in New York.

The main event of the social program will be a dinner Saturday night at the Atlanta Biltmore, to which 800 invitations have been sent. The guests will include most of the prominent visitors, and art lovers of Atlanta. The affair is an event which Atlanta will accept generally and officially as its opportunity for development as an art center will be marked by the presence of Governor Walker and Mayor Sims as speakers at the dinner.

NEW TAX BILL PASSES SENATE

virtually no resemblance to the bill as reported by the senate finance committee three weeks ago, but it is believed likely to come through the house conference practically "as is." Republican Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, openly announced that he would attempt to lower the high democratic surtax rates. Smoot declared the bill was unscientific and short by $165,150,000 of raising the revenue necessary for government expenses.

The bill carries out completely the democratic theory of big tax reductions on small incomes and lesser reductions on large incomes. The democratic-progressive coalition secured adoption of their normal, surtax, by heritage, corporation and big gifts rates. On every point where the republicans resisted the democratic program they were defeated.

Ends Long Battle. The action of the senate ends the long battle that began last November, when Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, after a letter to congress announcing there was a $235,000,000 surplus in the treasury and offered a plan for reducing taxes.

The Mellon plan of rate reduction was easily defeated in both houses. The house adopted the Loggworth compromise plan, which represented a medium between the Mellon rates and a democratic proposal. The senate went further and adopted outright the Simmons democratic plan.

Increased business prosperity because of the lower surtaxes and tightening of the administrative features to prevent tax evasion are expected to make up the deficit.

The bill, as reported by the finance committee, was $50,000,000 short of raising the Mellon estimates of necessary revenue. The democrats killed the telephone tax, which added $30,000,000 to the deficit, and the radio tax, which would have raised $10,000,000.

After the measure was passed, the senate proceeded to consider pending appropriation bills.

It is planned to take up the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill early next week.

GEORGE OPPOSES CORPORATION TAX. Washington, May 10.—(Special.) Senator George, of Georgia, opposed the principle of the corporation tax written into the tax bill, which passed Saturday, on the ground that it will deter development of industry, in a statement issued here Saturday night.

As a war measure, Senator George declared that such a tax was all right, but that it should not be imposed in peace time. He predicted that the entire corporation tax provision in the bill would be killed by the conference on the measure.

Senator George, in his statement, expresses disapproval of both the Jones corporation tax amendment which was written into the bill, providing a flat nine per cent tax, with a graduated scale from 1 1/4 to 40 per cent on so-called surtax income and that which had been offered by the finance committee, a flat tax of 14 per cent. The present law is 12 1/2 per cent, with $1 per $1,000 on capital stock.

The flat tax of 14 per cent, he said, was "manifestly unfair" on small corporations. This was one of the reasons urged by Jones in offering his amendment. Senator George considers the Jones plan more acceptable, but declared that it was "ill advised."

ACTION IS GUARANTEED UPON FARM RELIEF. Washington, May 10.—Farm relief legislation at this session of congress has been guaranteed by the decision of house and senate leaders to give the McNary-Haugen bill full consideration in both houses before adjournment. Agreement, which was reached after repeated demands of farm bloc members that the bill be given a place on the program, provides the measure will be the next bill to be taken up by each house.

The decision to consider the bill was not regarded as insuring its passage in anything like its present form, as it provides for a $200,000,000 drain on the treasury to advance the capital needed to put the marketing corporation into operation. Advocates of the bill assert that this will eventually be returned, but the feeling is general that so large an appropriation might not be agreed to.

Man "Trailed by Gang" Is Held by Officers For Test of Sanity. O. D. Camp, 36, of 145 Walton street, accompanied by his 8-year-old son, Robert, Saturday requested police to detail men to guard him, saying that a band of men who seek his life has followed him for several days.

Police think he is suffering from an hallucination and are holding him for observation and a sanity test.

The man, who is a candy maker employed by an Atlanta firm, told officers the men chased him several nights ago, and that he and his son were afraid to return home, spending the night in the woods near Atlanta. Returning to work the following day, he was accosted by a special railroad officer in the Inman Park yards. After telling the story, Camp was advised to notify police. A revolver which Camp said he purchased Saturday morning with which to protect himself was found hidden in his shirt.

GEORGIA PAPERS TO VIE FOR AWARD OF SUTLIVE CUP. Savannah, Ga., May 10.—(Special.)—Charles D. Rountree, of Wrightsville, president of the Georgia

W. G. SUTLIVE. Press association has received the large silver loving cup donated by W. G. Sutlive, Savannah newspaper man, past president of the Press association and member of the Georgia legislature from Chatham. The trophy was forwarded by Mr. Sutlive the first part of the week, and will be

Doctors Battle To Save Woman Who Tried To Die

Physicians are hopeful of saving the life of 19-year-old Mrs. Velma Anderson, of Cleveland, Tenn., who early Saturday attempted to "end it all" by leaping from a window of the third floor of a rooming house at 100 Ivy street.

Doctors fighting for her life at Grady hospital, however, are handicapped by her desire to die, and are pitting their skill against her will.

The woman told physicians that she was discharged from a show in a carnival now appearing at Lakewood park, and having no money or prospects of another position, became despondent. She stated that she has been in the theatrical business since leaving her home three years ago.

Her fall was broken by heavy bushes, but nevertheless her injuries are considered of a serious nature. It is feared that in addition to severe cuts and bruises, she suffered internal injuries.

after Chairman Snell of the rules committee had discussed the legislative program with President Coolidge at the white house.

On his return to the capitol Mr. Snell went into conference with Speaker Gillett, Representative Longworth, the republican leader, members of the republican steering committee and several members of the house agricultural committee, among them Chairman Haugen.

At the close of this conference it was announced that the McNary-Haugen bill would be brought to a vote with adequate time allotted for debate.

It was insisted that there had been no indication as to the president's views on the proposal, but republican leaders in the house heretofore have declared that before right of way was given to the McNary-Haugen bill some assurance should be obtained from the white house that the measure would not be vetoed.

Present plans of supporters of the bill, which calls for creation of a corporation with capital of $200,000,000 to sell surplus farm products abroad, are for the house to consider the measure before it is taken up in the senate. Members of the senate farm bloc have been insisting, however, that the proposal be brought to a vote there without delay.

Seeks White House Boost. Later Senator Norbeck informed the senate he had decided to withhold his proposed motion to force a vote on the McNary-Haugen bill as a rider to the revenue bill.

The senator said the relief bill probably would pass the house and the senate and certainly would become a law if it got a little boost from the white house. His decision to withhold the motion, he said, was reached after he had been informed of the decision of the house rules committee and after conferences with representatives and a delegation of farmers from the northwest here to support the measure.

He had been assured by senate leaders, Senator Norbeck said, that the bill would be given consideration as soon as it reaches the senate, probably in seven or eight days. He added that another reason for withholding the move was because a number of senators favoring the tax bill had said they would not vote for it with the farm bill rider, although they would vote for the farm bill as a separate measure.

Beavers Seeks To Reverse Decision of Committee

Former Chief of Police James L. Beavers, through his attorney, George Spence, Saturday filed an application for a writ of certiorari in Fulton superior court which embraced more than sixty typewritten sheets and contained four exhibits on which the court is asked to reverse the judgment of the police committee, which on April 12 discharged him, following conviction on two counts of alleged violation of rules of the police department.

The writ was granted by Judge E. D. Thomas, and the case was set for the July term and will probably be heard some time in September. The petition sets out 21 separate assignments of error and contends that the judgment of the committee was in error because it was contrary to the evidence presented and because Beavers was not allowed to vindicate himself before the committee. The petition asks that the committee be required to certify the records of the case to the chief of police, of superior court for review and judgment.

It is alleged in the petition that the committee was in error in finding Beavers guilty in violating the rule of the police department which requires that he visit officers and men on the beat at unusual hours, in view of the fact that the rule has been superseded by adoption of others which make the original regulation ineffective.

The petition further asserts that the committee was in error in discharging the petitioner as police chief until after he had been "lawfully convicted upon lawful charges, and because said charges were not sustained by the proof and because the petitioner had not been convicted on any lawful charge."

Illegality of the chief's conviction of violating a rule of the department in swearing that on account of poverty he was unable to pay court costs in another case, is alleged in the petition.

The petition is accompanied by an affidavit signed by Councilman Edward H. Inman, chairman of the police committee of city council, asserting that all costs accruing in the case have been paid and that the petitioner has given bond as required by law.

You Want to Know Your Executor

You make a will in order to substitute certainty for uncertainty. For the same reason you name an executor or trustee. Logically, then, in the executor or trustee to be selected you look for stability, fixed purpose, and the prospect of long life. Along with responsibility and specialized skill, you desire permanence and settled character. You want to know your executor—and to know he will live to carry out your trust.

You can do this by selecting a corporate executor or trustee. There is no danger of its failing to survive you, or of its becoming affected by infirmity or impairment of faculties. The Fourth National Bank, which has undergone no change in character or policies since it was established in 1890, affords an extraordinary example of the sort of stability and continuity you rightly expect.

You can therefore choose the Trust Department of the Fourth National Bank to carry out your wishes with the certain assurance that you do know your executor—that whether it is called on to act soon or late, its responsibility will be discharged just as you contemplate.

Our Trust Officer will be glad to discuss the advantages of a corporate executor or trustee with you at your convenience Annually use organic Nuxated Iron to build up red blood, strength and endurance.

There are thousands of people who are aging and breaking down at a time of life when they should be enjoying that perfect health which carries defiance to disease simply because they are not awake to the condition of their blood. Without organic iron your blood carries no oxygen, and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food so what you eat does you no good. It is like putting coal into a stove without any draft from the chimney. The iron in spinach, lentils and apples from any drugist under the name of Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron also contains the principal chemical constituent of active, living nerve force; it is, therefore, a true blood and nerve food. It helps create and rebuild new and stronger red blood cells. It feeds the body the substance which nerve force must have to give it that vital, electro-magnetic power which is stored in the nerve and brain cells of man. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down men and women in two weeks' time. Local Fishermen Reach "Paradise" Week From Today

Those Who Have Not Yet Filed Formal Application for Trip Urged To Do So at Once.

ST. ANDREWS TO GIVE FISH CHOWDER SUPPER

PROGRAM OF ENTERTAINMENT
Residents of Panama City have drawn up the following outline program of entertainment for The Constitution's motor tourists. It does not include the dances, fish fry, concerts and other incidental jollifications.
Monday—Get-Together Day.
Tuesday—Bay Fishing Day.
Wednesday—Deep Sea Fishing Day.
Thursday—Surf Bathing Day.
Friday—Fresh Water Fishing Day.
Saturday—Go-As-You-Please Day.

BY O. J. WILLOUGHBY, Editor Constitution's Highway Department.

Just a week from today The Constitution's deep sea motor cruise, which leaves Atlanta next Saturday morning, will make port in Panama City and Atlanta's landlocked mariners will stretch their legs, happy in the contemplation of a solid week of unalloyed pleasure before them.

And it should be a week of solid joy—a week in a fisherman's paradise, topped with sunning skies and fanned by salt breezes from the gulf, a week punctuated with soul satisfying struggles with the gamey fish which the section abounds, with cool plunges in the curling waves that sweep in from the gulf and with personal encounters with that most Lucullan of dishes, the fish chowder. The gods on Olympus are said to stoop closer to earth when to their nostrils is wafted that most enticing combination, the aroma of sea breeze spiced with the steam of a well prepared chowder.

The city of St. Andrews has joined with Panama City in extending a hearty welcome to the Georgia motorists and has invited the party on Tuesday to a fish chowder supper cooked by experts.

Can Go As You Please.
Alfred Tyler, chairman of the Panama City entertainment committee, yesterday wired that a full program of events has been prepared for the enjoyment of the visitors so that there should not be a single dull moment for anyone during the entire extent of the visit. This program will be followed out, it is expected, by a large majority of the party, for it includes attractions which could hardly be resisted. But the trip is to be fundamentally a go-as-you-please affair and those who desire to go by

ADmits DECREASE IN NAVY STRENGTH

Ratio Now 4, as Compared to 5 for England and 3 for Japan, Roosevelt Says.

Washington, May 10.—In a report submitted to the house naval committee today, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt admitted the American navy has fallen to a relative position of four as against five for the British fleet, as provided in the naval limitation of arms treaty.

"If 5 and 3 represent the present strengths of Great Britain and Japan, respectively," Roosevelt said, "then the United States would appear to be approximately 4."

Roosevelt explained that this ratio did not take into consideration "strategically located and well-equipped naval bases which add greatly to the sea power of a nation and does not include the relative strength of the various merchant marines."

The report was in answer to a request by Chairman Butler for an explanation of recently published statements that the American navy had dropped to 1 in relation to 5 and 3 for Great Britain and Japan. "The United States," the report said, "would require 21 10,000-ton cruisers to obtain a 5-5-3 ratio with Japan and 22 to equal a 5-5 ratio with Great Britain."

The report conceded that as far as

VICE PRESIDENCY TAKES ON GUISE OF IMPORTANCE

Both Parties Careful in Considering Men to Select as Running Mates for Chief Candidates.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.
Washington, May 10.—(Special).—Contrary to usual custom, both national conventions this year will move very carefully and cautiously in picking a running mate for their presidential candidates, due to developments, and both parties are now scanning the field for a strong second choice.

They are facing this situation: 1.—If a strong third party develops, under the leadership of LaFollette, and captures a handful of states, which is altogether likely—the election of a president may be forced into the house of representatives. But because of the peculiar situation there, a deadlock is likely, so that all that would be left would be for the vice president, who is selected by the senate—in the event of such a deadlock—to move up to the presidency. Even in the senate there is a chance of a deadlock, which would complicate matters still more, and raise a situation which has never been met in the country's history.

2.—The presidential job has become increasingly more burdensome and a severe strain on the health. Political leaders have the breakdown of Wilson and the death of Harding as two warnings impelling them to take special care in selecting vice presidential nominees.

House in Deadlock.
Under the plan as provided under the constitution, when a presidential choice is thrown into the house, each state has one vote, whether it is democratic or republican being determined by the preponderance of that party in the state delegation.

As constituted, republicans would have 22 votes under this plan, democrats 20, with one, Wisconsin, though nominally republican, casting its vote for LaFollette, and with five states equally divided as between democrats and republicans, and therefore unable to cast a vote.

Under the situation created by a third party candidate getting a handful of states and preventing a majority in the general election, the house must choose between three, a republican, a democrat and a third party candidate. Since it would require 25 votes for any candidate to be chosen, the house would be deadlocked.

Senate in Same Boat.
The choice of a vice president, who would be president, would then be up to the senate, which brings the difficulty that is worrying political leaders and is leading many ambitious aspirants to angle for the vice presidential nomination.

But even there a deadlock might result. The paper majority of 51 republicans over 43 democrats and two farmer-laborites would not hold in such a situation. Senators LaFollette, Brookhart, Frazier, and Ladd stand apart from their party, and have it within their power, if the election should devolve upon the senate, to name the next president, or by absenting themselves, to throw the upper house into a deadlock.

Beyond this contingency the constitution does not go. There is no other procedure authorized in that document.

On the federal statutes, however,

Pinkerton Secrets Carted Through Streets of Chicago

RECORDS OF 74 YEARS MOVED FIRST TIME

Chicago, May 10.—Untold episodes in the life of Abraham Lincoln, secrets involving persons of international fame long since dead, and the wiles and stratagems of kings, presidents and nations, all constituting an intimate and undisclosed part of the history of the United States and many European countries for the past 74 years, rolled through Chicago streets in truck loads Saturday.

The Pinkerton national detective agency was moving from the headquarters which it had occupied since 1850, when it was founded by Allan Pinkerton. Out from dusty recesses covered with the dust of years came archives which contained secrets known only to the first Pinkerton, his son and his grandson, who now is in charge of the agency, and a few trusted aides. The late William A. Pinkerton often remarked that "if the documents containing these secrets ever found their way into unscrupulous hands, general hell would result."

Armed Guards on Trucks.
Guards armed with shotguns accompanied the files containing the dangerous records from the old offices to the trucks and accompanied the vehicular transfer of secrets of state

ATLANTA EXHIBIT OF 'BETTER HOMES' WILL OPEN TODAY

Thousands of Home Lovers Expected to Throng to Three Model Homes Composing Exhibit.

HOMES FORMALLY OPEN AT 3 O'CLOCK TODAY

Two Homes for Whites and One for Negroes Will Be Open to Visitors Daily During This Week

Plans for Atlanta's participation in the National Better Homes demonstration, which have been taking shape for many weeks, culminate this afternoon at 3 o'clock when three model "better homes" will be formally opened to the public. Scores of workers, including representatives of practically every civic club and organization in the city, have been engaged for several weeks in decorating, shaping, planning and arranging Atlanta's three homes in the national demonstration.

Throughout the nation at about the same moment similar homes will be opened in practically every city of any size.

Mrs. Newton D. Wing, general chairman of the local committee, stated Saturday that no detail had been left undone to attract the eye of home lovers and expressed the opinion that Atlanta's exhibit this year will make a much more impressive showing than in 1923 when this city was given honorable mention. With added experience and with the aid of a band of earnest workers, Mrs. Wing stated that she expected Atlanta's homes to be among the first three prize-winners.

Each home will be in charge of a worker who will act as guide to visitors and explain any feature of the home upon which information is desired.

Location of Homes.
No. 1 is the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Hardy, 212 Virginia avenue; No. 2 is the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Currens, 281 Dill avenue, and No. 3 is the home for negroes, erected and owned by the Service Realty company, at 45 B street.

At each home the opening will be marked by a special program as follows:

Home No. 2, at 3 O'Clock.
Song, "America." Invocation, Dr. C. M. Meeks. Presentation of key to Better Home No. 2 to Mayor Sims by Mrs. Newton C. Wing, general chairman. Welcome address by Walter A. Sims. Music, Mrs. Florence Golsen Bateman and Miss Blanch Roberts.

Address, Rev. C. M. Meeks, pastor Park Street Methodist church. Song, "Home, Sweet Home." Benediction.

Home No. 3, at 4 O'Clock.
The home, 45 B street, will be opened with an elaborate program in charge of a committee of negroes.

Home No. 1, at 5 O'Clock.
Song, "America." Invocation, Dr. F. N. Parker. Presentation of the key to Better Home No. 1 to Mayor Walter A. Sims by Mrs. Newton C. Wing, chairman. Welcome address by Mayor Sims. Music by North Avenue Presbyterian choir, Joseph Ragan, director, Miss Margaret Battle, Mrs. Harold Coolidge, Floyd Jennings and Ed A. Werner. Address, Dr. F. N. Parker. Song, "Home, Sweet Home." Benediction.

Mrs. Frank Naedle, in charge of Home No. 1, 212 Virginia avenue, will be assisted by Mrs. P. C. Fabel, Mrs. Arthur Cotton, Mrs. J. H. Lorenz, Mrs. A. P. Phillips, Mrs. Hunter Smith, Mrs. Calvin Stanford, Mrs. C. E. Angel, Mrs. J. E. Wheeler, Mrs. Arthur Hazzard, Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. Eva

College Men Claim Tresses Of Mother Too Sacred to Cut

FLAPPERS' ANTICS, RUM TOLERATED; PREDICT REACTION

Macon, Ga., May 10.—(Special).—Bobbied hair on the female of the species is popular among the male until it reaches the stage of spreading among mothers, if the poll of a history study class of Mercer university students on feminism may be taken as indicative of the male attitude toward this tressorial fad.

Flappers, rouge, knickers, cigarettes, equal rights and the causes, pro and con, were under discussion when collegiate views of the much mooted questions were obtained. An attempt by one student to deliver an attack on the use of paint by the modern girl brought down a storm of objection and was only quelled when someone suggested the compromise that rouge had the masculine O. K. when it added feminine charm.

Dr. L. T. Wallace, professor of history, characterized the flapper movement as having begun with paint, and proceeded to lobbed hair, cigarettes, trousers and now contraband whisky.

GRADY BOULEVARD SAVED BY MAYOR

Sims Approves Contracts To Spend $33,500 to Purchase Necessary Strips of Land.

Henry Grady boulevard was saved from abandonment for the year when Mayor Walter A. Sims, Saturday, approved contracts adopted by council Thursday, for purchase of the Cohen and Brice, Dr. Salter, Eichberg and Regenstein strips of land for the right of way between Castlebury and Fair streets.

J. I. McCord, agent for the city in procuring the right of way for the boulevard, which will include Spring street and Madison avenue extension, said the right of way from Castlebury to Mitchell street could be obtained without any new appropriation from council.

The northern end of the new boulevard, now known as Spring street, is being extended to Brookwood station by Fulton county. It includes all of Spring street and will include all of Madison avenue, when Madison is widened and extended to Forsyth street. The county has agreed to do the Madison avenue construction work, too.

The papers signed by the mayor Saturday legalize the expenditure of $33,500, which had been appropriated toward purchasing the right of way in January. Repeal of the appropriation had been proposed tentatively by the finance committee Friday, in its effort to divert all available money to keep the schools open for the year.

DRUID HILLS CLUB WILL BE REBUILT

Temporary Structure To Be Erected Pending Erection of Magnificent Permanent Building.

Hardly had the last embers of their magnificent club house sputtered out in the gentle rainfall of Saturday morning before members of the Druid Hills Golf club were driving and putting around the course from temporary headquarters established under tents, and plans were well in progress for erection of a new structure more magnificent than the one which burned to the ground Friday afternoon.

A temporary structure to accommodate all club, social and sporting activities pending erection of the permanent new building was agreed upon by the board of directors in special session Saturday in the office of Henry Davis, in the Atlanta and Lowry National bank building.

A committee composed of C. V. Rainwater, chairman; W. A. Fuller, E. H. Barnes, F. J. Fisher and W. H. Glenn was designated from the board to arrange details for building the temporary clubhouse and report to the full board at another special session Monday afternoon. It was stated that work on this structure probably would be started within the week. Plans for a permanent building to replace the burned one will be made and adopted with more deliberation, members said.

Dr. Claude N. Hughes, elected temporary chairman of the board Saturday in the absence of Dr. Thomas P. Hinman, announced that the only question being considered was "how quickly and how well can we erect the new building."

Temporary Building.
The special committee had not prepared its report Saturday afternoon, but it was said to be considering a temporary building over the swimming pool.

The building, insured at $75,000, which had been one of the most important centers of southern social and sporting activities for ten years, was a complete loss together with about $25,000 worth of furnishings, equipment and private property left there by members of the club.

The board of directors Saturday morning acknowledged with thanks the invitation extended by R. H. Martin, new president of the Capital City club, for its members to use the Capital City club during construction of the new clubhouse.

DEADLOCK SEEN BETWEEN MADDOO AND AL SMITH

Maximum Strength of Each on Early Ballots About 400, Far Short of Two-Thirds Majority.

UNDERWOOD IS SECOND CHOICE OF SMITH MEN

Uncertain To Whom McAdoo Delegates Will Go in Case He Cannot Be Nominated.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, May 9.—It is only recording what is the practically universal judgment of democratic politicians and of political observers generally that the opening stage of the fight in the democratic convention will consist of a tug-of-war between Governor Smith and McAdoo. It is the almost equally universal judgment of the same kind of men—except those who are identified with the McAdoo camp or with the Smith camp—that this tug-of-war will end in a deadlock. Some of the McAdoo men think they will win it; some of the Smith men think they will win it. But observers outside the two camps think this preliminary tug-of-war will come to nothing. They think that McAdoo will run up to a maximum strength of about 400 to 425 delegates and that Smith may run up to a maximum strength of about the same number, but that neither will go any further, and that both will be very short of the 732 delegates who compose the two-thirds necessary to win the nomination in democratic conventions. (The assumption is, of course, that throughout this preliminary deadlock the balance of the delegates who are not for McAdoo and not for Smith will maintain a policy of voting for "favorite sons.")

Who Will Be Heir?
If this assumption is correct it follows that the most interesting question about the approaching democratic convention is: Who will be the heir to McAdoo's strength if and when he fails to win? And who will be the heir to Smith's strength if and when he fails to win?
The question is easier to answer as to Smith than as to McAdoo. If there is a deadlock assumed, if Smith's votes reach a certain number and fail to go beyond it, and if Smith and his managers are forced to realize that he cannot win, they will then drop Smith and turn to their second choice. It is almost certain that the second choice of most of the Smith delegates will be Senator Oscar Underwood, of Alabama. Smith and Underwood, while very different in some respects, yet have much in common. Their respective backers and followers have much in common. Smith represents the conservative interests; so does Underwood. Smith is regarded as to a considerable degree "wet"; and Underwood, while he has receded from his former position on prohibition and has recently taken the position that prohibition is an accepted institution and must be enforced—Underwood, nevertheless, has, next to Smith, the prevailing support of the "wets," or the "near-wets," or the "less-drys."

Underwood Second Choice.
It is fairly certain, then, that Senator Underwood will be the second choice of most of the Smith delegates. And in this event an odd thing is likely to happen. Underwood, when his turn comes to be put forward after Smith by the conservative wing of the convention, is likely to get more votes than Smith. Underwood at this stage should get nearly all of the Smith delegates, and to that

Count Salm Sells Millicent Back to Father for $100,000

PARIS GIGGLES AT PENNY-ANTE PRICE FOR BRIDE

Paris, May 10.—Count Salm, the threadbare Austrian nobleman, who thought he had caught a $400,000 bride when he secretly and hurriedly married little Millicent Rogers in New York last January, was a piker after all.
Paris giggled over the champagne as the regular Saturday night festivities swung into pace, over the report that Salm von Hoogstraeten had abandoned all claims on the fortune of Colonel H. H. Rogers, one of the financial giants of America, for the penny-ante sum of $100,000.
For that trifle the international adventurer, occasional heart-breaker, movie actor and cabaret dancer had agreed to quit Paris and returned to Vienna as Rogers sailed for home on the steamship La France with his crushed and disillusioned daughter.

Salm Enters Pact.
Friends of the count—for any penniless nobleman who can marry an American millionaire has friends—said he had accepted an agreement which was negotiated by Colonel Rogers and a mysterious character described as Count Salm's father. Thereby he said, the count was to emerge from the channels of sensational publicity which flow through the night-world of Paris, and go to Vienna, while the disillusioned and unhappy Millicent returned home on board the steamship La France with her daddy.

All parties to the negotiations tried to maintain secrecy about the terms. Rogers stopped at the Hotel Champs Elysee and the mysterious father of the count was an inmate of the Hotel Lott, whose household staff had been well tipped by Salm, presumably with the last of the proceeds of Millicent's pawned jewels.

Romance Rusted Out.
Millicent and her count stayed at a modest hotel, but they occupied separate apartments and their residence under one roof seemed to be a mere cohabitation to outward form. The tinsel of romance apparently had turned to rust and Millicent's plumed knight to a high-society gate-crasher. The bell-hops of the count's hotel said he was nervous, apparently worried and untalkative.

As Paris got the story, Colonel Rogers bided his time, though his heart was tortured by the adventures through which his only daughter was passing with the count. He may have

PITTSBURG MAYOR ORDERS ATTEMPT TO OPERATE CARS

City To Furnish Police Protection—Thirty Persons Overcome by Gas in Tube Jams.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 10.—Mayor William A. Magee late today made a formal demand upon the Pittsburg Railway company to restore street car service at the earliest possible moment "with whatever forces are available." The demand, which followed a strike at midnight last night of 3,200 motormen and conductors, was answered by the company's announcement that an effort would be made on Monday to restore service with 500 men from outside cities. Service was completely suspended today.

In asking that the company attempt to restore service, Mayor Magee informed the company that the city was preparing to furnish the necessary police protection. The city council, meeting in special session later in the day, passed an "emergency" ordinance which created a fund of $25,000 for the purchase of tear gas equipment, riot guns and other material.

20 Overcame in Tunnel.

The worst traffic jam in the city of Pittsburg resulted from the strike. Extra shuttle trains were provided by the railroads to suburban towns, but afforded small relief. Automobile traffic blocked the downtown streets at intervals throughout the day.

As the result of a traffic jam in the new Liberty tunnels, 30 persons were overcome by carbon monoxide gas thrown off by automobiles and the tunnels were closed temporarily to traffic. The twin tubes, running under the South Hills for a mile and an eighth, were recently completed and opened to restricted automobile traffic, pending the completion of the ventilating system.

In promising police protection to street cars operated during the strike, Mayor Magee suggested that cars be runs as trains in districts not served by railroads.

Police Guards in Autos.

Policemen in automobiles would provide the protection to such trains, he declared. Representatives of the carmen, when advised of the plan to operate cars Monday, declared there "would be no interference by the striking carmen."

The strike was made effective after the collapse of negotiations initiated by Mayor Magee to adjust the demands of the carmen for an increase in pay of from 67 cents to 77 cents an hour. Both the carmen and the company agreed to arbitration in principle, but were unable to agree upon the form and scope of such arbitration.

In a statement issued tonight, John H. Reardon, international representative of the carmen's union, declared that the carmen had offered to "settle the controversy for a three-cent an hour increase." The company contended during the negotiations that its financial condition was such that it could grant no increase. One of the Liberty tubes was reopened for outbound traffic tonight

First Arrivals Reach City Saturday—More Than 6,000 People Are Expected by Officials.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY WILL BE IN SESSION

Dr. John D. Mell, of Georgia, May Succeed Dr. E. Y. Mullins, Retiring Convention President.

Early arrivals for the Southern Baptist convention began with Saturday's trains and during Sunday it is expected that all convention officials will reach the city ready for pre-convention conferences and board meetings to be held Monday and Tuesday.

The first session of the convention opens Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, but by Tuesday night there will be 4,000 delegates here and the majority of these delegates will attend meetings of Tuesday and Tuesday night under several allied agencies of the convention, it is predicted. It is expected that by the hour of the opening of the convention on Wednesday morning that a minimum of six thousand visitors will be in the city. Special trains from Texas and other western states do not arrive in Atlanta until late Tuesday night.

The three leading matters to come before this convention will be the report of the committee on re-defining work of the convention; the report of the committee on the Southern Baptist Theological seminary building program, and the report of the committee on future programs. Around these three reports will likely center the chief discussions of the six days and delegates will await with keenest interest the disposal of these three matters.

There are many other major questions to be settled at this session of the convention. The five-year program, known as the Baptist 75-million campaign, launched in Atlanta in 1919, comes to a close this year and while the convention is considering future programs it will be a matter of necessity to work out the clear lines along which this campaign will be completed during the remaining months of this calendar year.

New Seminary Planned.

Closely related to the report on the re-definition of the scope of the several boards of the convention will be a report of a social committee to bring a recommendation regarding another theological seminary for the south. This report is likely to favor a third seminary, according to announcement of the chairman, Dr. J. M. Shelburne, of Danville, Virginia. It is well known that Mercer university is considered as one of the most favorable sites for the location of this new seminary.

Pre-convention meetings are of unusual importance this year, it is stated. Beginning Monday evening at the First Baptist church there will be a meeting of stewardship leaders of

Atlanta Mothers Guests at Howard Of Constitution

Free Admission and Flowers Monday Noon Given to All 40 Years or Older.

All mothers in Atlanta, 40 years or older, are invited by The Constitution to be its guests at a special performance, starting at noon, at the Howard theater Monday. At the end of this story a coupon is printed, and every mother is asked merely to clip it out of the paper, present it at the theater at 12 o'clock Monday, and she will be admitted without any other ticket.

Each mother, as she enters, will be presented with a white flower—unless the huge supply of fresh blossoms proves insufficient as to number, when they will be given out until all are gone.

The children, the family, the grandchildren, even dad himself, will not be along. For they are not included in this invitation. It is a "Mothers' Party," exclusively, and The Constitution is going to confine it to mothers alone.

Stay-at-Homes Wanted.

In particular, The Constitution is anxious that those mothers whose lives have not included very many trips to the theater, who have not had many opportunities to go on little parties of their own, accept this invitation.

In order that none may be overlooked, arrangements have been made with the Black and White Club company, whereby a special fleet of their comfortable taxicabs will go out to the Old Ladies' Home in West End.

Chief Answers Call To Find Son Dead in Wreck

Chicago, May 10.—It was just another job in the regular day's work when fire truck company No. 23 was called today to a crossing of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad to help extract four bodies from the tangled mass of a wrecked automobile.

Captain Sylvester Sullivan, truck commander, directed the rescue as his men pulled two men, still alive, from the front trucks of the locomotive and dragged two more, both dead and mangled beyond recognition, from under the locomotive.

Two hours later, he learned one dead body was that of his son, Sylvester, Jr. The two found under the front trucks died later in hospital.

The train, carrying week-end passengers to Janesville, was picking up speed after clearing downtown tracks and shot around a curve and on the crossing at express speed. It caught the automobile squarely, tossed it 50 feet ahead and, catching it again, ground the car to bits.

themselves or in small parties in pursuit of some particular brand of fish, are at perfect liberty to follow their inclinations in this respect.

Among the extra attractions will be the trips to a point on the Gulf for surf bathing, an excursion to one of the big lumber mills of the county where the interesting points of the big logging operations in this section will be shown, a steamer trip on beautiful St. Andrews bay, a sacred band concert at Panama City Sunday night, the St. Andrews fish chowder supper already mentioned and a series of dances during the week nights.

One feature which Atlanta fishermen are expected to take advantage of is the snapper fishing in the Gulf. Arrangements can be made with the Panama City skippers for runs out to the snapper banks where the big fellows are awaiting a persuasive hook.

File Applications at Once.
Those desiring to go on The Constitution tour should file their applications as soon as possible with the highway department of the paper, first floor of The Constitution building, between the hours of 11 a. m. and 1 p. m., and to 7 o'clock.

The Constitution will make all hotel and boarding house reservations and at special rates have been secured, the cost of the trip will be very low. These rates run from $1.50 to $5 per day. American plan, which means including taxes.

An entrance fee of $5 per car and $2.50 per person is charged. This is for partially defraying the expense of arranging and conducting the tour, as a pledge of good faith in securing hotel reservations.

With the exception of transportation, the entire cost of the trip should not run higher than $25 for those who want to take advantage of the lowest hotel rates and not more than $50 for those desiring more elaborate accommodations.

To Leave Saturday.
The tour will leave Atlanta about 7 o'clock next Saturday morning. It will proceed in two divisions, each headed by a Constitution pathfinder and each with trouble cars to take care of the changes and any mechanical difficulties. The first division, traveling at a steady rate, will reach Panama City by noon the following day. The second division, taking an easy run, will arrive about 6 o'clock the same evening.

A complete motion picture history will be taken of the trip and the fishing adventures in Florida. This film, which is planned, will show each individual taking part in the tour, will later be shown for an entire week at Loew's Grand theater.

Banners will be provided for the front and rear of all cars and official celluloid badges will be given all tourists which will secure admission to the various entertainments provided.

MULLINS.

pective states. Dr. John F. Purser, of Atlanta, is president of this conference and will preside at the session which will continue through Tuesday. Among the prominent men and women who will attend this conference will be N. T. Tull, Mississippi; J. W. Beale, Missouri; B. W. Vining, Texas; S. H. Bennett, Alabama; S. E. Tull, Arkansas; Dr. Epps, South Carolina; W. M. Gilmore, North Carolina; C. N. Brittain, Florida; B. S. Bailey, Georgia; Mrs. Ida Stallworth, Alabama; Mrs. W. C. James, Alabama; Miss Laura Lee Patrick, Georgia; Mrs. W. J. Noel, Georgia.

The Atlanta Baptist council has arranged a mass meeting for laymen to be held in the city Auditorium Tuesday night which promises to be one of the most largely attended sessions of the entire convention. The speakers are two outstanding men of the south, Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, will be the first speaker, followed by Governor Clifford Walker. The second speaker will be Douglas Freeman, editor of The Richmond News-Leader, introduced by Dr. M. Ashley Jones. A splendid program of music will add to the attractiveness of this program. Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., city organizer, will play four organ solos, and John D. Hoffman and Mrs. James H. Whitte will sing solos. Colonel F. J. Paxon will reside at this meeting Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist convention, will conduct the opening devotional.

Woman's Union Meeting.
On Tuesday evening the women will hold the opening session of the Woman's Missionary union, auxiliary to the convention, at the Baptist Tabernacle. Speakers will be Miss Kathleen Mallory, of Birmingham; Mrs. W. C. James, president of the union, and Dr. W. O. Carver, professor of missions in the seminary at Louisville.

The field workers' conference, composed of secretaries of the Sunday school and R. Y. P. U. organizations of the seventeen states of the convention, will hold an annual meeting on Tuesday at the First Baptist church. Among the men who will be on this program are L. W. Wiley, Illinois; Bryan Robinson, Tennessee; E. F. Campbell, Arkansas; E. J. Wright, Virginia; Perry Morgan, North Carolina; T. H. Farmer, Oklahoma; W. H. Preston, Tennessee; Emmet Moore, Alabama; T. J. Wattle, South Carolina; J. J. Van Ness, Tennessee; G. W. Card, Tennessee, and Dr. Wallace Dussett, Texas.

On Tuesday afternoon George W. Anderson, secretary of Sunday school work in Georgia, will take the members of the field workers' conference to Stone Mountain for a pleasure trip.

The Southern Baptist Bible conference holds its first session Tuesday night at the Central Baptist church. Speakers will be Dr. W. L. Pickard, of Chattanooga, and Dr. Lincoln McCullough, of Oklahoma City. This conference will hold sessions early during the noon recess hour of the convention in the First Baptist church. This is the first time this conference has been held in connection with sessions of the convention. Leaders of the movement state that the emphasis in the meetings will be upon doctrinal questions. Dr. Victor I. Masters, of Kentucky, and Dr. T. P. Stafford, of Kansas City, are the leaders in this new organization.

Two Big Debates.
Mercer university debating teams will engage in two debates in Atlanta Tuesday night. One debate will be between Mercer and Wake Forest college and will be held in Wesley Memorial church. The other debate will be between Mercer and William Jewell college, and will be held in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. on Luckie street.

When the convention opens Wednesday morning the first order on the program will be the annual presidential address. This address this year will be of more than usual interest. It is pointed out in view of the fact that Dr. E. Y. Mullins is retiring from the presidency of the convention. He will deliver this address and then will yield the gavel to the new president, who will be elected immediately following the presidential address.

Mullins has prepared his address on the engaging questions now before the convention, under the subject, "The Mission of the Southern Baptist Convention."

It is likely that three or four men will be nominated for the presidency of the convention.

These progressive and "dry" delegates and McAdoo delegates are much less compact than the others. They have much less discipline. Their leaders are less able in the strategy of a convention floor, and the delegates themselves respond less readily to leadership. (The strength of the conservative democrats is and always has been their discipline. The 90 delegates from New York, or practically all of them, follow their leaders cheerfully. Much the same is true of the next largest state, Illinois. The conservative leaders having their delegates in big groups like this, are able to handle them more effectively on the convention floor.)

It follows that if and when it is clear that McAdoo cannot win, at that point there will be the greatest danger to the McAdoo wing of the party. Unless the McAdoo delegates and the other progressive and "dry" delegates can be swung in a group to whom it is to be the second choice of the McAdoo wing of the party, they will be in serious danger of being "run over" by their better-disciplined opponents.

Who Is Second Choice?
It is hard to say, in the first place, whether McAdoo and McAdoo's friends will be able to deliver his strength to a second choice. And if they should be able to deliver it, it is difficult to say who their second choice would be. It is difficult to say who the second choice of McAdoo personally would be.

Some of the McAdoo delegates hold strongly to Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, as their second choice. Some of them hold to Ralston, of Indiana, as their second choice, and some of them are for the democratic senate leader, Robinson, of Arkansas. A few of the more attached to more or less obscure western governors as their second choice.

If neither the second choice of the Smith forces nor the second choice of the McAdoo forces is able to win, the convention will then enter another stage, with both sides putting forward their third choices. It is difficult to say who their third choice would be. It is even more difficult to say who would be the third choice of the McAdoo forces.

Davis Is Dark Horse.
There are some men figuring in the race like John W. Davis and Senator Ralston, of Indiana, who conceivably might be put forward in the latter stages of the convention as the choice of either the Smith forces or the McAdoo forces. It goes without saying that any one who should have the good fortune to be third or fourth or fifth choice of both parties at the same time would be the winner. It might readily happen that the two factions could not agree on either Ralston or Davis—in which event yet more and more names would be put forward.

One source of strength that Senator Ralston has had he has recently lost. A good deal of the prediction that Ralston would be the choice has rested on the assumption that because he comes from the comparatively large doubtful state—doubtful, that is, in the election as between the democrats and republicans—Indiana, he could therefore presumably carry Indiana for the democrats.

But that asset has disappeared lately. With the republican governor of Indiana now in the Atlanta presidential election, the republican party in that state is in such condition that it can hardly hope to carry the state under any circumstances. And, since Indiana is safe for the democrats anyhow, this geographical reason for choosing Ralston disappears.

Three Objections to Smith.
The "objection" made by Governor Smith are three: The first is that he is associated with Tammany. Out of this there arises among democrats all over the country the apprehension that if Smith should be elected president, he would bring to Washington and would put in the appointive offices a lot of politicians of the Tammany kind. The second assumption is that Smith is a "wet" and that he would much with democratic leaders distant from New York, for they feel that one of the great needs of Washington just now is to fill the state with the highest type of men. With the recent cases of Fall, Daugherty and Forbes in mind, they think the democrats should give the country a demonstration of the ability of the party to fill all the offices with men of the type of Hughes, Hoover and Mellon.

The second factor that weighs against Smith is the assumption that the "wet" bulk of the rank and file of the democratic party outside the eastern states is "dry." Almost any delegate from the south who should go to the New York convention to fight for the nomination of a "wet" would lose caste at home. This is not quite so universally true of the west. In a few western states like Missouri and parts of the south other states the rank and file of the democratic party is not so implacably "dry" as in the south. But, broadly speaking, what is true of the south is true also of the west; and a democratic delegate from west of the Mississippi would be likely to lose caste at home if he should go to the New York convention and vote for a candidate for the presidency who is supposed to be a "wet."

Smith Is Catholic.
The third factor that weighs against Smith is the fact that he is a Catholic. Much public discussion assumes that this is the weightiest factor working against Smith. This is not true. It is a fact that the Ku Klux Klan movement is very strong in many sections of the country. In some sections the Ku Klux Klan is stronger locally than either political party. In some sections the Ku Klux Klan is able to number would add the southern delegates who are Underwood's own. Underwood, in short, is likely to be the second choice after Smith of the conservative wing of the party, and as such is likely to be able to register upward of 425 delegates.

The next speculation of interest is: who will be McAdoo's second choice? As to this it is less easy to be certain than about the second choice of the Smith delegates. Politicians, in fact, are not at all in agreement as to whom the McAdoo delegates will turn to, if and when it becomes clear that McAdoo himself cannot win. At just this point is a weakness of the McAdoo forces—not only a weakness of the McAdoo forces but a weakness of all the progressive and "dry" forces, if all the forces opposed to the nomination of a conservative.

Progressives Not Compact.
These progressive and "dry" delegates and McAdoo delegates are much less compact than the others. They have much less discipline. Their leaders are less able in the strategy of a convention floor, and the delegates themselves respond less readily to leadership. It is a fact that the Ku Klux Klan movement is very strong in many sections of the country. In some sections the Ku Klux Klan is stronger locally than either political party. In some sections the Ku Klux Klan is able to stage demonstrations and to collect funds from its members to a degree that is the envy of both the republicans and the democratic parties. At the same time, the delegations to the New York democratic convention who are now almost all elected are known to contain comparatively few men who have for themselves personally any objection to Smith on the ground that he is a Catholic. Apart from their personal feeling, they might be moved to oppose Smith because of the fear that as a Catholic he might lose some states in the election in November that they might otherwise go democratic.

Perhaps the most interesting of the questions now being discussed by democratic leaders is this: If Smith should be nominated, what would the south do, and the southwest? In these discussions it is frequently put forward as a condition which must be taken into account that if the democrats should nominate a Catholic, the southern and southwestern states which are normally overwhelmingly democratic would rebel. The allegation is that these states would either go republican or else would organize a third party.

Smith Forces Compact.
If the answer to this question could be surely known, it would have much weight on the outcome of the New York convention. The democratic leaders behind Smith are able and determined men. If they could know positively that in the election in November the southern and southwestern democratic states would go on as usual and support the candidate, even though it were Smith—in that event the Smith leaders might decide to take a chance and determine to hold the convention in session for two weeks, or any other length of time necessary to nominate Smith. This could happen. The Smith forces are going to be the most compact group in the convention. They are the sort of delegates who will almost surely submit to discipline cheerfully. They follow their leaders faithfully. Most of them come from states close to New York and will be less concerned than the others by the delay and expense of a prolonged convention. The Smith forces are pretty sure going to be large enough and compact enough to veto the nomination of any one against whom they have implacable hostility. It would be easy to pass from that ability to the ability to deadlock the convention and prolong it until it wears itself out on a slogan of "Smith or nobody."

Complete Dark Horse?
One of the possibilities of the coming New York convention is the nomination of a complete "dark horse," an unknown. It is possible for the convention to give forth as sensational a surprise as the classic case of Bryan's first nomination. After the opening stages this is going to be a wide open convention of the old-fashioned kind. The primaries and the battle of "instructions" have cut little figure in the present democratic race. Of all the 1,098 delegates to the convention not more than 400 are really "instructed" in any binding sense. Of these most are instructed for McAdoo. If the convention should reach a stage where McAdoo is out of it, practically the whole body of delegates will be free to vote for whomever they choose on the basis of events arising within the convention itself.

coin actually boarded the train and searched for him. But Lincoln, guarded by Pinkerton, eluded his enemies and slipped into Washington by another route, wholly unannounced.

Turning to another file, Webster said it contained the complete undecoded record of the activities of Operative James McFarland with the Molly Maguire gangs in the coal fields of Pennsylvania. Another file had a record of how Pinkerton fought the Jesse James gang and how the depredations of the famous James boys finally were curbed.

Famous Records in Files.
"If the world could know the secrets contained in these files, it would learn the truth about many incidents which have been presented to the public in an entirely different light," Webster said. "Many times Pinkerton was called upon by monarchs, presidents, men high in governmental, social, business and political life, to solve difficulties or suppress a scandal which was brewing. And some of these difficulties had international ramifications."

Transferred to the new quarters, the records were filed away in vaults. And they will remain there undisturbed, for the Pinkertons do not intend that the secrets written into hundreds of documents ever shall be seen by eyes for which they were not intended.

He may have clenched his hard fists and set his chin when the count explored what American men would consider the depths of human degradation by selling a sensational story of his courtship and romance with the colonel's daughter. He may have longed to open his nurse and help his child when Milly and the count were low in funds and Salm did not deign to pawn her jewels so that he might continue to dine and dress well.

Colonel Bided His Time.
But still the colonel waited until he thought the time was right. Then he came to Paris and, from all appearances, put an end to the unhappy adventure of his child.

The colonel and Millicent are at sea now. They are registered on the roll of La France as "Colonel Rogers and daughter." There is nothing on the big book, filled with famous and powerful names, about "Countess Salm."

At any rate, the colonel seems to have chosen the psychological moment for negotiations and now he has his daughter back—a sad, disillusioned, poor little rich girl who defied her father for a time, but went back to his arms after all.

ARMY PLANE OFF TO NORTH MARTIN

San Francisco, May 10.—First Lieut. E. S. Tonkin, army aviator, and Sergt. L. C. Cooper, observer, left today in an army airplane to aid in the search for Major Frederick L. Martin, missing leader in the army around-the-world flight.

They hope to make a one-day flight to Seattle. At that point, their airplane and equipment will be loaded onto the coast guard cutter Bear, which is expected to sail from Seattle on Monday for Chignik, Alaska.

FLYERS ARE RESTING UNTIL NEXT JUMP

Bremerton, Wash., May 10.—On Atsu Island, farthest west bit of land belonging to North America, three pilots and three machines of the United States army air service, rested tonight, awaiting the moment when they can take the longest jump of a flight around the earth, which they began March 17.

In the meantime, on the Alaska peninsula, and in the waters of the Pacific ocean southward and the ice of the Bering sea northward, 1,300 miles eastward from the pausing adventurers, a plodding search continued for their commander, Major Frederick L. Martin, missing since he took the air ten days ago with his mechanic, Staff Sergeant Alvin L. Harvey, at Chignik, Alaska.

The radio at the Puget Sound navy yard here, through whose hissing and spurring the world has followed the four fliers since they left Sitka, Alaska, April 13, in four machines, together, only to part company two days later between Sitka, Alaska, and Chignik, has brought no word of either part of the severed squadron since early morning.

It was believed here that the fliers on Atsu, commanded now by Lieut. James H. Smith, would use several days preparing for their flight of 875 miles to the Kurile Islands of Japan. Well rested by hunting, fishing, hiking and sailing on Atsu Island, they yesterday did the 530 miles to Atsu in 10 hours and 15 minutes.

For the leap to Japan, the stopping point of which is on Paramushiro Island, one of the Kuriles, at the very north of the empire, elaborate preparations have been in progress for months.

The United States navy and two of the Japanese navy have been hovering in the Kuriles waiting for the American aviators. The United States fisheries boat Eider received the fliers at Atsu and the United States coast guard cutter Haide saw them off at Atka.

MATZENAUER RECORDS ARE MADE BY VICTOR

Three graces of song lead the program this week, a great soprano, a great contralto and a great violinist. The depth of Margarete Matzenauer's splendid voice displays itself in two great contralto numbers from Italian opera. You have heard them, perhaps. Here, however, is Matzenauer's singing them to the accompaniment of the gypsy mother in "Il Trovatore," "Stride la vampa" (Fierce Flaming Are Soaring), and the sinister drinking song of "Lucerna Borghese," the invitation to the poisoned cup.

We have missed Morini, and delight to hear this latest record of hers. Sarasate's dazzling violin fantasia on two themes from "Carmen" is her first of a series, played with an orchestra, and calling for all the resources of the violin. On the other side is Zarecky's "Mazurka," a thing of vigor.

Ponselle sings two classic lullabies this week. "A Cradle Song," by Brahms is a fine example of melody, construction, tenderness and at the same time noble. "Lullaby," by Cyril Scott, is warm and luscious, embodying a single, brief theme.

BOSTON TO ENTERTAIN 1925 JUNIOR LEAGUE

Denver, Colo., May 10.—Boston today was selected as the convention city for the 1925 convention of the National Junior League by delegates in attendance here at the annual conference.

Miss Cornelia Keeble, of Nashville, was elected a vice president for the southeastern district.

She Says: "I Am Thin"

Her Friend Says: "She Is Skinny"

If she only knew that she could put on at least 5 pounds of good, healthy flesh in 30 days she wouldn't be worrying about her peaked face and run-down looks.

She has tried Cod Liver Oil, but the ill-smelling, nasty tasting stuff upset her stomach and made her feel worse than before.

Doctors and good pharmacists know that Cod Liver Oil is full of vitamins that make flesh, create appetite, build up the power to resist disease and a d disease and nervousness.

But it's her terrible tasting stuff and every day fewer people are taking it for doctors are prescribing and the people are fast learning that they can get better results with McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, which Jacobs Pharmacy Co., E. H. Cone, Inc., and druggists all over the country are having a tremendous demand for.

It's a wonderful rebuilding medicine for children, especially after sickness, and sixty tablets only cost 60 cents.

One woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days and if any skinny man or woman can't put on 5 pounds in 30 days, your druggist will gladly return the purchase price.

Get McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablets.—(adv.)

Atlanta Women Launch Movement To Erect "Mothers' Building" at Berry School for Girls

Sketch of $100,000 "Mothers' building" which is proposed for the Berry School for Girls at Rome. The project is backed by Atlanta women who declare its success assured. The drawing was prepared by Samuel Inman Cooper in the office of A. Ten Eyck Brown.

While sons and daughters of the nation pay homage today to motherhood, Georgia's observance is quickened by announcement that a group of mothers of Atlanta recently have set in motion plans to erect on the campus of the Martha Berry school, at Rome, what is believed to be the first mother's building in the world.

This tribute—rather than a memorial—had its inception in the hearts of these women during the observance here of Easter, and its gripping appeal is meeting culmination in announcement of full and complete details of this most unique and appropriate tribute.

It is considered particularly fitting that such a thought should have expression on a day when the entire nation pays homage to its mothers. Its fitness is emphasized by the fact that the plan was conceived during observance of Easter—a season devoted to love, sacrifice and humility.

Plan $100,000 Building.
Thus, a group of Atlanta women—those who have requested that their names be withheld—goes the credit for inauguration of a movement, which soon will have expression in a material tribute to mothers—a magnificent $100,000 structure, fashioned after the elegant and imposing colonial homes of the Southland, and including the spacious sitting room and massive mantelpiece so characteristic of homes of a half-century ago.

And above this mantelpiece will be hung a portrait of a mother. The building will be so constructed as to embody all the things which will inspire thoughts of beauty in motherhood and a reverence for mothers.

The building will be the home of from 100 to 125 girls, and the thought uppermost in its erection is the influence it will have upon these girls in later years when they shall have graduated from the school, left the home and taken their places as wives and mothers.

WOMEN OR BANDITS FREE WORTH $35,000

Chicago, May 10.—Seven bandits dashed up to the village postoffice at Indiana Harbor, Ind., in an automobile today, held up five postoffice employees, snatched four registered pouches of mail from among several sacks just being delivered to the postoffice, and escaped with cash estimated at $35,000 without firing a shot.

The bandits sped toward Chicago with their loot. Scores of Indiana and Illinois detectives, deputy sheriffs and policemen were soon on their trail, but tonight the bandits apparently had eluded pursuit. The principal consisted of two parcels of currency consigned by the federal reserve bank here to the United States National bank at Indiana Harbor and intended to meet payrolls of factories in the vicinity.

The truck containing the mail had just arrived at the rear of the postoffice from the station. The bandit apparently followed the mail truck from the station, and as postal employees started to unload the sacks, the bandits leaped from their machine with drawn pistols. Three of the bandits hurriedly sorted the pouches, picking out the registered sacks which they tossed into their automobile, the entire proceeding consuming scarcely more than two minutes.

The robbery was perpetrated similar to that at Harvey, Ill., last March, when bandits obtained $100,000.

COOLIDGE COMMENTS BETTER HOMES WEEK.
Washington, May 10.—Nationwide celebration of "Better Homes Week" was opened by President Coolidge today with an address broadcast by radio from the White House, in which the executive urged cooperation of women's clubs, civic and commercial organizations, and of the pulpit and press in a movement to strengthen and improve the home.

"The American home is the source of our national well-being," the president said. "It is the high traditions of service and integrity are fostered. From the true home there emerges respect for the rights of others, and the habit of cooperating for worthy ends. Through sharing its common enterprises and common sacrifices, the child develops that sturdiness of character which distinguishes the manhood and womanhood of our land."

Recall Attention to Home.
"In recent years, the remarkable development of our material resources, of human invention and of human opportunity, have turned the attention of many from the home to other fields of engrossing interest. It has been necessary to recall public attention to the home, lest its influence and its finer values be impaired."

"I have therefore been well pleased to note the founding of the movement for better homes in America under the inspiring leadership of Mrs. William Brown Meloney, and have been happy to serve as chairman of its advisory council. The reorganization and program of the movement I have followed with deep interest, realizing the significance to the nation of a widespread movement to strengthen and improve the home."

Cites Demonstrations.
"Thus, at the opening of better homes week, I am glad to call attention to the demonstrations planned for such loyalty and interested zeal by the better homes committees of hundreds of American cities and villages, and to commend as a national service the cooperation of the women's clubs, civic and commercial associations and of the pulpit and the press in this significant undertaking. Such initiative, enterprise and devotion should profoundly influence the home life of America, and should make firm the high ideals which characterize our nation."

with an extra detachment of traffic officers to regulate the passage of cars. An automobile was admitted to the tube every 10 seconds.

The blockade of the tubes resulted from a jam of city-bound traffic on the street leading to the tunnels. Two lines of automobiles were blocked the entire length and dead-end cars soon poisoned the air. Many motorists abandoned their cars and staggered from the tubes, while pedestrians, overcome while walking through, were carried off by first aid crews from the United States bureau of mines and members of the city fire department. While a number were taken to hospitals it was expected that all would recover.

Engineers in charge of the tunnels were notified that D. R. Levy, an expert in tunnel ventilation, would arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow from New York to advise in the problem of ventilating the tubes.

Atlantan Invents Machine For Motor Reconditioning

New and portable motor cylinder rebores machine, invented by an Atlanta man, E. H. Odom, (shown at upper left) which is expected to revolutionize the motor reconditioning business in the United States.

An invention which, it is declared by all automobile mechanics and engineers who have seen it, will revolutionize the motor reconditioning business, has been perfected recently by an Atlanta man, E. H. Odom, founder and president of the E. H. Odom Brothers company. This is a compact machine for rebores motor cylinders and is remarkable for its simplicity. It is portable, and may be used by any automobile mechanic.

The machine can be run either by an electric motor or by hand. It is not necessary to take the motor out of the automobile in order to rebores it. The new machine is placed on top of the cylinders and the rebores is accomplished in a very short time.

The machine has been demonstrated to several motor car manufacturing companies as well as to the automobile department of the Georgia School of Technology. Mr. Bartlett, instructor of this department, gave the invention his hearty endorsement after viewing it in operation.

The demand for this machine has become so large that it has been necessary to increase the capital stock of the E. H. Odom Brothers company, in order to enlarge manufacturing facilities. At a recent meeting it was unanimously decided to increase the capitalization from $20,000 to $250,000. A resolution authorizing the purchase of a factory site on Edgewood avenue, where the manufacture of the new machine will be undertaken on a large scale, also was adopted.

Application for patent has been made to Washington by Mr. Odom. Examination of the patent office records showed, it is said, that this product of an Atlanta man's ingenuity, is the only practical, portable machine for reconditioning of motor cylinders yet made in the United States.

CREIGHTON TO SPEAK TO EMORY STUDENTS
Emory University, Ga., May 10.—(Special.)—Dr. E. F. Creighton, chief consulting engineer of the General Electric company, will appear at Emory university during a series of lectures under the auspices of the Emory Student Lecture association next year, according to an announcement made today by Dr. J. R. Peebles, head of the department of engineering at Emory university.

Dr. Creighton succeeded Dr. C. P. Eganetz as engineer of the General Electric company, and it is due to the efforts of Professor Peebles, who studied under both Drs. Creighton and Eganetz, that his services are secured by the Emory association.

Buy Lumber Trucks.
Sparta, Ga., May 10.—(Special.)—Numbers of new lumber trucks are being purchased in this county which will be used to convey the output of many sawmills over the county, to the planning mills here. These trucks are of large tonnage and the lumbermen expect to move a large amount of lumber during the summer months before the bad weather of next winter sets in.

M'CLELLAND IN RACE FOR SUPERIOR COURT
Judge L. F. McClelland, of the municipal court bench of Atlanta, Saturday announced his candidacy for the Fulton superior court judgeship now filled by Judge Howard, who has announced that he will be a candidate to succeed himself.

Judge McClelland has occupied the municipal court bench for the past ten years, being elected soon after the court was established. Previously he was in active practice of the law in Atlanta for 15 years.

He was born in Conyers, Ga., in 1887. At the age of 10 he went to work as a cash boy for the J. M. High company, of Atlanta, and later held various responsible positions with that firm. He was admitted to the bar in May, 1908.

In closing his formal announcement, Judge McClelland says he does not see how a candidate for a judgeship can have a formal platform, beyond the basic pledge that he will, if elected, fill the office honestly, fearlessly and to the utmost of his ability.

"My Dear Mrs. Newport: I have received a copy of the 'T. S. S. News and Views' for April, 1924, which describes particularly the development and presentation of the memorial to your boys who were lost in the war. I thank you for this copy and congratulate you upon the excellent work which it represents by teachers and children. It is a fine piece of work and I am glad to call it to the attention of our students as a good project, which may suggest similar lines of work to them.

THE CONSTITUTION'S REAL ESTATE REVIEW

CONDUCTED IN THE INTEREST OF THE DEVELOPMENT OF ATLANTA AND THE SOUTH

Miller's Survey Shows Total Of $55,000,000 in South

More than $55,000,000 in building was recorded in 105 cities of sixteen southern states for the month of April, according to figures compiled by the survey department of G. L. Miller & Company, local real estate mortgage bond house. This figure is four millions less than that recorded in the same area in 1923, but the discrepancy is more than accounted for by a seven million dollar loss shown by Washington.

The month was featured by the showing of Louisville, Ky., which went into first place with $4,650,000, including a million and a half hotel, a million and a quarter Ford assembly plant, a large apartment and a large warehouse. Miami and Miami Beach, Fla., also furnished a sensation by announcing a combined total of three millions. Of the million dollars credited to the beach, more than half went into residences, with the Pennsylvania hotel being the only large single unit.

Big Atlanta Building. Tampa, Fla., also made a big showing with almost a million and a half total, which included a $700,000 hotel and a $400,000 office building. Nashville reported a $550,000 apartment hotel. Richmond had a $325,000 apartment structure and Atlanta had one costing $400,000. Other notable business and public buildings reported included a high school and grammar school at Gaffney, S. C., $300,000; a $200,000 department store at Augusta, Ga.; a $300,000 Baptist church at Jackson, Miss.; a college library, $200,000, and an orphanage dormitory, $80,000, at Raleigh, N. C.; a court house, $375,000, at Wilson, N. C.; a $100,000 packing plant and a $100,000 incinerator at Asheville, N. C.; and a Y. M. C. A. building costing $125,000 at Baton Rouge.

Leading cities for April are Louisville, $4,650,000; Baltimore, $4,551,040; Washington, $3,408,120; St. Louis, $2,810,065; Dallas, $2,221,390; Richmond, $2,193,830; Kansas City, $2,148,750; Huntington, $2,065,068; Houston, $1,961,314; Houston metropolitan area, $2,053,964; Miami, $1,915,342; Memphis, $1,914,250; New Orleans, $1,512,000; Atlanta, $1,540,235; Tampa, $1,472,088; Miami Beach, $1,074,450; Birmingham, $1,064,745.

Nashville, $823,542; Tulsa, $813,775; San Antonio, $717,567; Norfolk, $707,374; Knoxville, $662,676; Fort Worth, $661,302; Winston-Salem, $630,322; Raleigh, $575,375; Charleston, W. Va., $523,324; Jacksonville, $517,192; Charlotte, $505,430.

The Realtor and the Investor

BY W. I. HOLLINGSWORTH

Former Director National Association of Real Estate Boards

It is an old saying that the basis of business transactions is confidence. Therefore, may we not say that confidence is the link of span that brings together the realtor and the investor. This confidence which is necessary to be established in the mind of the investor has been very much strengthened through the organization of the realty boards, both local, state and national.

The function of the realty boards has been manifold. They have created in the mind of the realtor that he owes an obligation not only to himself, but to the investor; that he must fit himself for the duties and obligations of his profession; and that if he expects the investor to have confidence in himself—confidence that he is going to give the investor a square deal.

Present Whole Truth.

That is to say, that he will present all the facts, the truth and the whole truth concerning the properties in question; that he will not try to hide himself, through investigation and through all the many channels at his command to the end that he may possess knowledge of the facts concerning not only the property in question but the possibilities both for and against the future of this property.

The realty boards have also, in a great measure, drawn the realtor closer to each other, at which time they have not only discussed the ethical but agreed that a code of ethics must be maintained in the real estate business, (which I am pleased to say are as high as that of any other profession); but it has also brought about a much better acquaintance and clearer understanding of the men of the profession to the extent that they themselves are capable of giving much needed advice to the investor.

There is no other profession in which the fiduciary relations between the profession and the client are equal to that of the realtor, for in our profession in many instances we represent both the buyer and the seller. This of itself demands that we have an established code of ethics and live strictly within their limits.

A Desirable Attitude. It is very pleasing to note that there is a growing tendency among investors to regard their realtor very much in the same light as they do their other professional advisers—namely their banker, their lawyer and their doctor. Just as the other professions can serve their clients better through an intimate knowledge of their conditions, needs and desires, so can a realtor, on account of his personal knowledge and intimate acquaintance which comes only through business and friendly contact for a number of years, care for the needs of his client better than some one who is not so well acquainted and who does not take the same personal interest in him as does his recognized realty adviser.

It is safe to predict that in the next decade there will be a most remarkable progress made toward establishing this ideal relationship between realtor and investor.

King Auction Co.

To Conduct Sale

Wednesday Next

An auction sale of a large parcel of Atlanta residential property, which is expected to prove of great interest to Atlanta real estate and business men, and of much value to home-seekers, will be held next Wednesday, May 14, on DeFoor avenue, just off Howell Mill road.

This sale will be conducted by the well known land auction house of J. P. King Auction company, and it will be held for the purpose of selling something like 80 choice residence lots and four lovely six-room bungalows. The sale will begin promptly at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, and will continue until each of the lots and the homes have been sold.

In charge of this sale will be H. H. Pierce, general manager of the King Auction, who is looked upon as one of the most successful auctioneers in the Atlanta real estate world. Mr. Pierce, in a talk with the writer, called attention to the very high potential value of the lots that will be offered for sale next Wednesday.

"Not only are these homesites in the very heart of one of Atlanta's most steadily advancing districts," said Mr. Pierce, "but they are situated in such manner as to render them more than delightful as sites for modern residences of the moderate price. No prospective home owner who wishes for choice locations at prices which will perhaps never again be offered can afford to miss this sale. In addition to the many beautiful lots we are going to offer, there are four beautiful bungalows, each of the handsomest and most modern type. These homes are ready for the buyer to move right into as soon as the transaction is completed, and this sale presents a rare opportunity for the man who is in need of a high-class home on short notice.

Handsome Modern Residences on Atlanta Habersham Road

The above residence scenes, taken by The Constitution staff photographer, are among the many reasons for Atlanta's reputation as the "city of beautiful homes." The above homes, owned by prominent Atlanta citizens, are located on Habersham drive, one of the most beautiful and famous of the many thoroughfares traversing Atlanta's splendid residence districts. Magnificent modern homes of many types of architecture are to be seen, surrounded in almost every instance by lovely grounds on many of the ribbon-like drives extending in all directions. The residence districts on Atlanta's north side are said to compare with those of any city in America and the splendid aspect of these beautifully-kept homes is said to be a source of surprise and delight to visitors to the city.

Mr. Pierce urges all who wish for homes in Atlanta—homes in the choicest locations—to attend the coming auction, assuring those who purchase either the vacant lots or the completed bungalows that they stand the best possible chance of securing splendid values for their money. The sale will be conducted on the property, which can be reached by taking the Howell Mill road cars, getting off at DeFoor avenue and walking two blocks west.

Seen From the Auction Block BY THE AUCTIONEER

"BUSINESS GOOD," SAYS PAUL MADDOX.

After selling two handsome houses in one day during the past week, Paul Maddox, leading salesman on the staff of the Dolvin Realty company, pronounces business in local realty circles as "good."

OWENS-IRWIN CO. MOVE TO NEW QUARTERS.

Announcement was made during the past week that the Owens-Irwin Realty company, well-known real estate firm, have removed their offices from 1204 Fourth National Bank building to 1520, same building.

"BUSINESS EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD," SAY EVANS & DODD.

Because of many transactions that have resulted from splendid weather of the past few days, Evans & Dodd, prominent local realty firm, pronounce business for this season to be "exceptionally good." This well-known firm, with a large list of properties and a wide clientele, is said to enjoy a constantly increasing business.

COLONIAL COURT TO BE HANDSOME APARTMENT.

Much interest centers in the announcement made recently with reference to the splendid new apartment that is to be erected on Ponce de Leon avenue by A. H. Harper and J. F. Evans, owners of the building. The name of the new structure, which is to be thoroughly modern, is the "Colonial Court," and its handsome lines were designed by W. C. Mundy, well-known local architect in the Grant building. The financing of the Colonial Court apartment was done by Tilson & McKinney, who floated a bond issue for the construction, and the real estate firm of J. H. Ewing & Sons will have sole charge of the renting. The apartment will be one of the most luxurious type, and it is expected to add greatly to the handsome aspect of that part of the city.

CANNON RETURNS FROM VISIT TO SOUTH GEORGIA.

Fred Cannon, popular member of the sales staff of J. H. Ewing & Sons, real estate firm, has returned from a brief visit to the southern portion of the state, which he made last week in the interest of his firm.

MANY HOUSES SOLD BY POPULAR FIRM.

Six handsome residences were disposed of through the real estate agency of F. P. & George J. Morris during the past few days, according to announcements made by that popular firm. Increasing activity in the local home market is reported by the house with each week, and it is declared that additions to its already large sales staff are contemplated by this house.

In making the announcements regarding the splendid business enjoyed by the firm during the past week, it was stated that A. R. McDermott led the sales force during that period.

LEMMON & PASCHALL EXPECT INCREASING BUSINESS. Adding to the sales staff of the concern Charles Paschall, of the Lemmon & Paschall Realty company, gives it as his conviction that real estate activity in Atlanta will greatly increase with the coming of summer. This firm is said to have a large clientele, and to enjoy great popularity.

CONE REMOVES FROM ATLANTA TRUST BUILDING. John T. Cone, well-known real estate man, who has maintained offices for some time in the Atlanta Trust company building, has removed to quarters in the Grant building, according to recent announcements.

OLIVER SMITH ON "SICK LIST."

Friends of Oliver Smith, well-known Atlanta real estate man, will be glad to learn that he is improving from a recent illness that confined him to his room.

"VEDADODALE" PROVING POPULAR, SAYS MARSHBURN.

Since the opening of Vedadodale, the splendid residence subdivision close to Piedmont park, the real estate firm of N. E. Marshburn company announces the sale of a large number of beautiful home sites. There is perhaps not a more attractive residence district to be found on the north side than this handsome parcel, which contains 32 choice residence locations. The subdivision is within a block of Piedmont park, practically opposite the site of the Boys' High school, and is served with a number of transportation lines and splendidly paved driveways.

"We have had the most wonderful success with Vedadodale," said Mr. Marshburn, "and we do not hesitate to assure clients that they are receiving the highest value for their money in purchasing residence sites in this beautiful subdivision. Every one of the 32 lots are beautifully situated, and they have every advantage that could be desired." The choice location of the subdivision and its natural advantages, coupled with its many modern improvements, make it almost ideal as a home district, and it is expected that all the fine lots will be disposed of within a short time.

DIXIE C. FREEMAN OUT OF CITY ON BUSINESS.

Leaving the city on a business tour, Dixie C. Freeman, well-known Atlanta real estate man, with offices in the Healey building, returned to Atlanta the latter part of the week.

HARLESS-REESE COMPANY IN NEW QUARTERS.

Because of increased business, necessitating larger quarters, the popular real estate firm of Harless-Reese company have secured additional rooms in the Healey building.

MARSHBURN ATTENDED BALL GAME FRIDAY.

Keeping up his reputation as one of the "faithful" among Atlanta baseball fans, Ned Marshburn, junior member of the N. E. Marshburn company, was present at the game last Friday, rooting for his home team and pulling, as usual, for Atlanta.

HURST MAKES LARGE SALE FOR CALHOUN.

Reporting business to be in a splendidly active state, and predicting greater activity for the near future, Sales Manager Hurst, of the Calhoun company, is reported as having closed a number of big transactions for his company within the past few days. One sale to Mr. Hurst's credit totaled $100,000, it was stated.

CRIDER HIGHLY OPTIMISTIC OVER REALTY OUTLOOK. Harry J. Crider, well-known as a member of the local realty profession, gave out a decidedly optimistic note during the past week, declaring the Atlanta realty market to be in splendid shape, with much activity and the promise of greater business for the coming summer.

REALTORS APPROVE OF THE SMITH CLASSIFIED SYSTEM. Many testimonials have been received by Manager Howard Haire, of

The Constitution classified advertising department, in which various members of the local real estate fraternity express themselves as highly pleased with results that have been produced by ads inserted in The Constitution since the Smith A-B-C system was inaugurated.

Not only has there been a general expression to the effect that a more modern and metropolitan aspect has been given to the advertising columns of the paper, but statements are also general that greater and quicker results are produced by the new system.

SALMON & CO. PREPARE FOR BIG SUCCESS.

With two splendid subdivisions recently opened on Atlanta's beautiful north side, the Jack Salmon Realty company is preparing to enter a campaign of selling through which they expect to dispose of a large number of attractive home sites. The new residence sections, lying adjacent to Ansley park, and in close proximity to the Morningside development, contains some of the most beautiful home locations to be found in and around the city, it has been stated.

PREACHER HOME PLAN ALMOST COMPLETE.

Contrary to the proverbial "shoemaker and his last," G. Lloyd Preacher, head of the well known firm of architects and engineers, of Atlanta, will not be content to design and build splendid homes and buildings for others, neglecting to provide for himself and family by his talents and genius. On the other hand, Mr. Preacher, who has drafted the designs for many of the most magnificent structures that have been erected in the south during the past few years, has taken time and devoted his talent to the planning of a home for himself and family that is expected to be one of the most beautiful and attractive residences in the city, if not the south.

Plans for Mr. Preacher's home, which are being completed in the company's big office in the Healey building, will be turned over to the contractors for bids within a short time, and the handsome home is expected to be ready for occupancy by the coming winter. No intimation has been given as to the style of the

WITH DOLVIN CO.

J. T. WILKINS.

Announcement was made Saturday that J. T. Wilkins, well-known citizen of Atlanta, has joined the staff of the Dolvin Realty company.

Mr. Wilkins, serving for some time as an attaché of the Atlanta municipal court, added thousands of friends to his list, and he will doubtless receive many congratulations and well wishes upon the announcement of his new business connection.

residence, but it is declared that it will be of a distinctive type, appropriate to its location and artistic in its design. A picture of the splendid home is promised the readers of The Constitution Real Estate Review at an early date.

FISCHER RETURNS FROM ST. SIMONS FISHING TRIP. Carl H. Fischer, well known local real estate man, who has been on a short vacation to St. Simons Island, returned to his office during the past week, and has taken up his active duties again. Mr. Fischer, who loves the salt air and the sound of the breakers upon the beach, is building for himself and family a beautiful home on St. Simons Island, where he plans to spend a large proportion of his time during the summer months.

Mr. D. Reynolds, in charge of the office during the absence of Mr. Fischer, reported to his chief on the latter's return that business was progressing "as usual." The success of the Constitution ads, according to Mr. Reynolds, serving to sell homes and stimulate other transactions in the most satisfying manner.

CONSTITUTION ADS BRING BATTLE BIG BUSINESS.

Characterizing the classified pages of The Constitution "a real help in time of need," Joe J. Battle, of the company hearing, declared during the past week that he has succeeded in leasing a record-breaking number of the choice apartments handled by his firm. "The success of our department in leasing so many apartments recently," said Mr. Battle, "has exceeded our expectations, despite the very active demand for such accommodations, and we attribute the many successful negotiations in a great way to The Constitution classified ads, which we use in The Constitution frequently and consistently."

The house of Weyman & Connors handles a number of the most attractive apartments and residences in the city, and its business is said to be increasing steadily.

CLINE SPORTS ESSEX AUTOMOBILE.

Finding it essential to have a "smart little car" that will respond with all six cylinders when he steps on the gas in order to keep up with the big demand for Atlanta residence property, R. A. Cline, of the firm of F. P. and George J. Morris, has closed a deal, and is to be seen by his more or less envious friends driving his "prospects" back and forth to inspect the properties on his company's lots.

TAKES CHARGE OF BROKERAGE DEPARTMENT.

W. C. Wiggins, one of the best-known business brokers in the city, has taken charge of the business brokerage department of the firm of George W. Ware. Mr. Wiggins was formerly of the same department with the firm of Ware & Harper, and is said to be well versed in business values in the city. He is an Atlanta man and has made a host of friends here.

The firm of George W. Ware, with offices in the Atlanta National Bank building, is one of the largest brokerage and real estate firms in the south. Over sixty businesses have been sold by the company in the past eight months. Connected with the company is George W. Ware, J. W. Rountree, G. L. Miller, W. P. Loftis and R. H. Williamson.

Handsome New Apartment for Macon

Financed by the Atlanta office of S. W. Straus company, the beautiful Massee Apartments, shown above, will be immediately erected in the Central City. The Massee will be the largest and most modern apartment in Macon.

Construction work was started last week on the Massee apartment building, College street, between Georgia avenue and Jones street, Macon. This building is owned by the Massee Apartments, Inc., a holding company, recently organized by W. J. and O. J. Massee, Jr., owners of the Bloch Brick company. It will be the first thoroughly modern, fire-proof, eight-story apartment building in Macon. The land and structure complete will be valued by the owners at about $1,500,000. The site is in the heart of the city's best residential section, is one of the highest points and it is considered a most desirable location for a building of this type. The general contractors and builders are the Southern Ferro Concrete company, of Atlanta. The architects are Hentz, Reid & Alder, also of Atlanta.

S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten an issue of $250,000 first mortgage, 6 1/2 per cent, serial coupon gold bonds of the Massee Apartments, Inc., secured by the land and building. The bonds are the direct obligation of the borrowing corporation. There will be 66 suites of from one to four rooms each, partly housekeeping and partly non-housekeeping. Two high speed electric elevators will serve the upper floors and the housekeeping suites will be equipped with every modern convenience for simplified housekeeping. The non-housekeeping suites will afford all of the advantages of an apartment hotel, the first floor being arranged with a large lobby, office, reception rooms and restaurant. Back of the building there are being developed several modern garages, which will be available for tenants in the Massee apartments.

Architecturally, the building will be one of the most attractive in the city. There will be a large main entrance, in front of which, stretching along the entire building, a wide paved formal terrace will add to the handsome aspect of the building. A few steps, leading from the terrace to a broad lawn, crossing a wide lawn to College street,

New Home of Wright & Co., Whitehall St.

Splendid new building on Whitehall Street, near McDaniel, leased to the Wright Co., well-known hotel equipment concern, through the Draper-Owens Realty Company.

The Wright Company, Inc., manufacturers and distributors of kitchen and dining room equipment for hotels, restaurants and public institutions, will occupy its new building now in course of erection at 425 Whitehall street about the first of June.

This building is being erected to meet the particular requirements of the business and when completed will be the largest and most complete structure devoted to kitchen equipment. The building is three stories in height with full basement, giving a total floor area available of over 45,000 square feet. The first floor will be devoted to show rooms and shipping; the second will have the manufacturing department, draughting department and general offices; stock rooms will be located in the basement and on the third floor.

The manufacturing department is a new addition to the company's facilities. Special equipment to measure, sink, steam tables, serving tables, sinks, urns, cafeteria equipment and similar items will be turned out in the plant to meet specifications of southern hotels and restaurants. A kitchen planning department is also maintained to assist architects and contractors in laying out kitchens, serving rooms and special facilities in the most approved and scientific manner.

Splendid Business Record.

The Wright company was founded about eight years ago in a small way, and has experienced an unusual growth since that time. It now ranks with the first five institutions of its kind in the United States and is the leading equipment house of the south.

Its present home is at 185 Peachtree street.

Max Wright is president and general manager of the company. Louis Wright, the vice president, is also head of the planning department and is regarded as one of the foremost kitchen equipment men in the country. The company has recently equipped some of the largest hotels, cafeterias and institutions in the south, including the Cecil hotel, the Henry Grady and Pershing Point, in Atlanta; the Wesley Memorial hospital, the University of North Carolina, Florida College for Women, Kilby prison, at Montgomery, the S. & W. cafeteria system of North Carolina, and many similar institutions.

The new Wright building is being constructed by the Massell construction company, and was sold by the Massell interests to the Wright company through the Draper-Owens agency.

General Market Trend Is Upward, Says Barnum

BY R. L. BARNUM.

This week's review of the iron and steel industry's performance in March, despite the public this week, was discouraging. However, the decrease in operating expenses was larger on the whole than the decrease in production off in gross and it was learned that the railway officials are to meet at Chicago next Thursday for discussion of ways to cut production in exchange for expenses and for further improvement in operating efficiency.

This week's review of the iron and steel industry's performance in March stated that the reduction in operations had been more marked. April's production figures for the industry as a whole showed a decided falling off, but it was added that these figures did not fully reflect the extent of curtailed production in the industry. The industry had not blown out until the closing days of April. The real extent of the slowing down in this industry, however, was not known at the time. The Steel corporation was now operating at only 73 per cent of capacity with the independent plants at from 70 to 80 per cent.

By the end of the month the independents were operating at 90 per cent of capacity and the Steel corporation at 95 or practically full capacity.

The annual Southern Baptist convention, which opens here Wednesday, Dr. Freeman has received delegates from Richmond college, Johns Hopkins, Washington and Lee, and the University of Maryland will be introduced by Dr. M. Ashby Jones.

Senator Walter George also will speak, his subject to be "The Scholarship of the South," and will be introduced by Governor Clifford Walker. The devotional will be by Dr. E. J. Mullins, president of the Southern Alliance, and Colonel F. J. Paxon will preside.

A fine musical program has been arranged by C. C. Sheldon, Jr., city manager, and will include "Grand Chorus," by Spence; "Largo," by Handel; "Andante," by Handel; "Wagon Song," and "Adeste Dominum," by Sheldon.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

VOL. LVI., No. 334.

ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 11, 1924.

STATE'S REVENUE IS $13,222,122.16

Total receipts of the state from taxes, licenses, fees and other sources during 1923 amounted to $13,222,122.16, while disbursements totaled $12,528,838.75, receipts being $693,283.75 greater than disbursements, according to a preliminary report given out Saturday by W. B. Harrison, chief clerk in the office of state controller general.

The total amount of the receipts for 1923 exceeded that of 1922 by $332,320.94, while disbursements for the past year were $455,936.41 less than disbursements for 1922, the report showed.

The figures for the past year are exclusive of the balance on hand in the state treasury at the beginning of 1923. This balance amounted to $1,632,122.75, which added to the sum of $693,283.75, representing the difference between receipts and disbursements, makes a balance of $2,325,406.50, it was stated.

The receipts included the rental, and the disbursements the refund of warrants of the Western and Atlantic railroad, amounting to $340,000, and a temporary loan of $500,000 was included in the receipts and loan, with interest, included in the disbursements.

The largest return from a single source shown was from the motor vehicle fees, these fees amounting to $2,150,406.08. Receipts from the state fuel oil tax totaled $362,988.55 and from oil fees $19,219.69. The revenue from general taxes was given as $4,960,696.01, from inheritance tax $291,958.93. Collection of back taxes during the year amounted to $45,759.69. Tax on grand opera yielded the state $4,500, the report showed.

Disbursements during the year included $4,233,545.09 to the school fund; $1,152,434.28 to the pension fund, while the highway department benefited to the extent of $2,134,669.17, it was shown. Taxes refunded during the year amounted to $15,102.97.

Jefferson Standard Agents Will Attend Annual Convention

Two hundred and fifty or three hundred of the Jefferson Standard Insurance company's "One Hundred Thousand Dollar Club" members, together with a large number of visitors, will attend the annual agency convention of the company to be held this year in Greensboro, N. C., where the company's home office is located, on May 13, 14 and 15. The new 17-story home office building has just been completed and will be dedicated on this occasion.

This will be the first agency convention the Jefferson Standard has ever held at its home office. A large number of the company's agents from the far west will attend. They will meet with other agents from the southeast at Atlanta, where a special train of several Pullman cars will carry them to Greensboro, leaving Atlanta at 9:45 p. m. May 12.

A special three-day program has been arranged by the company in Greensboro for entertainment of these agents. There will also be special instructions of great value from time to time at the various meetings.

The Jefferson Standard maintains a branch office in Atlanta, which is in charge of R. W. Statham, state manager. The offices are located at 1708-4-5 Canal building. Mr. Statham reports that the company has enjoyed a splendid business so far this year.

MORE SHOWERS TODAY

Intermittent Sunshine To Brighten Sunday.

Weather prospects for today in Atlanta are for more showers and practically no change in temperature, according to C. E. von Herrmann, of fiscal forecasts for this vicinity. There will not be quite as much rain today as fell Saturday, Mr. von Herrmann believes, as he predicts the sun will break through the clouds for short periods during the day.

The rain of Saturday came rather unexpectedly, being brought by a disturbance moving here from Texas, which traveled much faster than had been expected. Temperatures remain low for the time of the year, the high point Saturday being only a few degrees above 60, and the 7 a. m. reading being 52 degrees.

A remarkable feature of the weather map for Saturday was the rainfall at Corpus Christi, Texas, where 4.54 inches fell in 24 hours. Otherwise, rainfall over the country was mostly light.

THOMAS J. GURR LAID TO REST ON SATURDAY

Funeral services for Thomas J. Gurr, former Atlantan who died Friday at Vienna, Ga., were held at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the chapel of Barclay & Brandon. Services were attended by Yaarab Temple Shriners and members of the Kiwanis club. Temporary interment was in the Barclay & Brandon vault.

Mr. Gurr, who was 50 years old, was born and reared in Fort Valley, moving to Atlanta five years ago. A short time ago, he changed residence to Vienna, where he was associated with a brother, C. S. Gurr, in real estate business.

In addition to his widow, Mrs. Hattie Clark Gurr, he is survived by two brothers, C. S. Gurr, of Vienna, and S. H. Gurr, of Broxton, Ga., and a sister, Mrs. H. E. Marshall, of Americus.

LAST SERVICES HELD FOR W. H. J. BURGESS

Funeral services for W. H. Burgess, prominent DeKalb county resident and a brother of Ben S. Burgess, clerk of the DeKalb superior court, who died Thursday at the residence on Covington road, were held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon from Wesley chapel, with Rev. J. D. Milton officiating. Interment was in the churchyard.

Mr. Burgess was born near Decatur in 1882 and resided in that district all his life. He was well known throughout the county, and for the last 15 years conducted a general merchandise store on Covington road, five miles from Decatur.

He is survived by his widow; one son, J. H. Burgess; three daughters, Mrs. J. Paul Brown, and Misses Sadie and Annie Burgess, and two brothers, Ben S. and E. N. Burgess, all of DeKalb county.

Fulton U. C. V. Women To Raise $7,000 for Mountain Memorial

Honorary woman members of the seven camps of United Confederate veterans in Fulton county have made seven "founders' roll" subscriptions of $1,000 each to the Stone Mountain Confederate memorial. It was announced Saturday at memorial headquarters.

Each subscription will carry with it a "founders' roll" bronze tablet in the great memorial hall to be cut into the breast of the mountain below the central group.

These seven tablets will be dedicated to the seven U. C. V. camps of Fulton county, each tablet bearing in raised letters the name of the particular camp in whose honor it was erected.

Mrs. Woodward Leader.

The plan to pay this beautiful tribute to the seven camps of Fulton county was initiated by Mrs. A. O. Woodward, honorary woman member of Atlanta camp, No. 159, and active U. C. V. worker for the welfare of the veterans.

In a letter to the memorial association she states:

"I have now completed arrangements to memorialize the seven U. C. V. camps in Fulton county, according to the plans discussed with you, and I wish you would arrange to reserve spaces in the memorial hall for the following: Atlanta camp, No. 159, Camp W. H. T. Walker, 'Tiger' Anderson camp, Stonewall Jackson camp, Evan P. Howell camp, Joseph E. Brown camp, 'Joe' Wheeler camp.

"Immediately upon my return from the reunion in Memphis, I expect to begin an active campaign with my committee to raise the funds necessary to give each camp an individual tablet.

Example for Camps.

"I am giving you this advance information so that you can go forward with your plan to have all of the U. C. V. camps memorialized in the great memorial hall, and to demonstrate to other communities what can and should be done to create a permanent record of the names of the organizations which have held together the sacred memories of these illustrious heroes."

Mrs. Wood was chairman for three years of the soldiers' home committee of Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., and in that capacity performed many services of love for the old men spending their last days at the home. For six years she has been chairman of the veterans' aid committee of Atlanta chapter, and in this capacity has raised funds every year to send veterans to reunions. Her committee has raised upwards of $10,000 for this purpose.

There are in each U. C. V. camp in Fulton county what are known as honorary women members. In one or two of the camps but a handful of veterans are left and very few honorary women members. Other camps, however, have a fairly large membership of both. Mrs. Woodward is an honorary woman member of Atlanta camp, No. 159, and as such she conceived the idea some weeks ago of getting together all the honorary women members and raising $7,000 to take seven "founders' roll" tablets and dedicate them in honor of the seven camps. They received the idea with enthusiasm, and Mrs. Woodward

JUDGE CLANCEY SPEAKS TO KIWANIS TUESDAY

Judge J. Hannibal Clancey, of Detroit, will deliver his famous lecture, "Why Justice Falls," at the meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Biltmore, Tuesday. Judge Clancey recently made this lecture before the Kiwanis club of Chicago, which indorsed it highly.

Other features of the Tuesday meeting are songs by the Kiwanis double quartet and an inspection tour of the Biltmore under the direction of Assistant Manager Royer.

DR. OPPENHEIMER GOES TO WESLEY MEMORIAL

Dr. R. H. Oppenheimer, house physician at the Grady hospital, has been appointed superintendent at Wesley Memorial hospital, succeeding Walker White, who turned in his resignation, effective July 15. Dr. Oppenheimer has been connected with Grady hospital several years and is one of the best known local physicians.

No announcement of future plans has been made by Walker White.

is now organizing a general committee to start the fund right away.

"This is one of the noblest contributions yet made to the Stone Mountain Confederate memorial," said Hollins N. Randolph, president of the association, "it is prompted by the purest unselfish motive of reverence and affection, and I earnestly hope this fine example set by Mrs. Woodward and her committee will be an inspiration to the women of every community in the south which has a U. C. V. camp."

STRIBLING LIKE FORMER RING CHAMPS, SAYS EDGREN

Georgia Boy, Berlenbach, Tunney To Furnish Some Of Best Bouts, Says Scribe

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

They can talk about old times, but in two or three classes there are fighters today who compare well with any that ever pulled on a glove. Dempsey probably shapes as the best heavyweight up to date, the only one of the old-timers who might rival him, if in the ring today being Jeffries at his best. And Dempsey is more aggressive than Jeffries was. The crowd gets quick action whenever he fights.

Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, is another Frank Erne for skill and not far from Joe Gans' equal as a puncher. There's no questioning Benny's class. He would have done well among the old-timers.

Middleweights Gone.

We have no middleweights now that compare with Bob Fitzsimmons, Tommy Ryan, George Dawson, Dan Creedon, Kid McCoy, Stanley Ketchel, any one of a dozen others I could name. All of these men combined great skill with real fighting effectiveness. Mike Walker is a good welterweight champion. But he hasn't shown the world that he classes with Matty Matthews, Mysterious Billy Smith, Jack Dempsey the Nonpareil, or Joe Walcott, the Giant Killer. There is no Terrible Terry McGovern or George Dixon among the featherweights when Johnny Dundee, an ancient veteran, can hold the title. But in the lightweight class we're bringing out some boys who would class well at any time.

Smooth and Graceful.

I have been making a study of the fighting qualities of two of the most interesting in that class—Young Stribling and Paul Berlenbach, who are matched to fight June 27. These boys, with Gene Tunney, give promise that the light heavyweights are going to furnish the most interesting bouts of the year with the single exception of the one heavyweight championship fight that will bring Dempsey out against Fritzi Zsivkoff, or whoever looks either of them, next Labor day. McGuire, technically champion of the light-heavyweights, doesn't compel much interest after seeing two southern boys from Young Stribling, the Georgia boy.

A few nights ago I saw both Stribling and Berlenbach when they fought the same program at the Garden. Stribling has improved rapidly. He fights often. He has a quick mind and as fine a physical equipment for fighting as any youngster I've ever seen. There is nothing bulky or clumsy about Stribling. He is built like a fencer. His father and mother were acrobats, and Young Stribling was brought up in the circus, trapeze and tumbling.

Has Sense of Balance.

From earliest youth he has been through ideal training for a boxer. His acrobatic feats demanded all-around but not abnormal strength, suppleness of muscle and joint, and fine condition. Better than that, they all developed a wonderful sense of time and balance. Time and balance are the foundation of all graceful action, and Stribling is smooth and graceful in every move he makes.

The smooth, graceful movement shows that all muscles coordinate perfectly. There is no real power in action that is not graceful. Smooth, graceful action may not show the power, but it is there. When Dempsey hits his opponent with a blow, his action is smooth as oil.

In two years more Young Stribling will be a heavyweight, and he will have many things seldom seen in the class where he is often considered the chief asset. He will be as fast and as skillful as Jim Corbett used to be, and he will be better than Corbett because he is aggressive. Corbett used his skill and speed to fence carefully, taking few chances. Stribling likes to take chances. He has a keen, quick mind.

Good Sense of Timing.

Stribling has something of Corbett's action in the use of his left arm. He handles it like a fencing foil—a rapier. He feints and delivers blocks, as Corbett used to, with that arm heavily straight. At the moment of impact the whole arm is rigid. That gives him a jarring, wearing punch. It isn't Dempsey's punch. Dempsey hooks the left with crushing force—one blow a knockout if it lands right. Stribling hasn't shown a one-punch knockout blow.

But I regard him as a hard hitter for all that. Nobody who ever fights him will say he "couldn't dent a cream puff." He goes in with his punches, snaps them home hard. He picks the spot and lands on it, with each blow perfectly timed to get there with the snap of wrist and forearm, the turn of the body and the thrust of the leg behind it. I wouldn't be surprised to see Young Stribling develop into a very hard puncher in another year. He knows how to punch now.

His fine sense of timing is shown when he slips inside of an opponent's lead, standing straight up. This is a favorite trick. He has another trick of whipping in three or four lightning-fast half uppercuts with the slightly bent and left, snapping the last one with a double left, turning and whipping a right uppercut through his opponent's wide-open guard. He is a boxer.

He uses the left hand most, but is equally quick and skilful with the right. He is cool, not tempered, but he counters hard when hit. He has fighting spirit without any meanness. Nobody would think of describing Stribling's fighting as "vicious." The word couldn't fit.

Paul Berlenbach is like Stribling in some ways, and in others entirely unlike him. Paul is good tempered, more inclined to smile than scowl. But that doesn't incline him to hold back a punch as long as the other fellow is able to fight. When I saw him stop Harold Abbott in the fourth round, Abbott was too tough and round he gave Abbott a rather hard strong to drop from a single punch, although many landed crashing on chin and body. Finally Abbott was helpless, and instead of hitting harder in a finishing flurry Berlenbach eased up and gave the referee a chance to step in.

Light-Heavies Promise Action.

Berlenbach has a fine sense of timing. That's when much of his tremendous hitting comes in. But there's something else about Berlenbach that is hard to define. Even his slow punches seem to carry a tremendous kick, and he can speed them up and double the effect whenever he wants to. He has a style peculiarly his own. It has a touch of Dempsey's swaying attack, but he doesn't keep his hands high for defense the way Dempsey usually does.

He's more open and is easier to hit. He holds his hands low, sways as he glides in, and hits from either side or starboard as he finds his enemy situated. The left is undoubtedly his dangerous weapon. He speeds it up just as the blow is landing, after starting slowly and smoothly. His gliding first seems to sink into an opponent's body until the glove almost disappears.

When he hits his man you see the other fellow thrown back as if he'd bumped into a taxicab. You wonder if that cracking sound was a jawbone. You see a small square where there was a moment before. And still Paul is gliding in, weaving, unharmed, smiling.

Berlenbach didn't lose confidence in the least when Jack Delaney broke into his K. O. record with a reversed knockout. He thinks he made a mistake and fought Delaney in the wrong way, and that he can knock Delaney out when they meet again.

The Stribling-Berlenbach bout should be a corker of a fight. It may eliminate one of the fellows Gene Tunney will have to discuss that title with later on. The winner will be taking a big step toward the championship. But there will be two, or three more to go, Jack Delaney, for instance, who upset Berlenbach. And this young fellow Slattery, of Buffalo, Charlie Murray's entry for the title.

Yes, the light-heavyweight class is going to provide the action this year.

CRISMAN IS Tech Tank Team Finishes LOSER IN MEET

BY JOHN STATION. The Georgia Tech swimming team has just completed its most successful season since this sport was established at the school several years ago. There have been four meets in which this team has completed, and in all four the Tech tanksters led the scoring by a very comfortable majority.

Individual members of the Tech team have broken four southern tank records since the beginning of the season. Tech swimmers defeated the University of Florida, 59-16, early in the season. Although the Gators boasted a strong team, and proved eminently successful in all their Florida competition, when they met the Yellow Jacket swimmers, they were completely outclassed.

The University of South Carolina was the next meet of the season. Tech fared a little better than the Florida Gators, but not much. The final score of this meet was Tech, 40, University of South Carolina, 25.

Score High in City Meet. Next in chronological order comes the city invitation meet, sponsored by the Georgia Tech Athletic association. Although no team score was recorded, Tech swimmers scored high in comparison with the A. A. C. and Y. M. C. A. swimmers.

The crowning achievement of the swimming season came when the Tech tank men won the championship of South Carolina in Charleston a couple of weeks ago. By elimination, the race had narrowed down to the Citadel and the College of Charleston. Tech was in the swim in that meet, which was to determine the championship of South Carolina.

When the last dripping athlete had climbed out of the pool, the crowd showed Tech 57, College of Charleston 18, and Citadel 13. It was a great victory.

The most notable achievement was the breaking of four southern records by Randolph Armstrong, captain of the swimming team, and candidate for the Olympic team, broke the southern record in the 40-yard free style swim. His time was 19.8 seconds. The former record was 20 seconds, even, held by Silcox, of Clemson. Armstrong also broke the record in the 100-yard free style when he negotiated the distance in 50.8 seconds. The previous record was 50.4 seconds, held by DeArmond, of Tech.

Lovers Own Time. McEyre, in the plunge for distance, lowered his own time from 33.2 seconds to 28.8 seconds, thereby breaking the record for the second time. It might be mentioned that McEyre broke this same record three times in the same night. Each time he would plunge, he would clip a little off his previous southern record.

Hollingsworth broke the 100-yard back stroke record. He lowered the time from 1 minute 17 seconds to 1 minute 16 seconds. The record was formerly held by Cureton, of Tech. Turner also broke the southern record in the back stroke, as he was swimming in the same race with Hollingsworth. Hollingsworth beat Turner by a fraction of a yard.

McEyre and Hollingsworth are tied for the number of points scored during the entire season. Each has scored 40 points.

McEyre gets 40 points as the result of eight first places. Hollingsworth has seven first places, one third place, and was on two winning relay teams.

Armstrong came third with six first places, one third and was on two winning relay teams. His total was 35 points. Bullock came next with five second places for a total of 15 points. Welch and Virginia tied for the next place with 14 points each.

Tech will suffer heavily from graduation next year. Armstrong, Turner, J. Farmer and Bullock will be graduated in June. However, the outlook is not entirely black for Hollingsworth and McEyre will be back, and, with these two high point men on the team, and with a big influx from the freshman team of this year, Tech stands a good chance to repeat its performance of this year.

Hollingsworth left the Chicago club in the middle of last season and then was placed on the voluntary retired list at his own request. At that time he said his health would not permit him to give his best efforts and was in need of a rest. He returned to his home in St. Louis.

This spring he refused to report or make statement on the grounds that he desired to be reimbursed by the club for salary which he believed was due during the time he was on the voluntary retired list. The club officials made plain that the club was not obligated for back salary, but consented to pay the amount sought, provided Hollingsworth would sign a two-year contract, and continue to play the payments to stretch over the two-year period. This the player refused to do.

American League

Ruth Smashes Another.

New York, May 10.—Sam Jones won a spirited pitchers' battle from Hollis Thurston today and the New York Yankees won the opening east-west skirmish from the Chicago White Sox in ten innings, 2 to 1. After Ruth's home run in the first inning, Thurston held the Yankees safe until the tenth when Pinch Hitter Combs' single brought in Pipp with the winning run. Chicago scored its only run in the sixth on Collins' double and sacrifice by Sheely and Kamm.

A delegation of Troy, N. Y., fans attended the game and presented Johnny Evers, a fellow townsman, a diamond pin.

Martina Holds Tigers.

Washington, May 10.—Washington defeated Detroit, 3 to 2, during a drizzling rain in the opening game of the series here today. It was a pitching duel, with Martina having slightly the better of it. A congressional baseball team, headed by Representative Clancy, of Michigan, presented Martin Cobb with a set of twenty-one books, one for each year he has played baseball, when the Detroit manager appeared at bat in the first inning.

S. C. RECORDS SMASHED IN MONTGOMERY MEET

New Handicap Plan To Be Installed at East Lake

Goes Out
May 22

Scrapping of present handicaps of golfers at the East Lake Country club on May 22 and immediate inauguration of a new improved system was announced Saturday night by members of the East Lake handicap committee.

Under the plan to become effective May 22, a closed ab is kept on the ability of the golfer and his handicap is reduced as he improves his game.

The plan is to have each member of the club turn in cards of the best three rounds of last year and the best three rounds of this year. If the scores turned in were made during the winter months a deduction of four strokes will be made. The six scores will be totaled and divided by six and from that number 72, par of the course, will be subtracted. The resulting figure will be the handicap for the present time.

It is planned to have the members turn in scores of one round and thereby improve the golfing and reduce the handicaps.

The new plan is arranged so as to keep the old favorites with certain handicaps out of some of the tournaments and to give the golfer who is improving his game a chance to win some of the tournaments that he would otherwise be forced to witness as a member of the gallery only.

Secretary Pelzer of the Atlanta Athletic club has mailed out blanks for each of the members to fill out and return to him by May 22, when the new handicap plan will take effect. Those players whose records fail to reach the minimum of 100 holes will have to play from scratch the remainder of the summer months unless suitable records of last year and the first part of this year are dug up from practice rounds.

Record Broken In Track Meet

Charlottesville, Va., May 9.—One South Atlantic record was shattered here this afternoon when 59 athletes, representing seven colleges, qualified in the preliminaries of the invitation meet being run on the Lambeth field.

Beers, of Maryland university, bettered his own record, established last year, when he put the shot 45 feet 7 1/2 inches.

Lambeth field has been put in the best of condition for the meet and although no records were broken in the running events this afternoon, predictions are made that much faster time will be clocked tomorrow when the finals are run off.

Teams which qualified in today's preliminaries were:

University of Virginia, 18 men in 10 events; Washington and Lee, 14 men in 8 events; University of North Carolina, 10 men in 7 events; North Carolina State, 8 men in 7 events; V. P. I., 7 men in 5 events; University of Maryland, 4 men in 4 events, and V. M. I., 12 men in 9 events.

Clark To Fight At Fort Benning

Columbus, Ga., May 10.—(Special.) Georgia fans will see a high class contest at Fort Benning Monday night, Jack Clark, the popular Allentown, Pa., middleweight, who fought Young Stribling a draw in Atlanta 18 months ago, will face Bobby Mariott, army champion, in the feature bout of 10 rounds with the southern James F. Strain is promoting the show.

About 4,000 soldiers boys expect to attend this stellar match. Clark has been training in Columbus for four days and is already in perfect condition. Mariott is also on the scene of battle and is confident of defeating the crack Allentown boy.

Clark is the A. E. F. champion and very popular in the state of Georgia through his great battle with Young Stribling. As Clark is anxious to secure another bout with the southern sensation, he will try his hardest to down the soldier champion.

Fort McPherson Meet Postponed

The athletic and military field scheduled to be held at Fort McPherson yesterday afternoon was postponed on account of wet grounds and will now take place on Saturday, May 17. The purpose of the meet is to hold a final athletic and military meet before the 22nd Infantry leaves for the summer camp at Camp McClellan, Ala. There will be a military drill, several boxing matches, a baseball game and very likely polo during the afternoon's entertainment.

Virginia Wins Big Track Meet

Charlottesville, Va., May 10.—The University of Virginia, with 20 points won the invitation track and field meet finals of which were run on the Lambeth field here this afternoon. University of North Carolina was second with 42 1/2 points and Washington and Lee, 12 1/2; Maryland, 9, and Virginia Polytechnic, 7.

Vincentini Will Fight Barbarian

New York, May 10.—Luis Vincentini, Chilean lightweight, probably will meet Sid Barbarian, of Detroit, in a match at the New York Coliseum the first week of June. Tex Rickard announced today, with the victor assured of a title bout with Benny Leonard.

The promoter said negotiations virtually had been completed. Pal Moran, New Orleans Italian, who lost a decision to Vincentini recently, may appear on the same card.

21 Thoroughbreds To Face Preakness Barrier Monday

Baltimore, May 10.—The entry list for the $50,000 Preakness as announced this afternoon shows a field of twenty-one thoroughbreds scheduled to face the barrier for the Maryland classic on Monday. Nearly every large racing establishment in the country is represented.

With St. James out, and Wise Counselor's failure to show his real speed in a preliminary trial yesterday, the race is regarded as open. Wise Counselor's work over a mile and a furlong, the Preakness distance, indicated that he either did not take to the heavy going, or that the track wasn't to his liking. As the track was unduly heavy on Monday, the Ward colt has fallen considerably in the estimation of followers of the turf.

The Rancocas entries, Mad Play and Broadside, possess dazzling speed but their gameness is questioned by many.

Bud Fisher's Nellie Morse, the only fully entered, has performed brilliantly in two starts at Pimlico this season, once in sloppy going. Matt, from the same stable, seems in poor form.

G. A. Cochran's Revenue Agent ran a splendid race against older horses in the $25,000 Dixie handicap here a week ago.

Rustic, who will carry the hopes of A. H. Morris, is a dangerous contender on his recent form, when he showed six furlongs in 1:11 4-5 with 125 pounds up.

J. S. Cosden's Nautical, in a good workout today, turned a mile and an eighth in the mud easily in 1:58 3-5. Walter M. Jefford's Diogenes worked the same distance yesterday in 1:58 4-5.

With clouds, threatening weather, a light rain falling tonight, and a probability of a heavy track Monday, chances are that there will be many withdrawals from the big race by post time.

Petrels To Play Mercer Monday, Tuesday in Macon

BY BILL MORROW.

With Oglethorpe and Mercer having probably the best claims for leadership in S. I. A. A. circles, these rival forces will settle the argument for supremacy Monday and Tuesday in Macon.

The meeting with the Baptists marking the Petrel's last venture on the diamond series, with a record that bids fair to place them at the top of the list in Dixie's collegiate ball, the Petrels will be fighting for the Mercer trophy in the final game of the series.

The two battles in Macon mark one more of the interesting trips for Oglethorpe students, and probably a large number of the Petrel supporters will be on hand to watch their combination match hitting and fielding abilities with Mercer's best.

The Petrels will be fighting to equalize last season's "Tiger" Stone being instrumental in turning back the Petrels without a win.

The Oglethorpe institution boasts of the best team in its short history of athletic activities and with a total of 16 wins out of 18 starts, the Petrels have a highly satisfactory card. The defeat at the hands of a southern force came in Athens against the Georgia Bulldogs, the Petrels dropping the first to Coach White's team and finalizing the following afternoon by winning in a one-sided fracas.

The Oglethorpe clan will leave tonight for the Petrel stronghold, a large squad being carried to mix matters with its rivals, Mar' Humphrey will probably draw the first assignment on the mound for the Petrels with "Lefty" Willis working the following afternoon in this department.

Dave Barbee, star outfielder and pitcher of no little importance, will be unable to visit the Mercer battling grounds on account of a bad shoulder. Barbee made a sensational catch to the centerfield section in a recent Petrel home game, crashing into the fence as he held the ball. His shoulder was injured on this play and lately has been giving him a great deal of trouble.

Following their exhibitions on two occasions in Mercer, the Petrels will return to their campus and wait for the highly important series with Tech's Yellow Jackets on Grant field Friday and Saturday. The meeting between the Jackets and the Petrels will close both institutions' 24 season and will have considerable bearing on the Petrels' claims for Dixie honors.

Epinaud To Run At Longchamp

Paris, May 10.—Epinaud, Pierre Wertheimer's crack racer, will make his first appearance on a European race track since he lost the Cambridgeshire stakes by a head to Verdict in England last autumn, when he faces the starter at the Longchamp track tomorrow in an overnight handicap race. Almaguiva, to be ridden by Steve Donohue, is the other horse expected to present any serious opposition in the field of six.

Preparatory to his match race against Sir Galahad, III, at St. Cloud on May 19, M. Wertheimer decided to send the big bay to the post in this event over a distance of 1,400 meters. Epinaud is still a little short of real work and is heavy around the chest and ribs. He will have to take off 75 pounds, it is figured, before he is started for America.

Tommy Long Back With Bears

Mobile, Ala., May 10.—Tommy Long, leading pitcher of the Southern association last year and who was sent by Mobile to the Brooklyn National league club, returned here today and will again wear the uniform of the local team. He will pitch Sunday against Chattanooga.

Wins Championship. Williamstown, Mass., May 10.—By defeating Amherst college, 186 to 49 in a dual track meet here today, the Williams college track team became "little three" champion and clinched the Amherst-Williams trophy.

ZONE SHOOT Zev Is Beaten SLATED IN JUNE

Preparations for the annual Zone shoot to be held at the Atlanta Gun club during the first week in June are under way and the committee in charge has announced that prizes amounting to $3,000 are ready for the marksmen of the shoot. There will be a total of 800 birds as targets during the shoot.

The Atlanta Gun club counts will be available for practice each day at 9 o'clock in the morning and 3 o'clock in the afternoon from now on until the shoot. There will be special shoots each Wednesday and Saturday to get ready for the Zone shoot.

Some of the A. A. marksmen that will appear here during the shoot are E. F. Woodward, Francis Troch, who was recently runner-up of the Olympics; Phil Miller, Paul Earl and other national known sportsmen.

The scores of the shoot yesterday showed that the Petrels were in the lead because of weather conditions, there being three men that tied for first place in the single bird shot. Dr. H. N. Alford, W. H. Letton and A. C. Casenden, each scored 48 out of a possible 50. Trammell Scott was second with a 47 and Brad Timms placed third with a record of 46.

Dr. Alford also led the doubles with a perfect score of 24 out of a possible 24 from the 16-yard mark. Casenden was also second in the doubles.

Brad Timms was high scorer with 24 out of a possible 25 in the single bird handicap shot from the 20-yard line. Hentz was second in the handicap shot.

50 Birds At 16 Yards. Dr. H. N. Alford, 48; W. H. Letton, 48; A. C. Casenden, 48; Trammell Scott, 47; Brad Timms, 46; H. C. McKenzie, 18.

SMITHIES SEEK TO COMPETE IN CHICAGO

A movement has been started to get the civic organizations of the city to cooperate with the officials of the Tech High track team and send the Smithies to the national high school track meet in Chicago, May 30.

The Tech High track team, the best in the history of the school, holds the southern interscholastic championship and the A. U. meet championship.

It is an impossibility for the student body to send the team to Chicago and the Tech High authorities are anxious to have the team represent Atlanta and the south at the meet.

In each of the meets that Tech High has entered this year the record made by the Smithies was more than 25 points ahead of their nearest rival. There are two lads on the Tech High track team who will take their places well up among the best in the country. They are Rosy Smith and Harvey Hayes. Passions is another capable track man and should be able to win some points in a national meet.

According to the track authorities the amount needed to send the track team to Chicago will not exceed $400.

OHIO STATE LOSES MEET TO MICHIGAN

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 10.—Michigan defeated Ohio State in a dual track meet here today, 75 1-3 to 59 2-3. Michigan took ten firsts and six seconds and thirds, while the visitors made five firsts and eight seconds and thirds.

Mississippi Aggies Take First Place; Welch, Tech, Sets New Javelin Distance

BY HOWARD E. PILL.
Montgomery, Ala., May 10.—An aggregation of fleet-footed, broad chested lads from Mississippi A. and M. showed their heels, both literally and figuratively, to the 11 other competing teams in the second annual southern conference track and field meet at Cramton Bowl here Saturday afternoon and romped away with the Dixie title for the second time in as many years.

The maroon clad youngsters ran up the amazingly large total of 64 3-4 points, outdistancing Kentucky in second place by the margin of 28 markers. L. S. U., with 26 3-4 points, was third; Clemson, with 13, fourth; Tennessee fifth with 12, and Georgia sixth with 9.

Eight southern conference records fell before the determined onrush of the 175 athletes who participated. Just how prominent the Mississippi Aggies were figuring in the happenings is shown by the fact that five of the marks shattered were smashed by Aggie's entries. Kentucky, Louisiana State and Georgia Tech snatched one new record each.

The events in which new marks were set were: One-mile run, two-mile run, 120-yard high hurdles, 220-yard dash, 220-yard high hurdles, mile relay, javelin throw and discus throw. Only seven old records of the 15 events stood up.

Aggies Get Nine Firsts.
The Aggies smashed a total of nine first places during the afternoon and failed to drop points from only two events, the 440-yard run and the broad jump. Kentucky copied three first places and the other three were distributed among Georgia Tech, Louisiana State and Clemson. A. and M. counted nine points in the first final event, the mile run, and from that time on was never seriously threatened. Before half the events had been completed, it was easy to see that it was Aggie day at Cramton Bowl.

It would be extremely difficult to pick out any outstanding individual performance. Hall, of Kentucky, gave the stands a treat when he galloped away with a new record in the two-mile run and stepped across the finish line a quarter of a lap ahead of his nearest competitor, Kay, Tennessee; Moreland, L. S. U., and Brunson, of Mississippi A. and M., staged beautiful battles in the hurdles, dividing the first three places between them in both high and low events.

Records Broken.
Following are summaries of conference records broken:
One mile run, won by S. Robinson, Mississippi A. and M., in four minutes, 27 seconds. Old record, held jointly by Murff and Robinson, A. and M., four minutes, 33 2-5 seconds.

High hurdles, 120 yards, won by Brunson, A. and M., 15 5-8 seconds. Old record, held by Brunson, 16 seconds.

Discus throw, won by Gatchell, A. and M., with 136 feet, 3 inches. Old record, held by Gatchell, 130 feet.

Two hundred twenty-yard dash, won by Pepper, A. and M., in 22 2-5 seconds. Old record, held by Cochran, A. and M., 22 4-5 seconds.

Two mile run, won by Hall, Kentucky, in 19 minutes, 58 3-4 seconds. Old record, held by Howell, Vanderbilt, 10 minutes, 4-5 seconds.

Low hurdles, 220 yards, won by Moreland, L. S. U., in 25 2-5 seconds. Old record, held by Moreland, 25 2-5 seconds.

Javelin throw, won by Welch, Georgia Tech, with 192 feet, 7 inches. Old record, held by Welch, 187 feet, 7 inches.

Mile relay won by Mississippi A. and M. in 3 minutes, 28 2-5 seconds. Old record, held by A. and M., 3 minutes, 30 seconds.

Spectators were disappointed when Priest, Mississippi A. and M., failed to set a new American record in the javelin throw, losing first place to Welch, Georgia Tech, who bettered his former record made here a year ago by five feet. Priester topped Welch on one throw, but the throw was not allowed, as he fouled in making the fling. The Aggie star, it will be remembered, set a new American mark by hurling the spear 205 feet at the Georgia Tech relay games recently.

Kentucky Sends Stars.
Kentucky State brought a brilliant collection of stars to cop second place. Seven men made up the Wildcat team and five of those broke into the scorers' column, grabbing three first places. Louisiana State, one of the leaders of the past decade, fell far below its usual showing in number of points collected, although the Tigers took third honors.

The Mississippi Aggies won their second title at the Georgia Tech trophy, the 24-inch silver cup emblematic of the conference championship. The Maroons also copied the F. J. Cramton relay trophy, while the Montgomery Advertiser cup for the individual high point scorer was annexed by Brunson, of the Aggies, to make a clean sweep of the trophy list.

Brunson counted 12 points, placing first in the high jump and 120-yard high hurdles and third in the 220-yard low hurdles. Pepper and S. Robinson, both of Mississippi A. and M., tied for second place in the individual scoring with 8 points each.

Following is the summary of points scored by each team:
Mississippi, 64 3-4; Kentucky, 26 3-4; Louisiana State, 14 3-4; Clemson, 13; Tennessee, 9; Georgia, 9; Georgia Tech, 8 1-2; Sewanee, 7 1-2; Auburn, 5 1-2; Alabama, 2; Ole Miss, 3 1-2; Tulane, 0.

The Summaries.
100-yard dash: Pepper, Mississippi A. and M., first; Tracy, Kentucky, second; Miner, Sewanee, third; Cleggley, Georgia, fourth. Time, 16 2-5 seconds.

120-yard high hurdles: Brunson, Mississippi A. and M., first; Kay, Tennessee, second; Moreland, L. S. U., third; Nash, Sewanee, fourth. Time, 15 5-8 seconds.

Two miles: Hall, Kentucky, first; Deatherage, Tennessee, second; Smith, Mississippi A. and M., third; Boyd, Auburn, fourth. Time 19:58 3-4 seconds.

220-yard low hurdles: Moreland, L. S. U., first; Kay, Tennessee, second; Brunson, Mississippi A. and M., third; Marquis, Auburn, fourth. Time, 25 2-5 seconds.

Brood jump: Hughes, Kentucky, first, 21 feet, 3 inches; Brady, Kentucky, second, 20 feet, 11 3-4 inches; Hall, Clemson, third, 19 feet, 11 inches; Borman, L. S. U., fourth, 20 feet, 8 inches.

Javelin throw: Welch, Georgia Tech, first, 192 feet, 7 inches; Priester, Mississippi A. and M., second, 187 feet, 11 1-4 inches; Saunders, Sewanee, third, 167 feet, 9 inches; Thornton, L. S. U., fourth, 161 feet, 9 inches.

Discus: Gatchell, Mississippi A. and M., first, 136 feet, three inches; Kay, Tennessee, second, 131, 8 1-2 inches; Hillman, third, 123 feet, 6 inches; Saunders, Sewanee, fourth, 122 feet, 1 inch.

Pole vault: Gatchell, Kentucky, first, height 11 feet, 9 inches; Williams, Georgia Tech; Locke Auburn, tied for second; Jones, Mississippi A. and M., fourth.

High jump: Brunson, Mississippi A. and M., first; Hall, Clemson, second; Gooch, Sewanee, third; Crain, University of Mississippi, fourth. Height 5 feet, 9 1-2 inches.

Half mile: S. Robinson, Mississippi A. and M., first; Hogan, Mississippi A. and M., second; R. Robinson, Mississippi A. and M., third; Cottle, Alabama, fourth. Time two minutes and 4 seconds.

220-dash: Pepper, Mississippi A. and M., first; Cleggley, Georgia, second; Miner, Kentucky, third; Miner, Sewanee, fourth. Time 22 2-5 seconds.

One mile relay: Mississippi A. and M., first; Georgia Tech, fourth. Time 3:28 2-5 seconds.

CRACKERS HAVE ANOTHER WEEK'S STAY AT SPILLER'S

Sensational Memphis Club In Atlanta First 3 Days; Travelers Next Opponents

GAME RAINED OUT.
The final game between the Crackers and the Nashville Vols which was to be played Saturday, was rained out and will have to be played at a later date when the Nashville club is scheduled in Atlanta.

This game will be played later in the season and give the Vols a complete record while playing the Crackers here in the games Thursday and Friday.

BY ROY E. WHITE.
With Nashville and Birmingham off their hands, the Crackers are preparing to give Atlanta fans a better exhibition of baseball this week at Spiller's Field, their last period at home during May. After this week's games the Crackers take to the rails again to be gone until June 2.

The day of rest today, together with that of Saturday, should give the Crackers some time to begin studying out just what is needed in the way of baseball to stop the opponents that are to face the Atlanta team this week, for one of the best baseball teams in the southern loop will arrive in Atlanta early Monday morning to begin a three-game series. No less a leader than Johnny Dobbs will pilot the league-leading Memphis Chickasaws, who have 14 straight games, into Crackerville for the first three days of the week. The Chick series will be followed by Kid Elberfeld and his Little Rock Travelers.

Memphis seems to be the talk of baseball fans in every city in John Martin's loop. The Chicks started off with a couple of losses, then won a couple of games, lost two more, then went baseball crazy and won 14 consecutive games, before being stopped by New Orleans late Friday afternoon, when Buzzer Bill Whitaker took up the pitching burden of stopping the Memphis clan.

Memphis has a miffy pitching staff, with Tom Rogers, Cy Warmonth, Mitchell, Metz, Craft and Kelly on the roster. The quality of pitching served by Rogers, Mitchell and Warmonth does not need any comment. The Little Rock series, which will be played Thursday, Friday and Saturday, will be no easy picking for the Crackers, for Little Rock has been playing good baseball during the past two weeks.

Kid Elberfeld will bring three former Cracker ball players to town as members of the 1924 Little Rock club, these being Joe Guyon, who handled fly balls in left field for Atlanta for several years; Turner Barber, who played such brilliant baseball while with the Crackers last season, and Doc Smith, who caught many a game for Atlanta.

Joe Guyon, the Indian outfielder, who was so popular with the Atlanta bleacher fans last season, is playing the same position with Little Rock, but has moved up to lead-off man in the batting order. Joe is recognized as one of the fastest men in southern baseball and Kid Elberfeld has made an excellent lead-off man of him. All three former Atlanta players will be welcomed back to Spiller's field when Little Rock players come here the latter part of the week.

Lost Both To Vols.
The way that the Atlanta baseball team has been playing of late is becoming quite a bit puzzling. The week's record at home is two wins and three losses, not a good record considering the teams Atlanta has been playing. Atlanta took the best two out of three in the Baron series, but dropped two straight to Nashville.

The hitting of the Crackers has become alarming, for in the first Nashville game Atlanta secured 15 hits and could only score 7 runs. Atlanta just could not hit when men were in position to score. The same thing was true in each of the games that were lost.

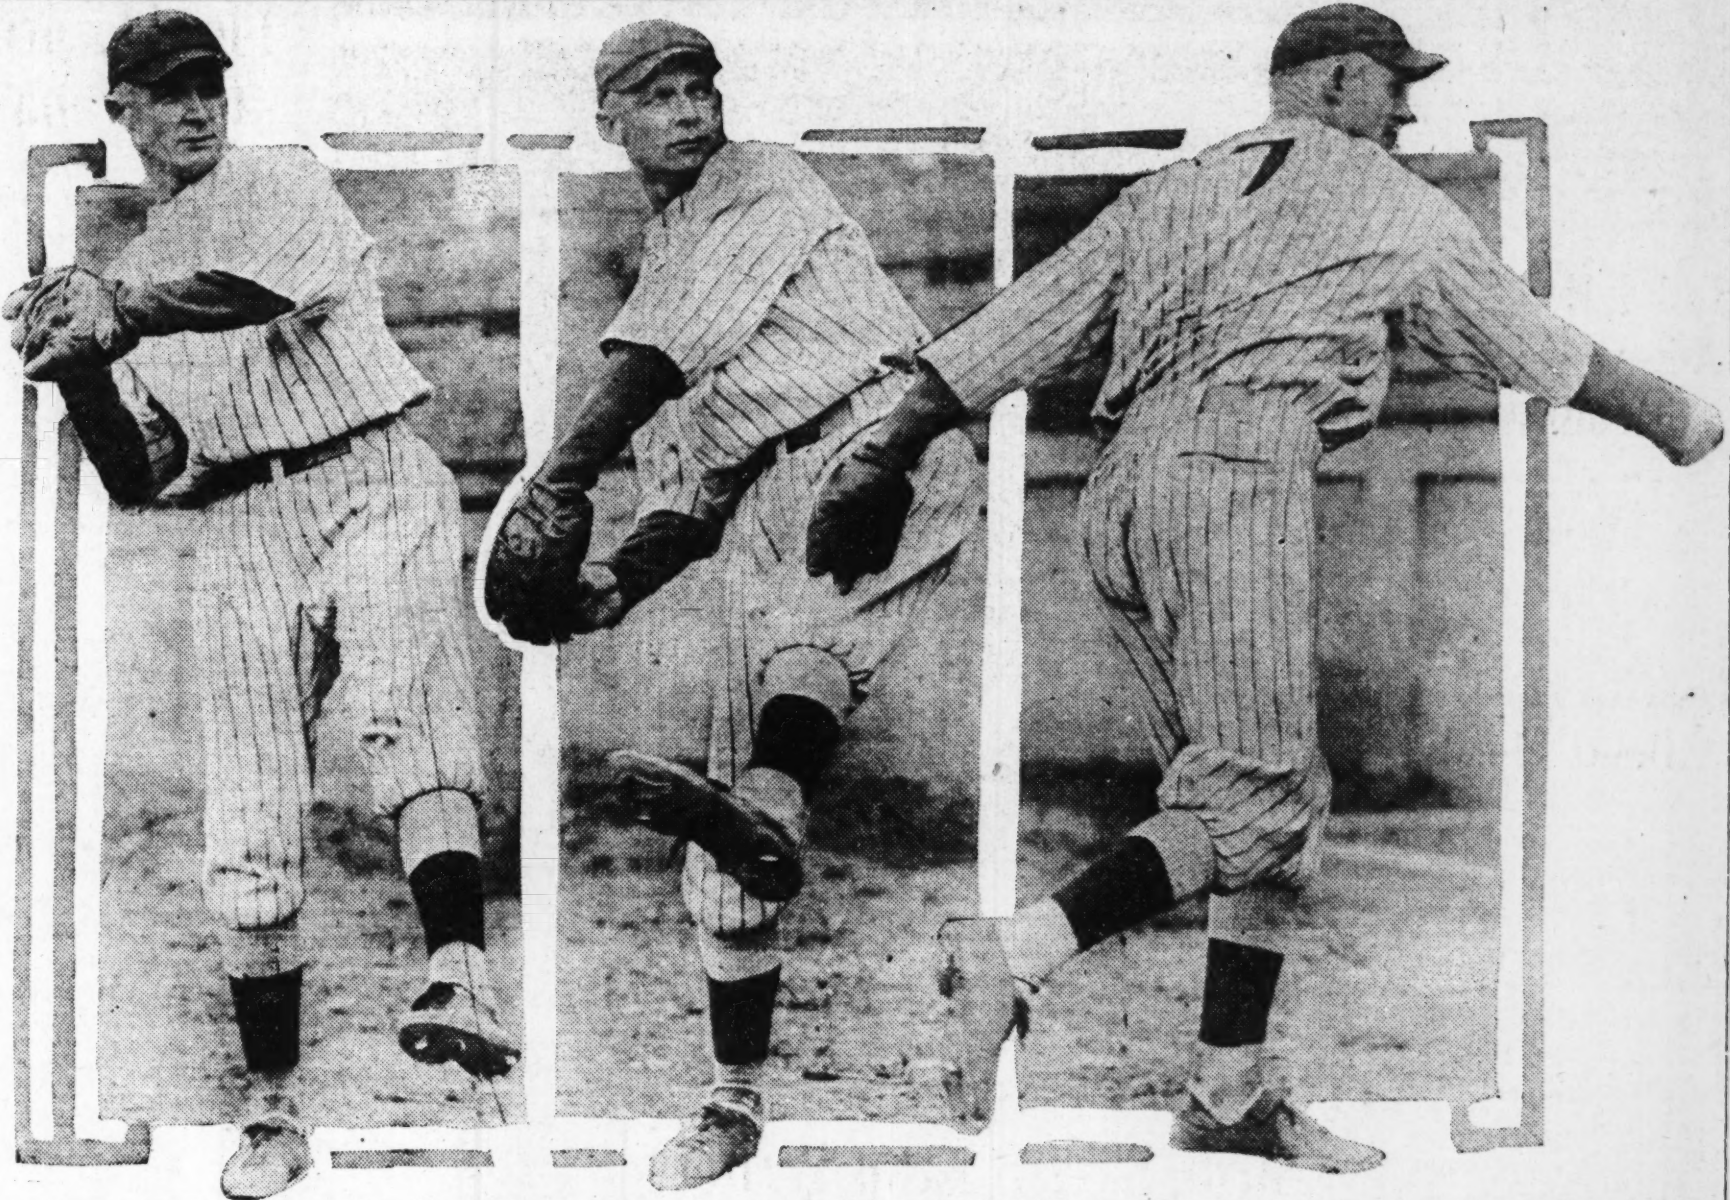

Probably the reason for the playing of the Atlanta team during the past week is that the team is far from being in the best of shape. George Dunant, who was stricken with a bad arm while pitching against Birmingham during the first part of the week, has developed a strained ligament in his pitching arm and will probably be out of the lineup for 10 days or more. His arm has been troubling him no little during the past four days.

Dick Niehaus is also on the injured list with a badly twisted knee, received during the first part of the week. Niehaus will probably be able to work during the latter part of the coming week.

Manager Niehoff has not been fielding in his usual style, but that is probably due to worrying over the troubles of all of his players. He is suffering from lumbago. Bill McCabe is still on the suspended list and that also adds to the worries and discomforts of Manager Niehoff and President Michalew.

Two Hits Are Home Runs and Sale Is Defeated

How Benny Karr, Cracker Pitching Ace, Grooves the Plate

The above pictures were snapped by The Constitution staff photographer, showing Benny Karr, the ace of the Cracker staff, in action. Benny is shown from the time he first starts to deliver the ball until he sends the ball to the catcher. It is one of the best pictures ever shown of the great Benjamin, and the fans are expecting quite a great deal of this gentleman.

Ga. Pitcher Loses Hard Contest

BY EMMETT SZIMORE.

Auburn, Ala., May 10.—Two home runs, the only two hits to be collected off Fred Sale's delivery, were enough to give the Plainsmen a 2 to 1 victory over the Georgia Bulldogs here today in the last game to be played on home territory. The game was the fastest and most thrilling to be witnessed on the local field in some time. Knight, pitching for Auburn, turned in a beautiful game also, only four hits being garnered off his delivery. The game was called at the end of the eighth account of rain.

With two out in the second frame, Fincher nipped one of Sale's offerings on the nose, elevating it into deep center for a home run, counting the first score for the Tigers. The scoring ceased until the sixth when Knight momentarily weakened, allowing three hits netting the Bulldogs their lone counter. Sale, first up, breezed. Middlebrook singled and went to second on Watson's single over second base. Richardson poked out the third consecutive single scoring Middlebrook. At this stage of the game Knight tightened up and breezed. He tossed Ramsey out at first on an easy infield roller to the pitcher's box.

Again in the sixth, with two out, Stewart, third baseman for the Tigers, landed on one of Mr. Sale's fast ones, turned it over the dump for another Tiger counter.

Make Double Play.
The first double play of the game came in the first when Middlebrook walked and was sacrificed to second. Richardson fled to Ed Allen, Tiger centerfielder, who made a spectacular catch and a quick throw to second, catching Middlebrook of the base.

The second came in the fourth, when Watson walked and on an attempted sacrifice, Richardson popped up to Knight, who doubled Watson at first. Both teams turned in brilliant fielding games, none of the three misuses affecting the scoring. Captain Griffin turned the best fielding performance of the day, having six putouts and three assists according to himself.

Insurance Ball Games Start Wed.
The Fire Insurance baseball league, which is the oldest organized amateur league in Atlanta, will play its opening games at Piedmont park Wednesday, May 14.

The clubs in this league are Firemen's Fund Insurance company, Royal Insurance company, Commercial Assurance company, Insurance Company of North America, Hartford Fire Insurance company and the A. H. Turner Cotton Insurance association.

The games in this league will be played Wednesday afternoon at Piedmont park and, according to President H. F. Nadeau, and Vice President White Keyron, a great crowd will be out to these opening games, which will all be played at 4 o'clock at the different diamonds at Piedmont park.

Rain and Wet Grounds Fail To Stop Amateur Contests

Atlanta's amateur baseball season suffered its first setback yesterday afternoon when rain and wet grounds forced many of the teams to remain idle. Every diamond in the city was a sea of mud, but despite this handicap some of the best games of the season so far were played. In two instances real pitchers' battles were waged and only the wet ball was responsible for a victory.

PERRIN VICTORY LEAGUE.
Brown's Mill Beats Kirkwood.
Brown's Mill won a loosely played game from Kirkwood Saturday afternoon on a wet field at Kirkwood. The final score of the game was 13 to 11.

The game was full of errors on both sides, but the Brown's Mill batters took advantage of the 12 errors on the part of Kirkwood and these, coupled with 11 timely hits, gave them the game. Walden, pitching for Brown's Mill, allowed nine hits and struck out 13 of the Kirkwood batters.

Score by innings:
R. H. E.
Brown's Mill 701 214 000-15 11 6
Kirkwood 020 103 500-11 9 12
Batteries: Walton and Appling; Parr and Martin.

Pep Class Winner.
The Pep Class won a one-sided game from the I. C. S. S. nine Saturday afternoon on the Fulton Bag diamond by a score of 13 to 2. The game was a pitchers' battle between Foster, of the Pep Class, and Kane, of the I. C. S. S. Each batter gave up only seven well-scattered hits, but the Pep Class team took advantage of the loose playing on the part of the I. C. S. S. infielders and scored 13 runs. The hitting of Bearden, Payne and Ashley featured for the winners, each getting two safe blows.

Coca-Cola 100 100 0-2 1 1
A. Tel. & Tel., 010 000 2-3 4 3
Batteries: Starr and Mallory; Irvin and Covington.

Whittier Mills Wins.
Whittier Mills won a well played

4 to 1 game over the Atlanta Terra Cotta nine Saturday afternoon on the Tech rehab diamond.

Porter, of the Terra Cotta team, pitched a great game, struck out 14 and allowed only nine well-scattered hits, but his mates would not give him support and failed to hit in the pinches.

Terra Cotta 000 000 000-1
Whittier Mills 000 300 100-4
Batteries: Parker and Jones; Thompson and Sammon.

Mail Service Loses.
The Atlanta Utility defeated the Railway Mail service Saturday afternoon on the Terra Cotta diamond by a score of 13 to 4.

Due to the wet diamond, the game was full of errors on each side and it was because of this that the Utility players won the game.

SPALDING LEAGUE.
Police Nine Beaten.
The Atlantic Steel company defeated the police department nine by the score of 8 to 1. Baggett, of the Atlantic Steel, made a fine catch in centerfield and Turner, of the same team, started by pitching an excellent game. Jenkins brothers, of the steel company, both hit home runs, and Newell, of the police, duplicated. The police made their lone counter in the last inning in a final attempt to stage a rally, but it was cut short by fine fielding of the steel company. C. Bostwick and Lawson each made two baggers. The game was played at Glenn field.

Junior Chamber Forfeits.
The Junior Chamber of Commerce forfeited its game with the Oakland City team, which was to have been played Saturday. The chamber team failed to show up when the time of the game came, and Umpire Turner declared the game forfeited, 9 to 0.

MANY PLAYERS ARE LINING UP ON BILL TILDEN'S SIDE

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
New York, May 10.—The drum-fire of many gifted typewriters will begin to take the entrenchments of the United States Lawn Tennis association this week, as the forces behind William T. Tilden open a propaganda offensive to compel the abandonment of the so-called player-writer rule.

Many well-known players, not forgetting that anyone might become a literary celebrity overnight by winning a national championship, have joined Tilden and have taken the oath to fight to the last word under the battle-flag of the insurance, which bears the symbolic device of a split infinitive gasping on a sheet of copy paper.

A state document from the camp of the insurgents Saturday night announced that 18 of the 25 ranking tournament players had determined to oppose the player-writer rule. Among them are Sam Hardy, former captain of the Davis cup team and himself a devoted literary man, being editor of Official Tennis Guide; Francis T. Hunter, Frank Anderson, Howard Vossell and Fred Anderson.

To Reconsider Ruling.
Next week, the West Side Tennis club of Forest Hills will elect and announce that 18 of the 25 ranking tournament players had determined to oppose the player-writer rule. Among them are Sam Hardy, former captain of the Davis cup team and himself a devoted literary man, being editor of Official Tennis Guide; Francis T. Hunter, Frank Anderson, Howard Vossell and Fred Anderson.

STRIBLING AND FAMILY REACH ATLANTA

Dan O'Dowd, Boston Boxer To Fight Youngster, Will Arrive Here on Tuesday

Young Stribling, the pride of Georgia, arrived in Atlanta early Saturday morning from a tour of the eastern and middle western states, for his fight with Dan O'Dowd, the Boston strong boy, at the auditorium on May 20.

The party including Young Stribling, his family and Pa Stribling, were met at the train by a committee from the Junior Chamber of Commerce, which organization is sponsoring the event. The family was entertained at luncheon by the junior chamber members at the Kimball house, at noon.

Stribling, who is a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, is slated to receive the attendance cap and the opening day game in the Southern league, when the trophy is presented on next Wednesday at Spiller's field. The youngster is slated to accept the trophy in behalf of the Junior Chamber.

John D. Martin, president of the league, is scheduled to be here Wednesday to do the presenting and the Junior Chamber is making preparations for a monster crowd on this date. Stribling was in the best of condition after his fights in the east and Youngstown, Ohio, and will continue his training camp for Dan O'Dowd here at the Southern Athletic club in Atlanta.

O'Dowd is slated to arrive in Atlanta Tuesday and will also work the same quarters but at different hours. Whether the workouts will be public has not been announced but information to this effect is expected any time.

This match is attracting considerable attention and Promoter Holt Geviner is preparing to handle a record breaking crowd. Orders for reservations are pouring in from all sections of Georgia.

Tickets are now on sale at Chesapeake, Rex saloon and the club office, Kimball house. Indications point to a larger crowd attending this bout than at any previous boxing tournament staged in this city in many years.

Is Good Opponent.
The New England light heavyweight champion is considered the best opponent the Georgia pride has seen asked to face within the banded ropes. Several Boston clubs have been after Pa Stribling to let his pride and glory mingle with O'Dowd but with little success.

How the elder Stribling ever consented to let Billy box O'Dowd in Atlanta is a mystery. Promoter Holt Geviner can solve this mystery and he is the only one. He had to give Stribling the largest guarantee ever offered a boxer in this state to meet the Boston boy and that's how Georgia fans will see one of the classic fights ever staged in this city.

O'Dowd's record stamps him as one of the leading contenders for the light-heavyweight title. Twice he held champion Gene Tunney to a draw. Jeff Smith, the sensational Bayonne, N. J., middleweight, had all he could do to hold O'Dowd even in a 12-round bout. Other prominent boys Dan has defeated are Bill Brown, Al Reich, George Robinson, Young Bob Fitzsimmons, Charlie Weinert, Captain Bob Roper, three times, Pat McCarthy, Paul Sampson and other lesser lights.

Billy McGowan, the popular Atlanta middleweight, will clash with Harry Krohn, of Akron, Ohio, in the semi-final. McGowan arrived from New York Friday and was very much disappointed over the hold run-out of Paul Berenbach, whom he was booked to box recently.

This match should give the feature event an appetite. Both boys are known as real sluggers and the fans should witness plenty of action and thrills. This bout is also slated to go 10 rounds unless a knockout occurs.

HILLHOUSE ALA. GOLF CHAMPION

Birmingham, Ala., May 10.—Jimmy Hillhouse, 19-year-old Birmingham golfer, won the Alabama championship here today in a well-played match from Jenks Gillem, two up in 36 holes.

Hillhouse had an 80 over the difficult Roebuck course for the final 18 and won the honors by consistent playing all the way through.

Tech To Hold Bouts Monday

The annual Georgia Tech R. O. T. C. smoker will take place Monday night, beginning at 7 o'clock, on Grant field. The military authorities have arranged an elaborate program for the entertainment, the bouts for boxing championship of the school being one of the features. The elimination bouts were held Friday afternoon. No admission will be charged.

In the afternoon the regimental parade will take place on Grant field and the champion drill company of the regiment will be decided by competitive drilling. The parade and drill will start at 3:30 o'clock and will be followed by the smoker.

The schedule for the boxing card is as follows:
Bantamweight, Cox vs. Gray.
Welterweight, Gilkerson vs. Sweet.
Middleweight, Fortson vs. Wilcox.
Lightweight, Hulse vs. Rogers.
Light heavyweight, Irwin vs. Diamond.

Featherweight, Forrest vs. L'Herculeux, and Dubose vs. McBrayer.

A. A. F. Meet Is Postponed

The first annual Amateur Athletic Federation combined track, field and swimming meet, which was scheduled to take place Saturday afternoon at Piedmont park, was postponed because of weather conditions and will be held next Saturday afternoon at the same place.

According to those in charge of the events there are more than 300 entries in all of the track, field and swimming events and with another week's practice the entry list should swell.

Madden-Wills Go May Be Delayed

Stribling's Next Opponent

O'Dowd Is Tough Foe for Strib, Says Boston Writer

The following article was written by Solly Snyder, former Boston sporting writer, who has been in Atlanta for the past few days concerning Dan O'Dowd, Stribling's next opponent. Snyder is from New England and is well acquainted with the Boston strong boy.

BY SOLLY SNYDER.
Sports Writer of the Boston Traveler.

Dan O'Dowd, of Boston, New England light heavyweight star, who will meet Young Stribling, Georgia's leading candidate for the world's light heavyweight championship, at the next show of the Southern Athletic club at the auditorium, May 20, has jumped to the front ranks in his class after a hard grind.

Although only 24 years of age, the Boston heavyweight has made a rapid climb to the front. Twice he has held Light Heavyweight Champion Gene Tunney to a draw, and when Bill Brennan, Leo P. Flynn's meal ticket at one time, was boxing like a champion, it was Dan O'Dowd who put his winning streak to a halt.

O'Dowd started his ring career several years ago as an amateur. He won the New England light heavyweight title and after that captured the national amateur title, which is every amateur boxer's ambition. After winning the amateur crown, O'Dowd decided to turn pro.

One of his first fights was with some big, hard-punching heavyweight by the name of Karl Wicks, who was also an amateur champion. After stopping about every punch on the calendar, O'Dowd finally put over the sleep-producer. It showed right then and there that the boy who is to meet Stribling May 20 possessed the stuff which makes a real fighter.

Made Real Hit.
The real test for a fighter is to see whether he can take a punch and stand up under it. This O'Dowd showed in his first battle and ever since his initial contest the Boston boxer has been boxing in rare form and with continuous success.

One of O'Dowd's first real tests was against Al Reich, of New York, called the Adonis. At that time Reich was considered one of the most promising contenders for the heavyweight crown. The big blond New Yorker was moving them down by the knockout route with ease, but he bumped up against a Tartar in O'Dowd, who gave the Adonis one of his first real thumpings. This win made O'Dowd.

He was immediately matched to box

Champion Gene Tunney. The Boston boy proved his class in this contest. Tunney is considered a great puncher and a real champion. This he showed in his two battles with Harry Greb, the middleweight boss and once light-heavyweight boss, but O'Dowd gave Tunney as good as he received.

A return match was arranged a few months later. Again they fought a sensational 12-round draw. It was one bout which showed that the New England boxer was capable of holding his own with the best in his class.

Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, and his manager, Jack Kearns, who witnessed O'Dowd's last fight with Tunney, at once signed the Boston Strong Boy for a sparring partner. It was O'Dowd who gave the king of all the heavyweights the best workouts, and ever since the Boston heavy has been Dempsey's sparring partner and still continues in that role.

O'Dowd is sure to give Stribling a real battle. The Boston lad possesses plenty of courage, can absorb punishment, can punch and is a pretty good boxer. His style is such that the fans will like and if O'Dowd doesn't give the southern sensation and pride of Georgia a real hard battle, the writer will be disappointed.

The New England heavyweight never lets up while he is in the ring. He keeps tearing in all the time and as Stribling is a great boxer the contest is sure to result in a hard one. Once the gong sounds in the first round, O'Dowd takes the aggressive and never stops until the gong sounds in the final round.

O'Dowd has piled up a string of victories which includes some of the best men in his class. Charlie Weinert, who has met every good man in the country, was defeated by the hard hitting Boston heavy. Captain Bob Roper, three times, Pat McCarthy, George Robinson, Rutledge McCrory, Lee Anderson and Paul Sampson are the other victims of O'Dowd.

Must Reduce Fire Hazard Of Arena

New York, May 10.—The probability of a postponement of the Harry Wills-Bartley Madden, heavyweight bout scheduled for Monday night, next, and the announcement that Floyd Johnson, conqueror of Romero, soon would be matched with Jack Renault were the chief subjects of discussion in pugilistic circles today.

The fire department has informed the management of the Queensboro Athletic club, where the Wills-Madden match was booked to take place, that a permit would not be issued until the fire hazard had been reduced. Fire officials said in view of the inflammable construction of the arena the fire fighting apparatus and the number of exits were inadequate. Although building experts said these improvements could not be completed by Monday night, the promoters insisted the fight would take place as scheduled.

Renault-Johnson in July.

Tex Rickard announced today that he planned to stage a Renault-Johnson match at the New York Velodrome, his Harlem arena, probably the middle of June. The victor of this contest, according to Rickard's plans, would oppose Harry Wills, giant negro, at Boyle's Thirty Acres in July for the right to step into the ring with Champion Jack Dempsey at the big pine bowl in September. This arrangement is contingent upon a victory for Wills over Madden.

Johnson was knocked out by Renault in their last engagement, a furious 15-round battle at Madison Square garden last September, but is confident he can turn the tables on the Canadian slugger. The young Iowa, though not lacking in courage and speed, has seemed doomed, to mediocrity through ineffective hitting. He was far from impressive last night in triumphing over the awkward, unschooled Chilean, but his punches seemed to have acquired a little more power.

Romero Gets New Chance.

Romero, Rickard said, would be given another chance to show his fighting wares, but critics today were practically unanimous in consigning the big Chilean to a second rate career. Romero will appear in a preliminary to the Johnson-Renault fight and his opponent is expected to be Joe Stoesel, former amateur star, who was a victor in a preliminary bout last night.

Wills and Madden, meanwhile, have completed their training. The negro's hands, which fragility have been a subject of considerable discussion, apparently are in good condition. With a title match in sight Wills is determined to win decisively and critics believe he will despite Madden's reputation for ruggedness.

IMPORTANT GAMES FOR PREPS

Clubs—	Won.	Lost.	Pct.

Games This Week:
Tuesday—University at Tech high.
Decatur at G. M. A.
Friday—Boys' high at University;
Tech high at Decatur.

BY GORDON KEITH.

Preps begin play on their final week of the schedule Tuesday, when the championship will be decided between University school and Tech high. University will have to dispose of Boys' high and Tech high will have to defeat Decatur again. But unless the unexpected happens, the real battle that will decide the '24 rag-winners will be played Tuesday at Almond park, when the flying Bluebirds take on their fast-stepping second place club, Tech high. Both teams have won 7 starts, but the University nine has dropped one game less than the Smithies.

No changes of any special note were made in the standings during the past week, except in the matter of fifth and sixth place, Boys' high having displaced Decatur in the higher birth by winning a postponed battle with the DeKalb team. The Gilmerites played one other game during the week and dropped that session to their old enemies, Tech high. That was the only game the Smithies indulged in during the week in the prep league.

The league leaders had a perfect week, defeating both Marist and G. M. A. Decatur lost two battles, dropping their postponed game with Boys' high and a scheduled meeting with Marist. G. M. A. only played one game, losing to University. Marist lost to the Bluebirds on Tuesday, but broke their long losing streak by handing the Decatur club a neat lacing Friday.

Other Games.
Besides the feature game of the season, Decatur plays G. M. A. on the same afternoon at College Park, and University will meet the Boys' high club and Tech high the Decatur team. Except for the postponed game with University, Marist has finished its season so far as prep league ball is concerned.

There was a rumor circulating the latter part of the week that the University-G. M. A. game of Friday had been protested and that Garlington, Bluebird pitching ace, was expected to be ruled ineligible by Commissioner Doonan. President White, of University, stated Saturday night that he had heard nothing of the affair, and that he had received no protest, either before the game or after.

Chilhowee Wins Clark Handicap

Louisville, Ky., May 10.—Chilhowee, Gallagher Bros., Kentucky Derby candidate, won the Clark handicap, feature race on the opening day of the spring meet at Churchill Downs today. The time was 1:54 2-5. The race at a mile and an eighth, with $10,000 added, was run on a sloppy track. Chacolet finished second and Hopless third.

WATCH SPEEDOMETER TO AVOID ACCIDENTS

"The promotion of greater safety on streets and highways, both for the motorist and the pedestrian, is a work that deserves the cooperation of Ed Yancey, manager of the Stewart-Warner Products Service station.

"In the first few months of 1924 entirely too many have been killed by automobiles in this city. I think such a casualty list deserves more attention than is given it, and calls for vigorous and persistent action; and life would be a great deal better protected from this hazard than it is now. This city is getting to be a dangerous place to live in. The streets are most dangerous to children.

"These fatalities can be reduced only by education and the growth of a greater sense of responsibility. Proper penalties are necessary to bring this about, for there will be no change while penalties are still so mild. The attitude toward automobile deaths is strangely callous. Excuses are too easily accepted, and the pedestrian—child, woman or man—in the rush of life finds that he or she has due rights, which the reckless driver is not disposed to respect. Yet, if the driver of an automobile would only observe the reading of his speedometer dial, how easy it would be to reduce this accident column to a dimension that would be somewhat in line with those that handle machines in a careful manner.

"Surely he realizes that the speed law is on the statute book and has been given careful attention by the lawmakers in respect to the speed limit allowed. The right to life is superior to the right to drive a car. The driver should be taught by heavy penalty that it is they who are required to exercise caution, not the pedestrian.

"Drivers are too ready to take

New Panamco Station Sets Sales Record Here

PANAMCO'S NEWEST ATLANTA SERVICE STATION, SPRING AT FOURTEENTH STREET.

J. H. Smith, manager of the above station, states that their sales on opening day, made to approximately 3,000 motorists, broke all opening day records for Panamco stations in the Southeast. Mr. Smith, formerly manager of the Reed Oil Corporation, is a well-known gasoline and oil man, and his acquisition by the Panamco interests is looked upon by them with considerable pride. Many times during their opening day, there was a long stream of automobiles waiting their turn for the usual free oil offer of new Panamco stations, even though a large corps of extra men were on duty, to serve their customers with the greatest possible dispatch. Pan American Southern Petroleum officials here state that they consider the unusual sales of this station to the growing favor which Panamco is gaining with Atlanta motorists, and because of the fact that the new station is ideally located for the use of north side car owners.

chances. They drive around and pass street cars and obstructions without respect for the possibilities. If they were punished drastically for accidents, they would refuse to take chances. Now the chances are all at the expense of the pedestrian. We do not forget that jay-walkers and absent-minded people often contribute to their own injury, but that is not an answer.

Wearing of Uniforms By Traffic Officers A Step Toward Safety

"If all traffic officers were uniformed and patrolled the streets and roads in uniform, a long step forward in safety would be taken, I believe," says H. H. Franklin, president of the Franklin Automobile company.

"With the constantly increasing congestion both in city streets and country roads, traffic authorities will have to devise more and better safeguards to protect human life. 'No one has a finer appreciation of the value to the community of the services of a 'traffic cop' than the seasoned motorist. But all such officers should be uniformed—in small villages as well as in large cities. The psychological effect of a uniform is to command respect for the law. In addition, the patrolling of streets and highways leaves traffic officers free to observe other than speed violations, such as reckless driving or lack of consideration of the rules of the road or drivers' rights at street intersections."

Owing to increase of business these people were compelled to have larger quarters and space for cars to get in to their door for service. They handle the well-known Cooper batteries, also Cooper and Para Bell tires. Mr. J. H. Beckham has just returned from a three days' trip with nice collections and fine business. He is very much pleased with the outlook for the coming season. R. C. Mathews is now with this company, and has charge of sales in the house.

GLARING HEADLIGHTS CAUSE AUTO ACCIDENTS

"Those glaring headlights run me into the ditch."

"Those were the exact words used by one of our customers last Monday morning when he drove in our place for a pair of Flatlite reflectors," said Mr. Peacock, service manager, of the Southern Motor Equipment company, distributor for the Flatlite reflector.

"This customer was much concerned over the matter as he realized that he, too, had those glaring headlights and might be the cause of much inconvenience to other drivers."

"You see," he continued, "I never realized what my glaring headlights might do to the other fellow and I made up my mind that the only reason the law says you shall not have glaring headlights is because it is protection to the public, and a fellow never knows what it really means till he himself is placed in a dangerous position, so I'm here for that pair of Flatlites."

"These Flatlite reflectors," continues Mr. Peacock, "have caused a great deal of comment since they first came on the market two years ago. This is due to the fact that they place all the reflected light where the driver needs it and do not produce a glare to the approaching automobile. As evidence of this the Flatlite reflectors use a clear, plain window glass in front, and pass the eight-point test required by all state laws. Driving light is what you need without blinding the other fellow."

"They can be adapted to any car, and the beauty alone is worth the moderate cost. There are more than a million satisfied users and to prove their merit it is only necessary to mention that the Illuminating engineers of the Chevrolet, Paige, Jewett, Cleveland, Maxwell and Oldsmobile factories have adopted them as standard equipment."

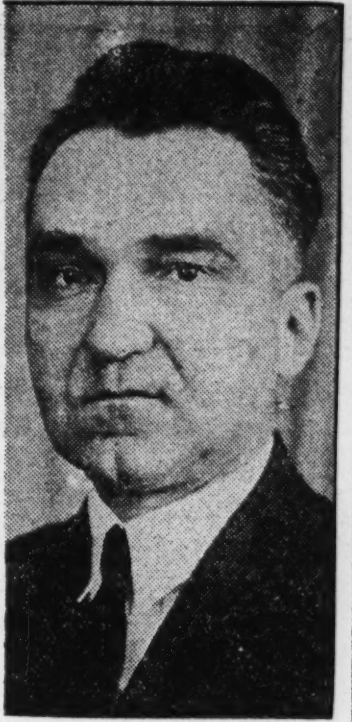

Children's Trade Healthy.

During the month of April the children's shoe buying in shoe stores reached very satisfactory figures. In the eastern cities, where many children enjoyed vacations from school one of the four weeks of the month, a splendid trade on all types of girls' and boys' footwear was enjoyed.—Boot and Shoe Recorder.

HINKLE TO SELL KISSEL IN SOUTH

The Kissel Motor Car company, of Hartford, Wisconsin, manufacturers of the well-known Kissel Custom-built six, has announced the appointment of G. F. Hinkle, located at 451 Peachtree street, as their distributor for southeastern territory.

"In making this connection says G. A. Kissel, president of the company, 'we feel that we are obtaining the best possible representation for our line in this section of the country."

Mr. Hinkle is by no means a new distributor for the Kissel line, he having been their representative since 1915 for the North and South Carolinas territory, and has never handled any other make car.

"The men comprising his organization are exceptionally competent and experienced, each branch of the Hinkle service to owners and customers being under the personal direction of a man especially fitted for those duties."

In addition to being centrally located, their showrooms and service station are admirably equipped for good display as well as prompt and efficient service.

"Before taking on the Kissel line nine years ago I made a thorough investigation, which convinced me that the Kissel car itself not only offered an exceptional value, but that the company manufacturing it represented the exact combination of reliability and high manufacturing ideals most desired in a factory connection and we had been looking a long time for a truly custom-built automobile selling in a moderate price class. After making a careful inquiry we decided to handle the Kissel because it is a high-grade car that is distinguished for its individuality in style, has an enviable record for performance, and yet is priced so low that it represents exceptional value," said Mr. Hinkle.

This company now has on exhibition practically every model of the Kissel custom-built cars and cordially invites the public to inspect, and ride in them.

Franklin Dealer Explains Mystic Sign on Window

The curiosity of passersby has been considerably aroused during the past several days by a mysterious array of figures decorating the show windows of Franklin Motor Car company, local distributors of the Franklin car.

Some of the first beholders decided that the Ku Klux Klan had been operating in Atlanta, but inquiry revealed the fact that S. B. Dodge had deliberately posted this mysterious arrangement of Arabic numerals himself. The sign read 150x5 plus 150 equals 900. Pressed for an answer as to what the "clan" thing meant, anyhow, Dodge said:

"Oh, that's just a little way we have of explaining, or showing how the use of an air-cooled motor makes it possible to build a Franklin several hundred pounds lighter than cars of comparable strength and endurance."

"The 150 represents the weight of the 177 parts used in the water-cooled motor which are not required in an air-cooled motor, plus the weight of the water. That's the first saving in weight. An expert designer, by redesigning the car, can save five points additional for every pound of useless weight that has been eliminated by doing away with the water-cooling system. That equals 750 pounds he saves by redesigning. To this add the 150 pounds saved in the first place and you have a total of 900 pounds. That's why Franklin can build cars of light weight and still give them the same strength as cars that weigh several hundred pounds more."

Cost Less

Champions cost less and there is no better spark plug. Champion X is 60 cents. Blue Box 75 cents. The manufacturing economies resulting from making two-thirds of all the spark plugs produced are passed on to the car owner.

KISSEL

CUSTOM BUILT

"I Have Secured the KISSEL Franchise for Atlanta---and I want to tell you why ----"

Because careful automobile buyers look for those features and items essential to their ideal car—I have for sometime been looking for an automobile as truly custom-built as the very expensive makes—yet within reach of those who can afford a medium priced car.

After making a personal analysis of the leading cars as to appearance, driving comfort and performance on the streets here in Atlanta, I found the type of car I wanted in the Kissel Custom-Built Six—

I have just returned from the Kissel Factories at Hartford, Wisconsin, where I made an exhaustive investigation as to manufacturing methods and whether custom-building was really a fact and practice—

I found that the Kissel is distinctively a product of master craftsmen—and while produced on a quantity basis, each car is built as if to a particular customer's order—including all features and details essential to the owner's ideal of a car.

I saw how body fashions were designed by Kissel to create the distinctive and individual appearance of advance body styles—

I saw how Kissel attained perfect roadability that makes a car as easy to drive and handle at 60 miles as at 20 miles an hour—

I saw how Kissel custom-builds his own chassis so that rattles and squeaks will not develop—

I saw how Kissel completely custom-builds his motor so that it properly powers the particular model for which it is designed—

I saw how Kissel hand-builds completely his solid bodies of individual design and substantial construction—

I saw how Kissel inspection standards and tests insure the use of only the highest grade materials necessary for sterling quality—

I saw how Kissel equips his cars so that the owner's convenience is properly provided for—

In short, I saw how Kissel actually manufactures practically 95% of his car under one roof, where uniformly high standards of workmanship are guaranteed, and how he has increased production to that quantity that permits prices hitherto thought impossible low for a car so made.

To me, this trip was a revelation—for I had found a car and saw how it was built just as I would design it for the critical and experienced motorists of Atlanta—a car I personally could recommend 100% to my dearest friends as the best car they have ever driven—no matter what make they now own.

I want you to see these cars and experience the same thrill I had when I realized what Kissel had accomplished—produced a really custom car in every particular at a price you can well afford.

Let me personally show you this car—inside and out—and then behind the wheel out on the boulevards and country roads.

I'm staking my reputation as a practical automobile man and a former Kissel dealer in Greenville, South Carolina, on this Kissel, which means something.

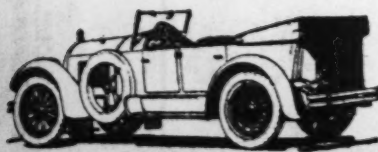

Beginning Monday, May 12th, we will hold our formal Kissel opening, featuring the latest custom-built creations by Kissel, including several of the new models.

You are cordially invited.

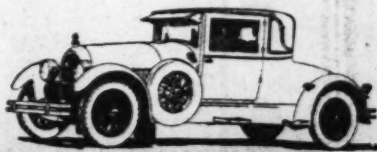

This display will prove of special interest to local Kissel owners whom we specially invite to inspect the new models—our service station and parts depot.

LEE TIRE NAMES H. L. PETTINGELL ASST. SALES MGR.

A recent announcement particularly interesting to the trade is the promotion of H. L. Pettingell to the post of direct assistant to Harry E. Field, general sales manager of the Lee Tire & Rubber company. Mr. Pettingell has recently been a district manager of the Lee company, devoting particular effort to the building up of the New York city branch. In the face of intense competition he has built up an imposing clientele. Since he first entered business he has been in the closest contact with buyers and sellers. His theories of business practice are based on first hand observations of the field. In commenting upon Mr. Pettingell's appointment as assistant sales manager the Lee company made the following statement through the medium of its house organ, the "Lee News." "It is inconceivable to imagine any man being better able to enforce the best traditions of the Lee company established so strongly by the present executive heads. No man is better versed in the month-by-month improvements put into Lee tires nor is anyone better acquainted with the most successful way to sell the Lee specialty—the Puncture Proof tire."

The enclosed speedster is the Kissel Motor Car company's latest creation, and can be seen in the showrooms of G. F. Hinkle Motor company, 451 Peachtree street.

Coming Events for Automobile Men Outlined by Association

Final plans have been completed for one of the most unique and interesting meetings in the history of the Atlanta Automobile association, to be staged Wednesday evening, May 21, roof garden, Cecil hotel, preceded by a supper. The association is divided into two large subdivisions; the automobile dealers' division, including dealers in automobiles and trucks, and the allied automotive trade lines division, including all other industries allied with the automobile trade in any way. One or two special representatives, picked from each division, will present and summarize at the meeting, suggestions whereby each division can be of greater service to the other, and establish an ever-increasing closeness of contact and mutual interest. It is expected that the meeting will prove one of the most constructive from a business standpoint ever put over by the association. The executive secretary recently announced that the membership of the association has reached 165 businesses, taking in nearly 90 per cent of those eligible for membership, and making it the strongest association of any city the size of Atlanta in the United States.

Fat Elrod, chairman of the entertainment committee, has presented an unusually interesting program of entertainment features. An orchestra will be on hand, and a number of business matters of general interest are expected to produce a record-breaking attendance.

Outing Plans Made.

Wylie West, chairman of the special committee appointed to arrange for the annual summer outing of the Atlanta Automobile association, set for Wednesday, June 18, at one of the local country clubs, reports that plans are rapidly maturing for one of the largest and most interesting annual celebrations ever held by the association. It is expected that practically every member of the association will close his place of business for a half day in order to allow every employee an opportunity to attend the outing, which will be open, not only to the members, but their wives and lady friends. Tickets will be $2 for men and $1.50 for ladies. A golf and tennis tournament are expected as a part of the afternoon's features, in addition to swimming contests and other athletic sports, followed at night by a dinner at the clubhouse, at which the prizes will be awarded, and various entertainment features introduced. Upon the conclusion of the dinner the celebration will be terminated with a dance.

Accessory Men Appointed.

In order to make the allied trade lines division of the Atlanta Automobile association of ever-increasing value to its members, W. R. C. Smith, president of this division of the Atlanta Automobile association, has recently appointed the following board of directors, who will meet monthly for the purpose of considering and passing upon matters affecting exclusively the interests of the allied trade lines division, which includes all members of the Atlanta Automobile association, except dealers in automobiles and trucks: W. R. C. Smith, chairman; C. W. Dobbs, J. M. Cochran, Lon Credelle, E. H. Elley, B. F. Hall, Wylie West, Charles W. Bell, F. G. Tegner, George P. Howard and Dunbar Abston.

In commenting upon the matter President Smith says: "It is my intention to make the allied trade lines division of maximum service to its members, and no stone will be left unturned to weld the membership together in a close bond of business fellowship and cooperation. Every effort will be made, through the influence of this division, and the power of the parent association, to maintain the business ethics and practices of automotive dealers at the present high standard of excellence, and prevent the possibility of the development of business practices calculated to destroy the confidence of the public in this industry." Commenting further, President Smith says: "The Atlanta association of automotive dealers is recognized as one of the largest and most representative in the country today, and its methods have been sought and accepted as a model by other associations in many sections of the United States."

Bank to Cost Half Million.
Vancouver, B. C.—The bank of Montreal has awarded the contract for its new building here, on the corner of Pender and Granville streets. It is expected that the building will cost when completed about $500,000. The building will be used as the headquarters for the bank in British Columbia.

Why it's True Blue

THE Oakland Six is true blue because it was designed with one very definite purpose in mind—to make it the finest light six in its class. Take Oakland closed cars for example. Here are real automobiles. They are true blue because their distinctive Fisher-built bodies are real closed car bodies—with no makeshifts nor compromises entering into their construction or appointments.

Oakland's Six-Cylinder Smoothness Means Greater Closed-Car Comfort

The Oakland engine is true blue because in it the natural advantages of a "Six" have been developed to a remarkable degree.

There is freedom from annoying vibration, which is essential to complete closed-car satisfaction; there is extreme flexibility which makes gear changing rarely necessary; there is a surprising ability to respond to unusual demands quickly and without fuss—all of which qualities you will surely seek in selecting your next closed-car.

Then there are four-wheel brakes (you certainly should not buy a car without this proved essential); exclusive centralized controls on the steering wheel; a special body finish which retains its lustre indefinitely, and a dozen other features.

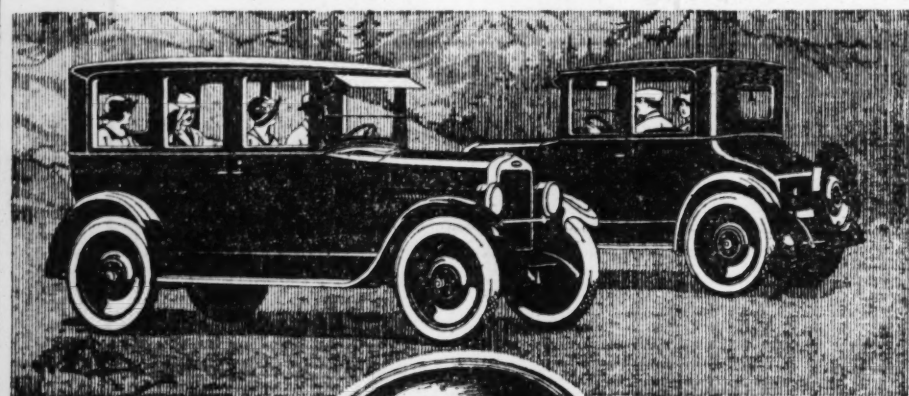

Isn't it true that the problem of choosing the right car is merely a matter of getting the most and the best for your money? Examine the True Blue Oakland Six. Drive it yourself. We welcome frank comparisons.

COMFORT URGE CREATED BALLOON TYPE TIRES

Comfort is one of the strongest desires to be found in the human race. The high state of civilization in which it is our privilege to live gives comforts far in excess of those ever dreamed of by ancestors of a hundred years ago. In spite of this fact there is a constant urge to seek comforts even greater than those at present enjoyed. One development leads to another; each shows the possibilities of further accomplishments. The balloon tire is one of the latest products of this urge.

The principle ideas which have prompted progress in transportation have been speed, comfort, economy and safety. The motor car of today is a wonderful mechanism in which these ideas have been incorporated very efficiently. The automobile, as it is known today, would have been impossible without the pneumatic tire. The developments of the tire industry have kept pace with the mechanical development of the automotive industry.

The perfection of tires has had much to do with the progress of the development of speed, comfort, economy and safety. Nevertheless it has been evident for the last few years that considerable improvement could be made in tires. An unmistakable indicator of this public desire was the prevalence of the practice of running on underinflated tires to obtain greater comfort. This economic loss indicated to Miller tire men that they should produce a tire of lighter sidewall, which would con-

TODAY—
Ride in this world-famous Six
—the outstanding car in the $1000 field

POWER, luxurious roominess, low upkeep and long life at low price!... a world-famous Six, the outstanding sensation of motordom today at $1045.

Now ride in it. Feel the thrill of its powerful six-cylinder L-head motor. Note that it embodies features found only in the most expensive cars. Consider that it is the product of a $90,000,000 company with 72 years of fine vehicle making to its credit.

Compare it with competitive cars at near its price; then with cars that sell for several hundred dollars more. Compare it for beauty, comfort, roominess, upholstery, for obvious refinements.

Compare it, too, for ease of handling, flexibility, power, quietness and lack of vibration. Don't take anyone's word that this car or that car at its price is "just as good." Find out for yourself.

Studebaker will place a Light-Six at your disposal for this purpose any time you name.

Being the world's largest producer of quality automobiles, Studebaker is thus in a position to give the utmost for the least.

Buy no car at $500 or more without making this test. Don't buy blindfolded.

—There are hundreds of patterns. Neat figures, white grounds and colored grounds. Checks and plaids—striking things in ratine effects on white grounds, smart combinations in dark colors. Some of the biggest sellers of the season are among this offering.

More Normandie Voiles in over a hundred new designs have just arrived. There are lots of imitations, but only one "Normandie." Plenty of lavenders, copens, grays, rose, navies, white and black and so on. 38 inches wide, 49c

Ginghams in quaint old English prints and gaily colored and original in design are among the charming things for both women's and children's dresses. Sturdy, durable, and colors will stand the test of frequent tubbing. 32 inches wide, Monday 50c

56-Inch Mirabella Sports Flannel, $2.95 Yd.

So practical, so smart are these flannels that they claim immediate attention for chic golf skirts, sleeveless frocks to be worn with Peter Pan blouses, and for summertime wraps of all kinds.

Not ordinary flannel, no, indeed! They're fine, soft and woven as smooth as broadcloth except they are as light as a feather in weight. Very wide, too, 56 inches, so that only a width or two is required for almost any costume.

Colors include: Powder blue, navy, brown, gold, orange, brickdust, tan, seafoam green, and cream.

All-Wool Twills in Sports Shades, $1.00

A good, heavy quality in colors that adapt themselves to the newest sports skirts, dresses or costumes. Among the colors shown are orange, seafoam green, wistaria, jade, copen, American beauty, cream. 36 inches wide.

Scarves Are Hand-Painted Striped or Printed

—Scarves have twined themselves into feminine favor for good, and these are the newest in design and colorings. Fibers in rich, Roman stripes. Crepe de chine in lovely floral effects, sometimes with solid colors. Georgettes in shades for evening, exquisitely hand painted. $1.75 to $5.95.

CAESAR—AND LODGE.

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, recently said in a speech at Buffalo that American participation in the world court is "as dead as Caesar," unless the country can be raised to its support. But in the past week there has been a great awakening. The ghost of the dead Caesar, in the shape of possible American participation in an international tribunal, has risen to plague the irreconcilable isolationists.

Just three days after Senator Walsh made his Buffalo speech the world court found its way back to the front page. Spokesmen for the Federal Council of Churches appeared before a subcommittee of the senate foreign relations committee and forcibly dragged the body from the shelf on which it has lain for fourteen months, of which Senator Walsh made his Buffalo speech the world court found its way back to the front page. Spokesmen for the Federal Council of Churches appeared before a subcommittee of the senate foreign relations committee and forcibly dragged the body from the shelf on which it has lain for fourteen months, of which Senator Walsh made his Buffalo speech the world court found its way back to the front page. Spokesmen for the Federal Council of Churches appeared before a subcommittee of the senate foreign relations committee and forcibly dragged the body from the shelf on which it has lain for fourteen months, of which Senator Walsh made his Buffalo speech the world court found its way back to the front page.

"I fear the world court because it is related to the league, which is as much to say that it is related to the chancelleries of Europe, whence involuntaries proceed. . . I am in favor of going into the world court with reservations, but an entirely different court, where reservations are unnecessary."

Evidently the introduction at this time by Senator Lodge, chairman of the foreign relations committee, of a resolution for the establishment of "a world court at The Hague," providing for the calling of a third Hague conference, is a clumsy effort of the leader of irreconcilables to further confuse the movement, begun by the late President Harding, and pushed vigorously since by President Coolidge, and to so tangle the situation that nothing of a constructive international co-operative nature may come out of congress.

Less than a week ago Senator Swanson, of Virginia, a democrat, offered a resolution to the effect that the United States adhere to the protocol of the permanent court of international justice, with identical the same reservations proposed by the late President Harding, and more recently by both President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes.

Senator Swanson is the ranking democrat on the foreign relations committee, and the resolution of its chairman, whose sincerity as to even a world court has always been questioned, only serves to show his desire to kill the whole program by complications.

When the Virginia senator introduced his resolution he accompanied it with the following very significant statement:

"I introduced this resolution to carry out the recommendations of President Harding and Secretary Hughes which were made to the senate some time ago. I have drawn it carefully, I think, so these purposes will be accomplished. I delayed introducing this resolution, hoping some republican would take active steps to carry out one of the principal recommendations of President Coolidge in his annual address to congress.

"I have been much disappointed that no republican in the senate has seen proper to aid President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes, and I do not think it should be further delayed.

"There is a widespread impression in the country and in the senate that the recommendation of the administration for adherence to the permanent court of international justice was simply a political gesture to relieve the republican party from broken promises and to aid the political situation for the coming campaign. The future treatment of this resolution by the committee on foreign relations of the senate and the senate will show whether this suspicion is justified or not.

"I think that if the administration is earnestly in favor of adherence to the permanent court of international justice a very substantial support on the republican side will be obtained, which with the democratic support would adopt the resolution. If the administration manifests no earnest interest in this matter the chances are it will not be passed."

That Senator Swanson wrote with prophetic wisdom is now illustrated by the resolution of Senator Lodge which "begs the issue," and goes back to the old Hague tribunal.

No wonder the president looks askant at the latest Lodge move to belaud the issue, for it clearly is not in keeping with his wishes, and is liable to precipitate another wrangle within and among the republican regulars before the Cleveland convention.

But it all serves to show that "Caesar's ghost" is not so much of a ghost after all, and that it has put Lodge to thinking.

MOTHER'S DAY.

There is no day in the year that means so much to the universal heart of man as does Mother's day. To every one of us it is a day of consecration, a day of happiness or a day of holiest memory, when each one of us prays that he may be the kind of man his mother would have him be.

It matters not whether a man be a saint or an infidel, whether he is counted in the ranks of the mighty or is numbered among the lowliest of the land—he has a mother, and if he has not loved her and honored her he is not worthy of being called a man.

"If I were hanged on the highest hill,
Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!
I know whose love would follow me still,
Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!"

"If I were drowned in the deepest sea,
Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!
I know whose tears would come down to me,
Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!"

"If I were damned of body and soul,
I know whose prayers would make me whole,
Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!"

Mothers of men face death to bear children. The mother love is of the same kind as God's love for his children.

On Calvary, the mother of Jesus stood by the cross. Her thoughts, her prayers, her love, were with Him until the last. And this greatest of all things on earth, the mother love, is a heritage that belongs to us all.

Mother's day is celebrated today as it will be celebrated through the years. The man who does not love his mother has not the power to love his country greatly—and so long as a nation sets aside one day in the year for the celebration of its mothers and as long as the day is fitly observed, just so long will the destiny of that nation be secure.

WARFIELD'S BEST WORK.

Announcement that the Seaboard Air Line has completed details for the building of important connections in Florida, enabling its system to establish direct connection between the east and west coasts of south Florida, and at the same time giving the Seaboard its own direct line from West Palm Beach to Richmond and, by traffic connection, with New York, is the most important railroad news that has developed in this country in a long time.

The magnitude of the enterprise, especially as it contributes to the development of Florida, puts S. Davies Warfield, president of the Seaboard, in a position where he shares with the late Henry B. Plant and H. M. Flagler the honor not only of bringing to the attention of the world the marvelous resources of Florida, but of contributing to its development to a degree that will forever link the names of all three with the magic growth of this "Land of Flowers."

Mr. Warfield has done a wonderful work with the Seaboard, but this is his most notable effort, for it marks the first great railroad development that has taken place in the south since the Great War—a marked tribute to his enterprise and to the confidence in which he is held by the financial world.

In organizing the new railroad company and the land company, Mr. Warfield has advanced a new policy in new railroad construction. It is the first time that those who supplied the money to the purchase of securities of a railroad have been given a participating interest in the increment in land values, giving substantial increased value to the money which is used in the construction of the railroad through it. The idea is a good one, not alone from the standpoint of giving the purchaser an added incentive to buy the securities but increases the profit of the railroad through the rapid development of the territory through which it runs.

The sale of these bonds by Mr. Warfield is a notable achievement. The development of the Seaboard Air Line railway company from the time of Mr. Warfield's active participation in the operation and management as its president forms an interesting chapter in American transportation history.

Mr. Warfield has never pretended to be a technical operating railroad executive. Prior to the time he accepted the office as president he was chairman of the board and the head of the system. Since he became president he has brought about him an organization second to that of no other railroad in the country.

The condition in which the Seaboard was returned to its owners after federal control is well known. He has put this property in the condition in which it is today and the culmination of this important work in Florida shows what initiative, foresight and good management will do.

Mr. Warfield has been an ardent supporter in the advancement of the interests of the entire south. He has given not only of his time but of his resources in bringing the advantages of the south to the attention of the country and the world, and this latest evidence of his enterprise is meeting generous response among the southern people.

THE GEORGE CLUB.

There are now in Washington city 100 members of the "George club," a number of whom are United States senators. This is comforting news, for it goes to prove that if there is nothing else in the senate worth mentioning there is at least a sense of humor there! The George club referred to is a non-political organization, founded in Chicago, and officially called "The Society for the Prevention of Calling Pullman Car Porters 'George'." The patron saint of the organization is, quite naturally, George Washington.

The aim of this society is to enroll 100,000 members whose first or last name is George. Each member must pledge himself to discourage the practice of calling Pullman and parlor car porters "George," and of course no member of the club can himself commit the blunder without danger of being summarily dismissed from the organization!

There should be no difficulty in recruiting the club up to full war strength, for man is by nature a joiner. As for those poor mortals who are so unfortunate as to have been christened "Percival" or "John" or "Micajah," they will stand aside and politely say: "Let George do it," and when the full quota of 100,000 shall have been attained, the resounding cry of "By George!" will go up from the uninitiated!

Among the members of the club we find already enrolled Senators Pepper, Moses, Norris, McLean, and our own Senator George—of Georgia! Georges Clemenceau and George M. Cohan are honorary members, but no mention has yet been made of George V. or of Georges Carpentier.

Public spirited citizens of the United States should do, may will do, their utmost to further the interests of the George club. The Georges have done a lot for us. George III, assisted by George Washington, made it possible for us to get away to a flying start, and George Westinghouse has made it possible for us to ease down and stop. The Pullman porters have not been consulted, but no doubt George Washington Lincoln Brown by any other name will make up berths just as satisfactorily as he has done for years. The name of "Surtax" might not be inappropriate. It has a distinguished ring to it. Moreover, the public, by constant repetition of the name, might become better aware of the high cost of Pullman fare, for which, by the way, that company is not responsible as it does not even get all the money it is forced by law to charge for tickets.

THE LITTLE CHURCH.

For generations, the "Little Church Around the Corner," at Twenty-ninth street, near Madison avenue, has had a peculiar influence on the lives of many New Yorkers; outside of the city, the very name of the church has served as an inspiration to thousands. There is a certain tenderness, a certain quality of human sympathy in the name, even to those who do not know how the Church of the Transfiguration became the Little Church Around the Corner.

The story is told in The New York Times magazine section. When George Holland, the famous comic actor, died in 1870, just five days before Christmas, his friend, Joe Jefferson, himself now among the immortals, went to the rector of the Church of the Atonement to arrange for funeral services from that church. The rector, no doubt following the dictates of his conscience, refused to have anything to do with the burial, for George Holland had been a "play-actor," and he recommended to Mr. Jefferson that he try a certain church "around the corner," from which actors had from time to time been buried.

When it became known that the Rev. William T. Sabine, rector of the Church of the Atonement, had refused to bury George Holland from his church because George Holland had been an actor and that he had referred the dead man's friend to "a church around the corner," public condemnation was evoked at every hand. Newspapers attacked the rector of the Church of the Atonement and printed commendatory words and poems of praise for that other church, which from that day has been best known as the Little Church Around the Corner. It is not necessary to append a moral to adorn the tale. The rector of the Church of the Atonement was no doubt sincere, but he was also narrow-minded and bigoted. He had warned his congregation about theaters, because moral lessons were not taught by actors on the stage! Today the Church of the Atonement is forgotten. It has been demolished for many years, and its congregation scattered. Some members, perhaps, began attending the Little Church Around the Corner, from which George Holland, who had made countless thousands laugh, was buried, and where "moral lessons," as compared with gentleness and love and human understanding, were held to be but the least of the teachings of Christ.

THE MEMORIAL SHELTER.

The woman's section of today's Constitution carries an interesting story of the completion of the Memorial Shelter erected at Base Hospital No. 48, and which will be dedicated tomorrow with appropriate ceremonies in which civil and military officials will participate.

This splendid memorial is due primarily to the indefatigable efforts of Mrs. H. M. Nicholes, chairman of the soldier relief committee for Hospital No. 48, for the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, and to Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president of the federation.

They have given their time unceasingly to this tribute to the valor of our soldiers in the Great war, and they have been very substantially helped by the various organizations to whom credit is given in the article which carries the story of the completion of the memorial.

The dedication of the memorial on Monday will be an interesting event and the public is cordially invited to attend the exercises.

Too much praise cannot be given to Mrs. Nicholes and Mrs. Stevens for what they have done in the building of this memorial which will stand not only as a tribute to our noble soldiers, but will at the same time be of great practical service to the soldiers at Fort McPherson and to the veterans who are being cared for in Hospital No. 48.

SOUTHERN EXPOSITION.

A great deal of interest is being taken by the southern states in the Southern Exposition to be held in New York next year.

The Manufacturers' Record, referring to this interest, and most highly commending it, says:

"The activity in preparing for the southern exposition by Georgia and Tennessee and other central southern states should stimulate every state in the south to be represented at that exposition. If any state should fail to be there, with best foot forward, it would miss one of the best opportunities, perhaps the best, which has ever been given to the south to push itself boldly and boldly straight into the heart of the east with an exhibit of resources which would command national attention."

Every state in the south should have an exhibit, and every state should exercise a friendly rivalry in having the best exhibit. Georgia is peculiarly fortunate in having much that will attract—for instance, Georgia granite, used in many of the great structures of the country, including the Lincoln memorial; Georgia clays that are unsurpassed for the highest ceramic artistry; Georgia nuts and fruits that have no superior in America, and that bring a premium in the markets of the country; Georgia manufactured cotton and wool products, including fabrics and cloths; Georgia iron and steel and machinery products; soft drink products, and numberless articles and commodities in which this state leads in manufacturing.

Even the Georgia people are not fully aware of the immensity of Georgia's manufacturing interests, and particularly the immensity of raw production by which the manufacturing interests can be materially increased.

The southern exposition in New York means the carrying of the south's industrial leadership to the doors of the great financial interests of America, and the world, and it should be productive of much interest of going businesses, but in attracting more capital to this section for great development purposes.

The enormous hydroelectric water power possibilities of the south should by all means be demonstrated, for no section can become great as a manufacturing center without this advantage, and no section with this great advantage can long remain dormant.

There is very little banjo-playing nowadays, and yet that musical instrument, in the right hands, can make a man with the rheumatism dance the old-time double-shuffle and do his part in a Virginia reel.

Noting that a Boston preacher "has come out in favor of aids to courtship," the Indianapolis News says: "Judging by divorce statistics, the great need is for aids to staying married."

High time for the slow Sun to warm the world up a little, and thus keep the fruit crop killers from making good.

The Living Light.

BY FRANK L. STANTON

No tears of the years have dimmed today
The beautiful eyes that look Love's way—
The Love that hears what the angels say
And the faith-sweet prayers that the children pray.

The Love that in Light
And in Darkness lives,
And, wounded and sorrowing,
Still forgives.

It is high as heaven, but the lowliest place
Shines in the light of a Mother's face;
And a dying world shall feel that Light,
Deathless still in the last, deep Night.

And her Love to claim
Where the high hosts throng,
With a Mother's name
In an angel's song.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Mother, The Holiest Thing on Earth

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Carried home wounded from the war. Lungs bursting with vile poison gas. Cheeks shrunken and eyes staring wildly as if in terror. Restless, restless, delicious. Carried home to die.

The last hour approaches, the last minutes. Life is ebbing away and choking away. Then my mother bent over him. She tried to soothe his agony.

"No terror there, where you go. Just peace and quiet, beautiful shaded avenues and glorious sunlight."

"But mother, the light will hurt my eyes."

"There will be heavenly music. Sweet voices and instruments that we do not know," she went on.

Again the restless boy stirred. He was battling for breath. The Croix de Guerre that we had pinned on his clothing a few days before, he tore off in paroxysm of coughing.

"Mother, you know I cannot stand the noise of singing. I make Jean stop every time he starts playing that mournful cello."

Then mother was silent. She had no more words. Just tears hastily dried, care-worn glances and tender movements. She straightened the pillow. She placed her arm under the tired head of her boy. She pressed the golden head of that soldier of liberty against her breast. Then his face lost that terrible expression. Then the coughing stopped and the body relaxed. Peace came.

The old church carillon pealed softly in the distance.

A smile lighted on the lips that had been drawn and a whisper came, the last word: "Mother, if you hold my head, that is all the heaven I want."

Yes, mother love is heaven and heaven is mother love. It is all enduring and understands all. Patient and forgiving, healing and strengthening even in the hour before the journey across the dark river.

Over our family pew in the old cathedral across the ocean hung a tremendous lamp. It was made of solid, hand-carved silver. Perched on top of the massive arms of the lamp midst the flickering candles there were three golden birds. They were swans. The mother swan was depicted in the act of ripping her own breast with her beak so that the two small swans might drink her blood, for it was a time of terrible drought. The golden bird in the middle was a dove. How it intrigued and mystified us. Its meaning was overwhelming.

Sunday Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

Vest Pocket Edition of Health.

There is a vast difference between morbid curiosity or introspection and the study of health for health's sake. Some people of shallow education profess a contempt for all health teaching, which they assume is fashioned after the good old almanacs and the testimonials therein. I remember how we used to collect the almanacs for the jokes they generally published, for example, "What's the matter? 'Never mind.' 'Then what is mind?' 'No matter.'"

A connoisseur of healthy disposition might acquire a large collection of books on health today. They come in several classes. First are the big "doctor books," replete with symptoms in assorted lists to suit all imaginations. A second class of books purporting to deal with health consists of the plausible but unscientific idea of various faddists who concoct freak theories or systems and bring modern salesmanship into play to sell the skin. These books are very popular with the people Mr. Billings discovered. A third class of books dealing with health is made up of honest contributions by authors who are qualified and competent to teach health, and these are at least as numerous as the books in the other two classes—but believe you me, he didn't want to get married. TEXT AND PRETEXT

A Religious Democracy

BY M. ASHBY JONES, D. D.

It is good to think the time has come when there is a general and, perhaps we may say, a sympathetic interest in all religious groups who are sincerely trying to bring forward the day when the will of God shall be done on earth. The old jealousies and enmities between those who differ as to how this purpose may be accomplished are fast fading away. It does not mean that men hold with any less loyalty to their sentiments, traditions and convictions, but that there has come into the religious world more of the spirit of Him who said, "He that is not against us is for us."

It is in view of these considerations that I take it for granted the public generally is interested in the coming of the Southern Baptist convention to our capital city for its annual meeting, and that most people will be glad to know some general facts which are characteristic of this religious group of people.

Nature of Organization.
Georgians will be interested to know that the Southern Baptist convention was organized in 1848 in Augusta, Ga. It was born out of the old bitter and divisive controversy concerning slavery, between the northern and southern people. This same division took place in all of the Protestant denominations of America, with the exception of our Episcopal brethren. This division is one of the bitter fruits of that terrible fratricidal strife. It was quite characteristic of the Baptist people, that the division took place when the general convention refused to send slave-owners as missionaries. The reason I call this characteristic is, that all Baptist church bodies of whatever name are purely cooperative societies for the purpose of carrying on missionary and benevolent enterprises.

The convention which meets here this week declares in its constitution that it is organized "for the purpose of carrying into effect the benevolent intention of our constituents, by organizing a plan for eliciting, combining and directing the energies of the denomination for the propagation of the gospel." In another article it declares, "It shall be the design of the convention to promote foreign and domestic missions, and other important objects connected with the Redeemer's kingdom." The interesting thing is that this large group of people is held together in a cooperative union, and that there is no where in its constitution or by-laws a line of agreement upon doctrinal beliefs. It is composed entirely of delegates from independent churches and missions, and it is a fact that have contributed to the mission work of the

Every religious group ought to make some characteristic contribution to the spiritual wealth of the world. Baptists have, perhaps, put their greatest emphasis upon the "rights" of the individual. In this critical day for democracy all over the world, it is well to say over and over again that a consciousness of rights, without a consciousness of corresponding responsibilities, is a menace to freedom. Perhaps the world is coming nearer than ever before to granting the right of the individual within the realm of the spirit, but I am convinced that with the granting of that right will come the imperious demand that each shall be matched by responsibilities.

Then he went down, battled valiantly with the enemy, wrestled the knife away and held him while his true servants sent for the police. His true servants were shown in conquering his fear.

The gross receipts of six motion picture houses on Broadway one week recently were near $200,000. One movie has been running on Broadway now for 58 weeks.

The mammoth hotels of New York have never been able to give the perfect service they desire on account of the amazing details that must be attended to to prevent snarls. It has been discovered that for a single guest more than twenty-five different forms and reports must be made. However, the greatest efficiency minds are at work and reports are conditions are far better than they were a year ago.

The biggest problem is good telephone service. With hundreds of guests moving in and out daily the task of the telephone operators becomes a difficult one. Nothing is quite so important to the New York hotel patron as his phone calls. Bad service may trip him up on some big deal or make his visit here absolutely of no value.

The dream of New York's biggest hotel—the Commonwealth—is now a mere hole in the ground on Seventh avenue. Thousands thought well of the stock-selling idea. It would be pleasant to own stock in the hotel where one stopped in New York. And there was the added array of cold facts that few New York hotels, going bankrupt. Nearly all are profit-sharing. Here was a scheme that appeared sound, yet it was one of the most colossal failures in financing New York has had in many years.

It takes some time for theaters to overcome a hoodoo. There are three in New York that have a constant succession of failures. They are admirably located, handsomely decorated, comfortable and up-to-the-minute in every way, yet they have had nothing but theatrical "flops." Once a theater gets away from a flop, it is difficult to overcome the audience's memory that "they saw a bad play there." There are several theaters that are considered "lucky houses."

Although it is one of the smallest playhouses, it usually has a successful play. The New Amsterdam is another.

A stranger walked up to a red cap in the Grand Central station and handed him an envelope four months ago. He asked him to hold it while he went to the information bureau. He has never returned. In the envelope was several $20 bills and a few bills of smaller denomination.

Still another little metropolitan mystery concerns a valise that was left in a store on Forty-second street by a woman. She stepped into the place about a year ago and asked to leave the valise. It was opened recently and found to contain several bonds of marketable value.

There is a woman who several years ago opened a ladies' dressmaking establishment in a private home on Madison avenue. She had been employed in another establishment of this sort and was successful. Old and new customers came. One afternoon, after a harassing day, she told her chief assistant that she was not coming back any more. "You take charge of things for me," she said. "There was more than a year ago and she has kept her word. The place is still flourishing."

Strugglers and Stragglers

Some people take things easy all the time—even the lead in the race for success and prosperity!

Then there are others who toil along laboriously without seeming to accomplish anything at all.

Things have changed of late. The Manly Art of Winning has been made an exact science. Nowadays it's the strugglers who are the stragglers.

And this change—which makes succeeding almost effortless—has been wrought by the introduction of The Constitution's A-B-C Classified Section into the workaday lives of people.

It isn't necessary to be a struggler—or a straggler. Taking things easy—including the lead in the race—depends on reading the classified ads daily!

80 Building Lots and Four

Six-Room Bungalows

Wednesday, May 14,

at 10 A. M.

THE PROPERTY IS KNOWN AS

"DEFOOR HEIGHTS"

and is located on and adjacent to Defoor Avenue just off Howell Mill Road.

Advantages

WITHIN two blocks of the car line, close to an excellent community center where you can buy most anything you want, near churches and a fine school, these lots present an opportunity to the home-owning citizen. You can build a home, live in it, enjoy life as you should, give the children all the advantages they should have with the satisfaction of knowing your property will enhance in value.

Conveniences

ALL conveniences except gas are right at hand and may be obtained at a nominal cost. The lots are beautifully shaded with an abundance of virgin shade and the whole subdivision has the appearance of a park.

MR. GOOD CITIZEN, go out and look over these lots—select the one you want. You can buy it at your OWN PRICE. Build a home for your family and pay your debt to them—they deserve it.

Four Bungalows

INCLUDED in the sale will be four practically new six-room bungalows. You can buy them at your own price. Go out and select the one you want, and then—attend the sale. This is an opportunity you can't afford to overlook.

Builders--Investors

HERE is an opportunity of the first water, one that live investors and prospective builders cannot afford to overlook. Right in the heart of a steadily growing section, we are offering property of the highest type, suitable for homes for people of moderate means. The prices at which you will be able to secure this property render it your duty as a business man to attend this sale. Remember: You name your own price.

BARBECUE will be served free, prepared by one of the south's finest "cue experts and a brass band will be on hand to entertain you. Come out and bring the children and enjoy the day out in the open.

TAKE Howell Mill Road car and get off at Defoor Avenue, walk two blocks west. Our representatives will be there to welcome you.

Remember, Wednesday
May 14th, at 10 O'Clock

FIVE-ACRE

INDUSTRIAL SITE

TO BE SOLD AT

Trade Your Farm for Income

Bearing City Property

WE HAVE FULL INFORMATION and attractive prices on many of the best apartment houses in Atlanta; some of the owners are interested in farm lands. Nearly every city man likes to own a farm; he looks forward to the time when we can live in the country.

WE ARE OFFERING a 2-story brick apartment house containing 12 units showing an annual return of $10,200. The owner has authorized us to sell for $75,000 and take a clear farm for part payment. This is offered at $200,000 and the owner will a good farm; he looks forward to the time when we can live in the country.

IN TRADES OF THIS KIND the benefits are mutual; perhaps you are loaded down with unprofitable country real estate holdings and would like to exchange for a profitable rent paying city investment. If you own a good unincumbered farm and wish to figure on an exchange for Atlanta city property let us hear from you.

Miss Robison To Wed Mr. West At Monroe

Athens, Ga., May 10.—Much cordial interest centers in the announcement today of the engagement of Miss Ruby Robison, of Monroe, and Henry Haynes West, of Athens, the wedding to be a beautiful affair early in June at the home of John Simonton Robison, father of the bride-elect, near Monroe.

Miss Robison, who was educated at the Monroe High school and the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville, is a young woman of exceptional talent, and is charming and lovable. She holds a prominent position in society in Monroe and Walton county, adding to her numerous social duties a round of church and missionary obligations, occupying herself with visiting among the sick and alleviating suffering among those less fortunate than herself. She has been closely associated for years with the work of the Baptist Young People's union and Woman's missionary activities and has been remarkably successful in all her efforts, having been at the head of the B. Y. P. U. for a number of years. Miss Robison represents a family of charming women and distinguished men, the Robisons, Griffiths, Hagoods and Strouds, of Walton county and Georgia, all identified with the social, civic and religious life of their respective communities.

Mr. West is a son of Judge Henry S. West, prominent lawyer and scholar of Athens, and the late Mrs. Marion Lampkin West. He is a law partner of his father and is successfully established in his profession and in business circles as well. At the time of the state convention of the American Legion here he was commander of the Allen Fleming post. His service in the World war was over two years' duration, he being in the first officers' training camp at Fort MePherson.

Mr. West graduated from the University of Georgia with distinction in law, his early education being obtained at the Athens High school and Emory college at Oxford. He is a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity and enjoys the distinction of being the only man ever to attend the University of Georgia who won every speaker's place. While a student at Georgia, Mr. West was city editor of the Athens Daily Herald and editor-in-chief of the Georgian, college publication.

Mr. West comes of distinguished lineage, the long list bearing the names of Thomas West, who was Lord Delaware, first governor of Virginia; Major William Grady, famous in Revolutionary times, and others on his paternal side, his mother's forebears, the Haynes, Lampkins and Phelps, being aristocrats of Virginia and ardent Revolutionary heroes.

Miss Vaughan Weds Dr. Rogers.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hallahan, of Augusta, announce the marriage of their sister, Miss Elizabeth Vaughan, to G. H. Rogers, on April 25, in Los Angeles, Cal.

RADFORD—BISHOP.

Mrs. W. S. Radford, of Augusta, announces the engagement of her daughter, Florence Wilma, to James Hapoldt Bishop, the marriage to take place at the home of the bride's mother June 14.

VIDETTO—ROBINSON.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert J. Videtto, of Augusta, announce the engagement of their daughter, Robbie, to Henry Allen Robinson, formerly of Augusta, now of College Station, Texas, the wedding to be solemnized at high noon, Tuesday, June 17, at the First Baptist church in Augusta.

ROBISON—WEST.

John S. Robison, of Monroe, announces the engagement of his daughter, Ruby, to Henry Haynes West, of Athens, the marriage to be solemnized in June. No cards.

JENKINS—HALL.

Mr. and Mrs. William Porter Jenkins, of Chattanooga, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Lea, to Marvin Green Hall, the wedding to take place early in June.

McCULLOCH—GOLDSMITH.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Law, of Marietta, Ga., announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Tudor McCulloch, to Howard Eugene Goldsmith, the wedding to take place in June.

Emeralds and Diamonds Much In Vogue

The vogue for emeralds so strongly stimulated by the Duke of York in making the great green gem the principal stone for his engagement ring still persists. Fashion especially favors just what the Duke of York selected, an emerald set on either side with diamonds. Both stones gain in brilliancy and color fire by this combination.

Among the more distinctive diamond and emerald pieces in our collection is the three-stone brooch ring with a square cut emerald in the center of two diamonds. The band is all platinum decorated with small diamonds. The emerald is of very fine color and the formation is as nearly without flaw as any emerald we have ever seen.

Cooper-Ellenburg Wedding Plans Of Interest

Augusta, Ga., May 10.—Cordial and widespread social interest centers in the approaching marriage of Miss Christine Cooper and William J. Ellenburg, which will be solemnized Saturday, May 17, at 1 o'clock at the Cooper home in North Augusta, S. C.

Miss Etelle Cooper will be her sister's maid of honor. Mrs. R. W. Hornsby, of Spartanburg, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Norman Lawrence, of North Augusta, will be the matrons of honor, and Miss Clio Hendrix, of Easley, S. C., and Miss Clara Ellenburg will be the two bridesmaids.

Flower girls are Vira Barker, Beth Hornsby and Christine Lawrence, and Walter Stephens will be ring bearer.

The best man will be R. W. Hornsby, of Spartanburg, S. C. Following the ceremony a buffet breakfast will be served, after which the young couple will leave for a northern wedding journey, and on their return will make their home in Greenwood, S. C., where Mr. Ellenburg is affiliated in business with his father. Among the many social affairs to be given for Miss Cooper will be an afternoon tea with which Mrs. Walter A. Stephens will entertain on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Barker will give a dinner party Wednesday night in her honor. Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Cooper will give a large reception Friday evening at their home in North Augusta.

Miss Greiner

Weds Mr. Harvey.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Ella Fair Greiner and Merrill Augustus Harvey, which was solemnized at the parsonage of Asbury Methodist church, Rev. B. F. Mizel officiating.

The bride wore a stylish traveling suit of blue-colored tulle. Her flowers were a corsage bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. After a visit to Atlanta and other places of interest Mr. and Mrs. Harvey will be at home at 1224 Ellis street.

Miss DeJarnette Weds Harry Heins At Home Ceremony

The wedding of Miss Annie Laura de Jarnette and Harry Alfred Heins was a brilliant social event of Wednesday, April 30, taking place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. de Jarnette, 38 Albion avenue. The impressive ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. M. Pierce, pastor of the Druid Hills Methodist church.

The house was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns, southern smilax and cut flowers. The ceremony took place before an improvised altar of palms in the spacious living room. Tall pedestals holding cathedral candelabra with unsanded tapers spread a soft glow throughout the rooms.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Henrietta Collins, of Moultrie, Ga., sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," this having been sung at the wedding of the bride's mother, Miss Lady Zue McWilliams, of Stockbridge, Ga., sang "All For You." Miss Collins' gown was of yellow canton crepe. Miss McWilliams was gown in pink georgette, heavily beaded in crystal beads. Both wore corsages of sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

The wedding march from Mendelssohn was played by Miss Collins. The attendants were the four sisters of the bride. The first to enter was

The marriage of Miss Jennings and Mr. Williams was a beautiful social event of April 16, taking place at the First Methodist church in West Point. Reading from left to right they are Mrs. Clifton Horsley, Mrs. Reuben J. Jennings, Miss Gladys Jennings, the bride, Miss Martha Hart, Miss Nancy Booker, Miss Belle Lanier, Miss Frances Britt, Miss Laura McCulloch. The little flower girl standing in front is Miss Ann Williams.

Mrs. Burt E. Bolton. She was gown in beige georgette, beaded in crystal beads. The next to enter was Mrs. W. T. Comer, Jr. She wore blue georgette combined with silver. Entering next was Miss Katharine de Jarnette, gown in flesh-colored georgette crepe combined with silver. Each carried a bouquet of Columbia roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Jessie de Jarnette, was the next to enter. She wore rose georgette heavily beaded in crystal beads. Her flowers were Ophelia roses and swansons. Carlton Dunlap, nephew of the groom, was ringbearer and wore a white satin suit, carrying the ring in an Easter egg. Little Margaret Maret, the flower girl, wore blue taffeta trimmed in cream lace and carried a basket of roses.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. She was radiantly lovely in white satin trimmed in seed pearls and lace. The lace was the same that was used on the wedding gown of her paternal grandmother in 1868. Her veil was caught around the head with real orange blossoms from California. The groom entered with his best man, Dr. Harvey C. Hallum.

Mrs. de Jarnette, mother of the bride, was gown in cream lace over blue crepe de chine.

Mrs. Bertha Heins, mother of the groom, wore gray canton crepe beaded in cut steel beads. Each wore a corsage of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. de Jarnette. She is of the lovely brunette type, and by her charming personality has won for herself a host of friends wherever she has been. She is a graduate of Girls' High school of Atlanta, and later attended LaGrange college, where she was a popular member of the Glee club, president of her class and a member of the Alpha Phi Beta sorority.

Mr. Heins is office manager of the United Motors Service, Inc., and captain of Company A, 200th infantry, Georgia national guard, and an officer of the Gate City guard. He is popular among the older as well as the younger set of Atlanta.

A reception followed the ceremony. About 300 guests were present. Later in the evening Mr. Heins and his bride left for an extensive wedding tour through Florida. After May 15 they will be at home at 165 Barnett street.

Miss Avera Weds Mr. Potter.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Ethel Avera and James Thomas Potter, the ceremony being quietly performed on Wednesday evening, April 30, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. T. Morgan, 473 Beecher street. Rev. C. A. Morton, pastor of Stewart Avenue Methodist church, officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter are at home to their friends at 59 West Fifth street.

Miss Dorothy Heyward Weds Mr. McNamara.

Savannah, May 10.—Miss Dorothy Heyward, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Daniel Heyward, was married Saturday evening to Hanson McNamara, of Jacksonville, Fla., at St. John's church at 6 o'clock. Rev. W. A. Jonnard officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, George C. Heyward, Jr. Her sister, Mrs. Reiman McNamara, was matron of honor, and another sister, Miss Helen Heyward, was maid of honor. Mr. McNamara had as his best man his brother, Reiman McNamara, and the ushers were Lauren Pierce, of Fort Oglethorpe; Carl Oltrogge, of Jacksonville, Edward B. Patrick and De Coary Martin. The wedding was followed by a small and informal reception for the immediate family at the home of the bride on West Thirty-first street.

Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Laurens Pierce and Mrs. Pierce, Sr., of Fort Oglethorpe; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. McNamara, of Jacksonville; Mrs. Roger Clark, of Louisville; the bride's sister, Mrs. Emmett Wilson, and her children, of Birmingham, and Mrs. George H. Labreque, of Charleston, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Oltrogge, of Jacksonville.

Business Woman's League To Meet Sunday.

The Business Woman's league of the West End Baptist church will meet Sunday afternoon, May 11, at 3 o'clock in the Fidelia class room. Miss Emma Leachman, of the Baptist Home Board, will be the speaker of the occasion, and music will be furnished by little Miss Agnes Pitts, a member of the Sunbeam band. All business women of the church are most cordially invited to this meeting.

Miss Davis Will Wed Mr. Croley, Of Dallas, Texas

Of interest in Atlanta and throughout Texas is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Edythe Miriam Davis, formerly of Austin, Texas, and Lanham Croley, of Dallas, Texas. Miss Davis is the only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Davis. She attended the State University of Texas and Agnes Scott college, where she received her B. A. degree in 1922. The following year she completed the course in the Carnegie Library school of Atlanta, and since that time has been connected with the Georgia Library commission.

Mr. Croley, the only son of Mrs. Maud Croley, of Dallas, Texas, received his education at Southwestern university and the state university, where he was a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He received his B. A. and L.L.D. degrees from the Texas State university and since then has been a member of a prominent law firm in Dallas.

Miss Alberson Weds John Gaudy Dicks.

Mrs. J. E. Alberson, of Fitzgerald, Ga., announces the marriage of her daughter, Mabel Clarice, to John Gaudy Dicks, of Atlanta, Ga., which was solemnized on the evening of May 10.

Mrs. Dicks possesses a charming personality and is one of Fitzgerald's most popular girls. Mr. Dicks holds a responsible position with the Atlanta & West Point railroad, and this announcement will be of much interest to their hosts of friends both here and in south Georgia.

Mr. and Mrs. Dicks left immediately after the ceremony for a short wedding trip, after which they will be at home to their friends at 27 Durant place, Atlanta.

Miss Hollis Honors Bride-Elect.

An event of Saturday was the kitchen shower at which Miss Thelma Hollis entertained at her home in West End, complimenting Miss Edith Patterson, a bride-elect, whose marriage to Walter Hoke Blair will take place May 28.

Pink and white roses in silver baskets placed on consoles were used as decorations. The tea table arranged in the dining room was overlaid with a lace cover and graced with a silver basket of roses, and at one end was a miniature bride.

Miss Patterson's gown was of tan canton crepe.

Invited to meet the honor guest were Misses Elizabeth Patterson, Margaret Ford, Sarah Baker, Pearl Blair, Thelma Currie, Edith Davis, Nellie Sheffield, Nell Jensen, Dorothy Dugan, Algin Currie, Mrs. Veal, Mrs. Arthur Myers, Mrs. Watkins, Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Vaughan.

Those taking part will be May Gray, Catherine Gray, Betty Stone, Dorothy Collier, Charlotte Burnett, Mary Dure, Carolyn Adams, Kathryn Campbell, Dorothy Bauman, Anne Goldberg and Eleisa Leokoff. The program will consist of solo and ensemble numbers including quartet arrangements of selections from Carmen and Faust.

On May 15, at 4 o'clock, the pupils of Miss Florence Eckford will give a demonstration of the Fletcher Music Method.

Those taking part will be Marion and Lucia Smith, Deas Smith, Octavia Riley, Martha Burnett, Sarah Kennan, Muriel Pierce, Lawrence Thompson and Marjorie Campbell.

Piano Recital.

The following students of Walter Chapman will be heard in a piano recital on Saturday, May 17, at 8:15 o'clock: Katherine Yow, Louise Candler, Modena McPherson, Emily Matthews, Josephine Scott, Mary Inman Pearce, Thelma Williamson, Harriet Collier, Suzanne Springer, Sara Cone, Marion Wolfe, Edna Ruffy.

To other recitals to be given at the Washington seminary this week the public, as well as the patrons and friends of the school, is cordially invited.

Friday, May 9 the student body of the Washington seminary held their May day celebration. From the dashing entrance of the herald, Miss Doughty Manley, on horseback in a white suit trimmed with gold, until the Sam Anan put the lost children to sleep, it was a beautiful living motion picture in a perfect out-door setting. Miss Nell Brawner was queen and her maids of honor were Misses Catherine Candler, Marion Wolfe, Virginia Dabney and Adeline Winston.

Domestic Art Exhibit.

The members of the Domestic Art class had an exhibit on Friday afternoon of the garments made by them during the year.

Attractive Figures in May Festival at Washington Seminary

Normal School Alumnae To Hold Meeting.

The Alumnae association of the State Normal school, Athens, Ga., will hold its annual meeting May 24 at the State Normal school. This is one of the most important features of the commencement session of S. N. S. The general meeting, including the regular business session of the association, will be held Saturday morning at 11 o'clock in the Pound auditorium. The speaker of this session will be Chancellor D. C. Barrow.

Of unusual interest is the social feature of the day, which will be an old fashioned garden party held in the dining hall Saturday evening. In addition to the usual program of this hour, the old dances such as the Virginia Reel, Minuet, etc., will be enjoyed by all wishing to participate.

All graduates of the school are invited and urged to attend both of these sessions. All those planning to attend the garden party Saturday evening will please notify Miss Kate E. Hicks, president, Alumnae association, S. N. S., Athens, Ga., not later than Thursday, May 22.

Graduating Class Is Honored at Biltmore Tea-Dance

The Sacred Heart alumnae entertained the members of the 1924 graduating class of the Sacred Heart High school at the Saturday afternoon tea-dance at the Biltmore hotel.

The officers of the alumnae who acted as hostesses were: Miss Isabel Brady, president, and Miss Alma Bean, secretary.

Forty guests were present, including 14 members of the graduating class.

Agnes Scott Girls Give Luncheon.

The Sophomore Sisters of Agnes Scott gave a luncheon in the ballroom of the Biltmore hotel Saturday, May 10, at 2:30 o'clock.

Every year the seniors at Agnes Scott, following an established custom, select "sophomore sisters," each senior taking some particular sophomore under her care for the year. These proteges in turn entertain their big sisters at a luncheon before graduation.

The table was in the shape of a horseshoe, and there were about one hundred girls present. Three senior faculty members, Miss Julia Rothermel, Miss Louise Hale and Robert Holt, and two sophomore faculty members, Miss Leslie Gaylord and Miss Isabel Randolph, were guests at the luncheon.

Little Miss Graham Is Honor Guest.

Captain and Mrs. Grover C. Graham entertained a group of children at the birthday of their little daughter when she celebrated her sixth birthday at their quarters at Fort McPherson on Friday afternoon.

The table was lovely with its decorations of pink and white, the crystal candlesticks being topped with pink roses holding white candles. The central piece was a vase of white sweet peas. The cake was beautifully decorated with six pink candles. Those invited were: Adair Cook, Gilbert Cook, Margaret Ellen Woodland, Virginia Woodland, Josephine Bolling, Eva Keller, Virginia Hulse, Catherine Printup, Jim Brown, Donovan Yeuell, Owen Yeuell, Polly Webber, Willis Mills and Betty Jones.

Today Is Mother's Day!

Mother, who is so careful of the family's health, so jealous of its appearance, worries more than most folks know about the family wash.

If we have made Mother's year brighter and happier by relieving her of the ever-new problem of family wash each week, then we have gone far toward achieving our ideal of service.

Lovely Bride of Yesterday

Mrs. William Louis Heinz, who before her marriage on Saturday was Miss Julia Greene. The wedding of Miss Greene and Mr. Heinz was a beautiful social affair of Saturday, taking place at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Kate Greene Hess, at her home in Kirkwood.

Shower Is Given For Bride-Elect.

One of the loveliest parties given Saturday was a kitchen shower at which Mr. and Mrs. Buren Hitchcock entertained at their home on Gordon road, in honor of Miss Jaynell Hitchcock, whose marriage to Cason Poole will be a brilliant event of next week.

Many lovely spring blossoms adorned the reception apartments. The table was overlaid with a cloth embroidered in field flowers and in the center was a basket filled with snapdragons, iris and sweet peas. The loes were in pink and white, carrying out the color motif of pink and white.

The prizes were won by Miss Rebecca Hitchcock, Mr. Starr and Mr. Phillips, who in turn presented them to the bride-elect.

Mrs. C. W. Childs assisted in receiving the guests.

Mrs. Hitchcock received her guests wearing a becoming gown of black chiffon trimmed with lace.

Mrs. Childs was beautifully gowned in cocoa shaded georgette with overdraperies of lace.

Miss Jaynell Hitchcock's lovely costume was of powder blue serge headed in crystals.

The guests included Miss Jaynell Hitchcock, Miss Janibel Poole, Miss Ruth Stone, Miss Jeffrey Bright, Miss Lena Tant, Miss Ruby Hitchcock, Miss Mary Poole, Miss Florence Poole, Miss Addie Coleman, Miss Lula Shirley, Miss Bertha Holbrook, Miss Malinda Maeger, Mr. Starr, Spurgeon Hitchcock, Mr. Allen, Marion Phillips, J. Miss Greene Weds Mr. Heinz At Home Ceremony on Saturday

Marked by simplicity and beauty was the marriage of Miss Julia Emery Greene and William Louis Heinz, the ceremony taking place Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Kate Greene Hess, in Kirkwood. The Rev. Dr. G. F. Venable, of Monroe, Ga., performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families of the young couple.

Mrs. Ed Park played Lohengrin's wedding march and during the ceremony she played softly "My Heart" and "Thy Sweet Voice" from "Samson and Delilah."

Beautiful Decorations.

The spacious reception rooms of the lower floor of the home were decorated with a profusion of cut flowers, the colors of pink and white prevailing. Handsome silver bowls and vases filled with pink and white peonies were artistically arranged on the mantels, bookcases and consoles.

The marriage service took place in the long living room in front of an alcove that was banked with stately green palms and ferns. Tall pedestal baskets filled with long stemmed Easter lilies stood guard on either side to the entrance of the alcove.

Other baskets of Easter lilies were placed at intervals among the greenery. Seven branched candelabra holding unshaded white tapers arose from the center of the background of palms, and shed a soft gleam over the pretty scene.

Preceding the bride was Miss Elizabeth Heard, little flower girl, and only attendant, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Heard, of Macon. She wore a dainty frock of shell-pink silk net over satin of the same shade and carried a French basket of pink rosebuds, the handle tied with a fluffy bow of pink tulle.

Lovely Bride.

The bride was lovely in an attractive one-piece costume of beige colored crepe Romaine embroidered in beads to match. Her hat was a wide brimmed model of tan Neapolitan straw combined with maline of the same shade and trimmed in blue and tan flowers. Her only ornament was a magnificent platinum bracelet set with diamonds and sapphires, gift of the groom.

She wore a handsome gown of black crepe embroidered in crystal beads. Coffee was poured from an antique silver service by Misses Katherine Rogers, Alpha Daniel and Laura Heard.

Mr. Heinz and his bride left during the afternoon for a wedding journey. On their return they will be at home for the present with the bride's mother in Kirkwood.

Assisting Mrs. Hess in entertaining were her daughters, Mrs. L. L. Rogers, Mrs. E. F. Chandler, Mrs. Judson Heard, of Macon; Mrs. Eugene Daniel and Mrs. W. B. Dillard, of West Point.

Mrs. Hess wore a handsome gown of black crepe embroidered in crystal beads.

Coffee was poured from an antique silver service by Misses Katherine Rogers, Alpha Daniel and Laura Heard.

Mr. Heinz and his bride left during the afternoon for a wedding journey. On their return they will be at home for the present with the bride's mother in Kirkwood.

Among those from out of town attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Taylor, Miss Ellen Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Judson Heard, Misses Laura, Elizabeth and Kate Heard, all of Macon, Ga.; Rev. and Mrs. G. F. Venable, Miss Mary Elizabeth Venable and John Venable, of Monroe, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Collins, of Moultrie, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brannan Dillard, of West Point, and Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Greene, of Dalton, Ga.

Prominent Families.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Kate Greene Hess and the late Dr. Alfred P. Greene. She is the granddaughter, on her paternal side, of the late Dr. H. H. Greene, who was one of Atlanta's pioneer citizens and most prominent Miss Fitts Weds Starr Maddox, Of Dalton, Ga.

Mrs. L. E. Fitts announces the marriage of her daughter, Lottie Carolyn, to Starr Maddox, of Dalton, Ga., the wedding having been quietly solemnized on April 24.

Mrs. Maddox is the attractive and talented daughter of Mrs. Fitts and the late Dr. P. W. Fitts. She received her education at Cox college where she specialized in piano and violin, being a brilliant and accomplished musician. She formerly resided with her family in Dalton and since coming to Atlanta to reside several years ago has endeavored herself to a wide circle of friends by her winning personality.

Mr. Maddox is a popular and prominent young business man of Dalton, where he is engaged in the automobile business. He and his bride will make their home in Dalton.

physicians. On her maternal side she is the granddaughter of Major G. W. Taylor, of Alabama, who is one of Alabama's most constructive and noted citizens. She graduated from Washington seminary, after which she traveled in the Orient with her mother, where they visited her sister, Miss Willie Burnice Greene, in Korea, where she is a missionary.

The bride is one of a group of attractive sisters and is a young woman of magnetic personality and charm.

Mr. Heinz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Heinz, who are well known Atlantans, and is the brother of Miss Mamie Heinz, Mrs. G. F. Venable, of Monroe, Ga., and Henry Heinz.

Mr. Heinz graduated from the Georgia School of Technology where he was a popular member of the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity. During the world war he served as captain with the Seventeenth engineers, spending one year overseas. He is one of Atlanta's most popular business men, being special agent of the Texas Oil company.

Mothers and Prohibition

BY MRS. AUGUST BURGHARD, MACON

The National Woman's Christian Temperance union director of child welfare, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Perkins, authority on all phases of both child welfare and prohibition, said recently when discussing mothers and prohibition.

"Kathleen Norris, in 'Killing the Dragon—the Dragon of Drink,' gives little Mary's question to her mother, 'Mother, who killed your dragon? Her mother smiled, and a quiet, confident look came into her eyes. 'American women will kill that dragon, God willing,' she said gravely. 'A greater force than any army ever was, anywhere. The women who have suffered shame and hurt and want and wrong for so many years. The women who have loved some poor victim of the dragon. And the women who have Marys and Tommies to guard from danger.'"

The W. C. T. U. calls upon all the mothers of little Marys and Tommies, upon every mother to stand with organized mother-love against the dragon of drink; to stand with organized mother-love for the preservation of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States for law observance and law enforcement as a guard for the children's future. For total abstinence must still be taught in the home, church and school, that prohibition may endure, that prohibition may be enforced, that the drink evil may be completely annihilated."

Mothers Must Stand Together. Mothers must stand together for total abstinence teaching, pledge-signing against all alcoholic drinks, fidelity to the law in personal habit, law observance in the community, unswerving loyalty to the constitution.

Even as in past years the liquor forces defied and violated community and state laws, so they continue to defy law, even the constitution of the United States. Who are these enemies of the home, and of society, and of the constitution? Those who are making large sums of money by the present sale of liquor, and those who hope to make money through the return of the liquor business, or if even wines and beer should be permitted; those who crave liquor as a beverage; those who belong to the selfish "personal liberty" group, and who care little for the welfare of others and see no sacredness in law; those who for political reasons are standing for a weakening of the enforcement code. To these groups must be added those who are indifferent, those who witness or know of law violation without comment, those who fail to vote for conscientious officials.

But the conflict is not ended. Deep in the hearts of conscientious men, deep in the hearts of mothers we find the solemn decree, the law shall be observed, the legalized liquor traffic in any form, under any guise, shall never return!

Message From President. Mrs. Leslie A. Dillard, president of the Georgia W. C. T. U.-Organized Mother-Love, sends the following Mothers' day message:

"Honor the Mothers of the First Crusade! Welcome the Mothers of the New Crusade! "Yes, honor those mothers who have marched through the years toward the ideals of the Woman's Christian Temperance union—prohibition, purity, peace! "The small band of women who, after a prayer meeting in that little Presbyterian church in Hillsboro, Ohio, fifty years ago last December, marched out in orderly manner up the street to implore saloon keepers to cease their soul-destroying business, little dreamed that their act would go sounding down the ages. The direct result was the Woman's Christian Temperance union not quite a year later at Cleveland, Ohio, and thus the entering wedge of total abstinence and prohibition was inserted in the nation.

"The movement appealed to the most religious and patriotic women of our nation, and they enlisted in the holy war 'For God and home and their live land.' To enlist was heroic, for in the old days it sometimes meant to brave misunderstanding, criticism and almost social ostracism; but these mother-hearted women marched steadily forward, their company constantly increasing in numbers.

"Many of the mothers who enlisted early are still living to participate in the jubilee meetings being held in the forty-eight states. The graves of those who have passed from earthly activities are visited with flowers, following the meetings in many places. We love to think of these promoted comrades as watching from the battlements of the glory land, and rejoicing with us in the day of victory.

"Oh, mothers of the first fifty years, we hail you! We honor you! Your fidelity and faith, your patriotism, your love of home and humanity—are the rich inheritance of the mothers now enlisting. How well you did your work! A law requiring the teaching of the effect of alcohol and other narcotics in the schools of every state, the changed attitude of the public mind, and the winning of the eighteenth amendment in our constitution—all attest the merit and success of your endeavor! Your effort was to secure the passage of the law; you have bequeathed to the mothers of today the task of creating sentiment that will bring the observance and the enforcement of the law.

"We hail the mothers of the new crusade! We welcome them to the ranks as they come into our ranks at the beginning of the second fifty years! We point them to our deathless words of success. Agitate, educate, organize! We rejoice with them in that the power of the 19th amendment is theirs to use!

"If perchance there should be some mothers who enlisted in the long ago who are not now in our active ranks, we beg you to join the local W. C. T. U. nearest to you, and enjoy the victory, for you shared the warfare. "Young mothers, not yet enlisted, we invite you to come. If you are taking to heart the welfare of your children and the children of your neighbors; if the weal of your country is of concern to you; if your Christian soul yearns to bless all the peoples of the world—then your place is with us in the new crusade for law observance and law enforcement for our nation, and for prohibition, purity and peace for the whole world.

"Mark the words, 'observance' is from within; 'enforcement' is from without. The ideal is an awakened Christian conscience, a universal education until the public mind is so enlightened that observance will be normal and enforcement not needed. If we look back and see how far we have come the first fifty years, is law observance too high an ideal? Is a high single standard of morals for men and women too much to expect? Is a world at peace and Christian love prevailing too much to hope for? According to your faith be it unto you, 'Faith without works is dead.'"

"LELLA A. DILLARD, "President Georgia W. C. T. U."

Second Ward Voters Hold Meeting.

The League of Women Voters of the 2nd Ward met at the residence of Miss Susie Griffin, 67 Washington Terrace, Thursday, May 8. Mrs. Virginia Anderson, chairman, presided. Several new members were enrolled. Resolutions were adopted disapproving of the movement to allow the board of education to levy its own taxes. Delightful refreshments were served by the hostess.

Miss Smith Will Wed George Harris

The announcement today of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Estelle Smith to George Washington Harris is of social interest here and to their many friends throughout the states of Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee.

Miss Smith is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Howard Smith, is a young woman possessing many personal charms; the sister of W. S. J. D. and Natus M. Smith, the sister of Mrs. Will N. Gray, of Birmingham, Ala.; Mrs. H. C. Stewart, of Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. A. C. Vaughn, Atlanta.

After receiving high school and normal training in Alabama, Miss Smith specialized in business training and has been recognized as one of the shrewdest business girls of Atlanta. Her father, before his retirement, was engaged in real estate and live stock raising in northeast Alabama, taking a great interest in educational and church affairs. Her mother, before her marriage was Miss Ruffin E. Armstrong, the daughter of Captain John H. Armstrong, pioneer northeast Alabama live stock man, for whom many landmarks stand in and around his old home.

Mr. Harris is a young business man of Atlanta. He is a graduate of Ellijay High school, and has received special training in civil engineering. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harris, of Ellijay, and the grandson of Captain Frank Harris who is well known in north Georgia and famous for his bravery in the civil war. After finishing school Mr. Harris was employed by the Louisville & Nashville railroad for about seven years in civil engineering, at which time he volunteered his services to the engineering department of the 31st division, rendering one year in overseas duties. He is a young man of uncommon and admirable qualities.

After the wedding the young couple will leave immediately for an extended trip to San Francisco, Cal., taking in the Grand Canyon and points of interest on the Pacific coast.

Camp Victor To Open in June

Plans are being made for the opening of Camp Victor, the Y. W. H. A. camp at Peachtree creek on Friday, June 27. Mrs. H. Jacobson, the Y. W. H. A. secretary, will be official hostess at the camp this season. Mrs. Jacobson has not been with them long, but she has made a number of friends. A very large attendance is expected at Camp Victor this summer, as the camp will have more attractions and will be run on a better scale than ever before. The tennis courts will be in perfect condition, the dance hall will be enlarged, and there is a paved road all the way out to the entrance of the camp.

The stock certificates in the Y. W. H. A. corporation are selling rapidly, and there are very good prospects of the Y. W. H. A. having enough funds for the amount required for remodeling the new clubhouse. At the stock sale held at the clubhouse on April 9, $1,500 worth of shares were sold. At the last meeting, Mrs. Victor Krieshaber was elected as honorary member of the Y. W. H. A. Mrs. Krieshaber is the most beloved member of the club and has been a diligent worker for the Y. W. H. A. since it was organized. The next meeting will be held at the clubhouse, corner Washington and Clark streets, at 3 o'clock Sunday, May 11, and a large attendance is urged.

Girls' High Alumnae Will Give Tea Wednesday, May 14

An interesting event of Wednesday, May 14, will be the tea with which the alumnae of the Girls' High school will entertain from 4 to 6 o'clock in the banquet hall of the Woman's club. The alumnae anticipates a large gathering of its members and friends, as these meetings always prove delightful in the reunion of old friends and the making of new ones. During the course of the afternoon, the election to ascertain who will receive the scholarship to Agnes Scott offered by the alumnae, will be held, each member of the alumnae being eligible to vote, upon payment of her alumnae dues for the year. $1. The girls who have announced their candidacy for the scholarship, and have been found eligible are, Anna Knight, Sarah White and Myrtle Bledsoe. Shorter, college has also offered the alumnae a scholarship, but it has not been awarded. Among those invited to the tea are all of the past students of the Girls' High school, the senior class, the past presidents of the alumnae, the board of education, and a few honor guests.

Music will be furnished by the Boys' High School orchestra, and the Mandolin club of the Girls' High school. The alumnae has just cause to be proud of its accomplishments. A scholarship to Agnes Scott is offered each year, and last year half scholarships were given by the alumnae to the candidates who were defeated in the race for the whole scholarship. In addition to this, loans have been made to girls to enable them to attend college.

The alumnae has many members to be proud of, in that they have attained a high place on the ladder in their chosen professions. Miss Nan Stephens, now in Atlanta in connection with the Opportunity school, and author of "Rosanne," a play which has attracted favorable comment in New York, is an instance of such alumnae. Miss Tommie Dora Barker, librarian of Carnegie library, has also reached the top in her chosen career. Miss Bessie Kempton, the first woman to be a member of the Georgia state legislature, calls Girls' High school her alma mater. Of interest is Miss Vivian Little's winning of a scholarship in France. Twenty-four of these scholarships are exchanged by America and France each year, and the fortunate students are selected from the various universities and colleges throughout the country. It is urged that all members and past graduates be present at the tea, thus combining a social afternoon with a manifestation of allegiance to Girls' High school. The officers and board of directors of the alumnae are, Mrs. Charles T. Pottinger, president; Miss Mattie Slaton, vice president; Mrs. William F. Slaton, treasurer; Mrs. E. D. McDonald, secretary, and Miss Luie Sargent, assistant secretary. The board of directors are, Miss Jessie Muse, Mrs. E. V. Carter, Jr., Mrs. Edward Joiner, Mrs. Howard Smith, Mrs. Joseph N. Moody, Mrs. S. W. McCallie, Mrs. David Eichberg, Miss Emma Gregg, Miss Mary C. Moore.

Woman's Board To Meet at Oglethorpe.

The executive committee of the woman's board of Oglethorpe university will meet Tuesday morning, May 13, at 10:30 o'clock, at the Atlanta Woman's club.

Mrs. Katherine Connerat, president of the board, urges all members of the committee to be present as business of great importance is to be transacted and plans outlined for the approaching commencement exercises and for breaking ground of the new Lupton building at the university.

Mrs. J. K. Ottley, chairman of the committee, will preside, and following the meeting will have as her guests at a beautiful luncheon the members of the committee at which Mrs. J. M. High will be the honor guest.

The book was musty with age---

Strangest of all inquiries a cleaner and drier ever had came to us the other day. A customer had a book he prized highly. Over 100 years old, he said. Soiled and yellow, it had that "musty" smell which books acquire when they get old and damp. Could we get rid of the musty odor? Our dry cleaning process not only removed all trace of odor and dust, but also sterilized the book.

We quote this incident not because we are keen about dry cleaning anybody's library, but to show you that the dry cleaner's art covers a vast variety of purposes, and that we are glad to help solve any problem. We pay return postage.

For Homes Beautiful

This is "Better Homes Week" all over America.

Atlanta is participating—and through the exhibits in the model homes will be clearly demonstrated the fact that a "Better Home" is not necessarily an expensive home.

Thanks to modern design and progressive manufacturing facilities, good furniture, built for lifetime service, is exceedingly modest in price.

This big home-furnishing institution is particularly adapted to serve your home-furnishing needs. Five mammoth floors full of the pick of the markets. Each piece of Furniture was subjected to the severe test of quality before it was accepted for your inspection.

In the Better Homes exhibit this week, you will see for yourself some of our beautiful furniture, and will be pleasantly surprised at the modest prices.

Inspect the "Better Homes." Then come and inspect our stocks. The homes give you a vision of how your home may be made to look—our store will show you how easy to furnish and how to have a Better Home at a reasonable cost.

Beautiful Bride, Her Charming Maids, and Lovely Bride-Elect

The beautiful bride is Mrs. Edgar Wood Upton, formerly Miss Marian Hutchinson Stearns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Laurence Stearns, whose marriage was a brilliant event of Thursday evening, taking place at All Saints' church. From left to right: Miss Josephine Crawford, junior bridesmaid; Miss Nell Sims, Miss Alice Stearns, who was maid of honor; Mrs. Upton, Miss Gladys Hill, Miss Blanch Wilkinson, of Hamilton, Ontario, and Miss Henrietta Tupper. Miss Nellie Augusta Dodd, whose picture is at the lower right, is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Taliaferro Dodd, and her engagement is announced today to Aquilla Johns Orme, Jr., only son of Mr. and Mrs. Aquilla Johns Orme. Photograph of the Stearns-Upton wedding party is by the McCrary studio, and that of Miss Dodd is by Thurston Hatcher.

Full Social Program Is Offered for Week

As the spring season advances into early summer, society becomes imbued with renewed interest in a succession of events which have to do with flower shows, art exhibits, fraternity and sorority dances, wherein the "sweet girl graduate" is the central figure, weddings of prominence, teas, parties and luncheons.

Outstanding affairs of the week's calendar will be the brilliant dinner at which the general art committee of the city will entertain at the Biltmore hotel on Saturday evening, honoring Walter L. Clark, distinguished president of the officers and artists of the Grand Central Art galleries, of New York, and inaugurating the opening of the art exhibition which has been heralded with greatest interest and appreciation throughout the state, and the third flower show sponsored by the Peachtree Garden club, which will take place on Thursday at Habersham hall, bringing an especial appeal to the flower lovers of the city.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Dodd, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus T. Dodd, and Aquilla Johns Orme, Jr., which will take place Saturday evening at the home of the bride, will center the affectionate interest of countless friends throughout the south.

"Stillwood," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Eugene Hancock, on Briarcliff road, will be the scene of another wedding this week, when their daughter, Miss Charlotte Hancock, becomes the bride of Cecil Robert Hall on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Joseph Madison High, beloved Atlanta woman, who has recently returned from an extensive tour of Europe, will be honor guest on Tuesday at an elaborate luncheon at which Mrs. John King Ottley will entertain at the Atlanta Woman's club, inviting to meet Mrs. High her co-workers on the executive committee of the woman's board of Oglethorpe university, of which the hostess is chairman.

The college set of society will flit from one social function to another during the coming week, the succession of events being a forerunner of the more elaborate program which will feature the commencements and graduations of the various schools of the city. A unique affair will be the artists' ball, at which the Delta Tau Delta fraternity will entertain at the Atlanta Biltmore on Tuesday evening, the hand-painted invitations, engraved in French and calling for "Latin quarter" costumes bespeaking for the occasion unusual interest and gaiety.

On Wednesday evening the Irumas club, exclusive social organization of Emory university, will entertain with a large and brilliant reception at the East Lake Country club. On the same evening the Pi Epsilon sorority of Woodberry Hall will give a dance at Habersham hall on Fifteenth street.

The Bulldogs, prominent social club of Georgia Tech, will be hosts at a dance Saturday evening, which will assemble at one of the fraternity houses a large throng of the younger contingent.

Another week of delightful social events will be inaugurated at the Atlanta Biltmore Sunday evening, when many members of the Atlanta society gather for the weekly informal concert dinner. A program of popular American airs and opera numbers will be rendered on this occasion by an augmented orchestra under the personal direction of Enrico Leide. Other features of the week at the Biltmore will be the informal suppers in the main dining room every evening except Sunday from 9 to 12 o'clock, and the 5 o'clock tea-dances on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

Garden Club To Give Spring Flower Show.

At the meeting of the Peachtree Garden club on Friday, plans were completed for the spring flower show which will be held at 3 o'clock on Thursday, May 15, at Habersham hall. The flowers to be shown include roses, peonies, delphinium, pansies, corn flowers, Siberian and German iris, lemon lilies, and there will also be an exhibition of flowering shrubs. Prizes will be offered for the best arrangement of flowers with pink shades predominating, and the carriage wherein blue and yellow also predominate.

The flower show will be opened to the public, and the small admission of 25 cents will be charged.

Mrs. Phinizy Calhoun, president of the club, and Mrs. John W. Grant, chairman of the reception committee, will act as official hostesses for the flower show.

Mrs. William P. Hill is chairman of arrangements and she will be assisted by all the members of the club. Tea will be served with Mrs. Charles Vezey Rainwater in charge of arrangements.

Miss Dodd To Wed Aquilla Johns Orme, Jr.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Nellie Augusta Dodd to Aquilla Johns Orme, Jr., is of pleasurable interest to a wide circle of friends and relatives.

Miss Dodd is one of the most popular young girls in Atlanta society, and has been an acknowledged belle ever since her college days, for when she was fourteen years old she was an idol of the students at Georgia Tech, and enjoyed the popularity with this particular group of college men long after she was grown and had made her debut in society. She is as pretty as she is popular, possessing a charming personality, combined with a graciousness of manner and sweetness of disposition which have endeared her to her many friends. She is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Taliaferro Dodd and she has three lovely sisters, Mrs. Julia Dodd Adair, Miss Dorothy Dodd, an attractive debutante of last year, and Miss Ruth Dodd, who is still in the school girl set.

The bride-elect is a descendant of distinguished families. Her maternal ancestors are from Tennessee, and she is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Greene T. Dodd, prominent and beloved pioneer citizens, who were identified with the early history and upbuilding of Atlanta. For three years she attended St. Mary's in Raleigh, N. C., and graduated from this school, afterward going to the Scoville school on Fifth avenue in New York to complete her education. She has had the advantage of extensive travel in America, having spent a summer traveling through the west, and in Alaska. She also spent several months in Europe, visiting on the continent and the British Isles.

Miss Dodd is very accomplished and is quick at repartee. She took a prominent part in philanthropic work during the World war, and gave valuable service to her country through the canteen division, working every week at Inman Yards when the hospital trains stopped at that point and the soldiers were refreshed with wholesome food. She worked under the direction of Mrs. Wilmer Moore, and her sister, Mrs. Adair, both of whom took active and prominent leadership in war work. She was awarded a medal, qualifying for 2,000 hours of volunteer service given during those perilous war days. Miss Dodd is a member of the Atlanta Junior league, always taking a personal interest in furthering and helping to develop the various social and charitable plans sponsored by the league in Atlanta.

The bride-elect, who possesses beauty of a piquante and exquisite brunette type, with dark brown hair and expressive blue eyes, is most attractive and winsome, and Miss Dodd is a member of the Pi Pi sorority of Washington seminary. She made her debut in the year when her circle of intimate friends were presented to society and was elected secretary and treasurer of the Debutante club.

Mr. Orme is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Aquilla Johns Orme, leading and well-known residents of Atlanta. He was graduated from the Virginia Military institute several years ago, and since his graduation he has held an important position with the White company. He is a member of the Capital City club and the Nine O'Clock, two of the oldest social organizations in Atlanta, and is prominent in social and civic life of the city.

Mr. Orme comes of most distinguished lineage, being a descendant of the oldest and most honored families in the south. On his maternal side he is a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jackson, who were leaders in society, and were highly esteemed citizens of Atlanta. His mother was the lovely Miss Callie Jackson, and his grandmother was Miss Sarah Cobb, of Athens, whose family was one of the most renowned in the state. On his paternal side his grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Orme, who were important and decided factors in the upbuilding of Atlanta. One of his distinguished forbears was Dr. John Orme, a Presbyterian minister; Joseph J. Priestley, discoverer of oxygen gas and founder of the Unitarian church. He is also related to the McAllisters, of New York and Savannah. His sisters are Mrs. William Elliott Huger, Miss Callie Orme and Miss Cornelia Orme, a trio of charming young women, and he is a nephew of Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, Sr., and Mrs. Shepard Bryan, notable figures in Atlanta society.

Mr. Orme and his bride-elect will make their home at 806 Peachtree street on their return from their wedding journey to New York and Atlantic City.

Mrs. Bussey To Be Honor Guest.

Mrs. M. W. Bussey, of Birmingham,

Ala., is visiting her son and drive. She will be honor guest at the enjoyable and interesting event of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. R. Bardwell, Mr. daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henson Estes informal buffet supper given by Mr. Sunday evening. and Mrs. Charles C. McNehee, Mr. Bussey at their home on Lafayette and Mrs. Bussey are and Mrs. Joseph S. Reynolds, Mr. invited to meet Mrs. Bussey are and Mrs. Joseph S. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Cator Woolford, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Jones, Dr. and Mrs. Calhoun McDonald, Mrs. Claude Sheppard, Miss Elizabeth Sheppard and John T. Boffenbush.

Mrs. Robert K. Rambo Returns to Atlanta.

Mrs. Robert K. Rambo has returned from a month's trip to Washington and New York. Mrs. Rambo was a delegate to the national D. A. R. congress in Washington, D. C., in April, and the National Y. W. C. A. convention in New York City. Mr. and Mrs. Rambo spent the latter part of April and the first week in May in New York. Mrs. Rambo has been invited to represent Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, who is unable to attend on account of illness, at the good roads convention to be held in Albuquerque, New Mexico, the last of May. She is woman commissioner for Georgia for the Bankhead highway, and her invitation came from the director general for the good roads association.

Fifth District Club Meeting at Agnes Scott.

Agnes Scott college has issued invitations to the spring council of the Fifth District, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held at Agnes Scott and in Decatur, Ga., Thursday, May 15, at 10 o'clock. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock following the meeting.

Dinner-Dance at Driving Club.

The regular week-end dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving club, Saturday evening, was an event of interest to the club members, a number of charming visitors adding to the pleasure of the occasion.

In the gold and white ballroom, where the tables were placed around the edge of the dancing floor, the decorations were quantities of spring flowers and lovely woodland blossoms. The tables were adorned with French baskets filled with iris of a variety of shades.

One of the largest parties of the evening was that at which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rembert Marshall entertained in compliment to Mrs. William Jay McKenna, of Boston, who has been receiving a cordial welcome in the city this week as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. Bulow Campbell. Another lovely visitor who was honor guest in a party was Miss Willis Dyer, of St. Louis, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spaulding. She was central figure in the party at which Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Spaulding were hosts.

Covers were placed for Miss Dyer, Miss Katherine Haverly, Richard Courts, Carter Cook, Jr., Dr. Thomas Crenshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crandall had at their guests Mr. and Mrs. Elynn Tomlinson, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnwell and R. M. Harris.

Others entertaining parties were Charles Adsit, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGoigal and J. R. Morrison.

Parties Given at Fort McPherson.

Colonel and Mrs. Melville S. Jarvis entertained at a lovely bridge-supper at their quarters in Fort McPherson on Saturday evening when they entertained a number of the younger married set.

Quantities of sweet peas and roses were used in the decorations of the Box Parties at First Performance of "Footprints"

Many parties are being arranged for the premiere of "Footprints," the play written by Cora Paxton Stewart and Wilson J. Bryce, and dedicated to the life and ideals of the late Woodrow Wilson. "Footprints" will be presented at the Atlanta Woman's club auditorium on May 22, 23, 24, with a matinee on Saturday afternoon, May 25.

Governor and Mrs. Clifford Walker, together with a party of friends, will occupy a box. Mayor and Mrs. Walter A. Sims will also occupy a box with a party of their friends.

Mayor Sims has issued invitations to the family of the late Woodrow Wilson and also to Dr. Grayson, physician and close personal friend of Mr. Wilson.

Atlanta is a very fit setting for the premier showing of "Footprints" since it was here that Mr. Wilson began his life's career after graduating from college.

The central theme of the play deals with the tragedy of a weaker nation confronted with the problem of war with a stronger nation and with no recourse because it is a problem outside the jurisdiction of the present league court.

rooms, and the supper was served at individual tables.

Invited guests included Captain and Mrs. Prindle, Captain and Mrs. Mills, Captain and Mrs. Teachout, Captain and Mrs. Perin, Captain and Mrs. Gibson, Captain and Mrs. Trunk, Captain and Mrs. Ennis, Captain and Mrs. Graham, Lieutenant and Mrs. J. Parker, Major and Mrs. Jones, Major and Mrs. Cook, Major and Mrs. Brougner, Captain and Mrs. Woodland and Lieutenant Inman.

Colonel and Mrs. Harry S. Purnell entertained at a large bridge-supper at their quarters at Fort McPherson on Saturday evening. The house was elaborately decorated with quantities of sweet peas and lovely azaleas.

The scene cards were hand-colored scenes of Venice, and were brought from that place by the hostess.

The guests included Colonel and Mrs. H. A. Weber, Major and Mrs. L. S. Fountain, Captain and Mrs. H. W. Keller, Colonel and Mrs. William J. Kendrick, Colonel and Mrs. G. S. McManus, Major and Mrs. James Magee, Captain and Mrs. Herbert Perrin, Mrs. H. S. Porter, Miss E. E. Raffensperger, Miss McClellan, Major General and Mrs. David C. Shanks, Colonel and Mrs. L. O. Matthews, Captain and Mrs. J. C. Woodlands, Colonel and Mrs. Percy Jones, General and Mrs. W. H. Johnston.

Mr. and Mrs. Gay Are Entertaining Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bolling Gay have as their guests, Dr. and Mrs. James McE. Gaston, of China; Mrs. E. H. McGarvey, of Greenville, N. C., and their son, Dr. James Gaston Gay, of Johns Hopkins, at Baltimore.

The assembling of this group of prominent visitors to a guest at union, and during their stay of 10 days they will be honor guests at many interesting affairs.

Mrs. Beidler Is Distinguished Visitor.

Mrs. Adam Beidler, of Chicago, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Charles N. Seiple, will return to her home Monday after being central figure at many social affairs during her stay here.

Mrs. Seiple entertained at tea Friday afternoon at her home on Peachtree street in compliment to Mrs. Beidler, who is prominently identified with social life in Chicago, and has been one of the distinguished visitors of the past week.

Social News of Fort McPherson.

The Fort McPherson bridge club held the last meeting of the tournament on Friday evening when the club was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The trophy prizes were awarded for those making the highest scores during the entire season, by Colonel Dwight W. Ryther, and were given to Captain A. R. Bolling for the highest average score, second to Lieutenant S. W. Hulse, third to Captain Grover C. Graham, and the fourth to Mrs. A. R. Bolling. Many of the members will leave during the following week for their different camps for duty for the summer. The summer members will continue these delightful meetings.

Major and Mrs. Charles Caffery will discontinue the informal "at home" until later in the season, and Mrs. Caffery, accompanied by their two children and her sister, Miss Elizabeth Gaines, will leave on Saturday afternoon to spend a month in Florida.

Mrs. James Regan who has been spending a month visiting friends and relatives in Washington, D. C., has returned to Fort McPherson, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Jose Maria Yznaga, of Washington, D. C.

General Hugh Drum is in Fort McPherson as the guest of Major General and Mrs. David C. Shanks and will leave on Monday to inspect his department at Camp McClellan.

Colonel and Mrs. George McManus were hosts at a large party on Thursday evening when they entertained eight tables at bridge, followed by supper.

Miss Trimble Is Honored.

Miss Roline Trimble, daughter of Dr. George C. Trimble, of East Point, a popular young senior of Wesleyan college, has returned to Wesleyan from New York City, where she attended the biennial Y. W. C. A. convention. Miss Trimble was sent as a representative from Wesleyan, and was elected to service on the national student committee of the convention. She reports that wonderful work is being done in the student life of America through the Young Woman's Christian association of the college campuses.

Miss Eastlack Presents Pupils.

Miss Sarah Adelle Eastlack, of the Eastlack School of Oratory, presented in recital on Friday and Saturday afternoons Emily Fisher, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Fisher, and Doris Perryman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Perryman.

The dramatic students of the school will appear in a recital Thursday evening, May 22, and on June 6 in a play.

Monday evening, June 2, the children will present a varied and interesting program.

College Alumni Hold Meetings.

The Atlanta club of the Georgia State College for Women met at 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon at Edison hall. The president, Mrs. Wilber R. Wilson, presided.

Reports from committee chairmen and a short business session were followed by a delightful program.

At the close of the meeting a pleasant social hour was enjoyed and tea was served.

Music and Advertising Chairmen For Better Homes Week

Right, Mrs. DeLo Hill, chairman of music for the programs for Better Homes week, and Mrs. Calvin Stanford, advertising chairman for Better Homes week, between May 11 and 18, inclusive. Photograph of Mrs. Hill by Thurston Hatcher and of Mrs. Stanford by the Stephenson studio.

Mrs. Calvin Stanford, of the advertising staff of "Better Homes Week," has made every effort possible to enable the public to find the three areas have been placed at intersection streets, and Boy Scouts will be near to lead their aid.

The best musicians of the city will furnish music in the homes and also over radio. Mrs. DeLo Hill is in charge of this part of the week's entertainment, so the public may feel assured of many musical treats. Mrs. Cleve Webb, program chairman, assisted by Mrs. Roger A. Wilson, has secured speakers for the opening day and for every evening during the week at homes No. 1 and No. 2.

Mrs. F. C. Cable, according to plans of the National Better Homes board, will make a part of the demonstration a table completely set to show proper distribution of silver, china and glassware. However, before these articles reach the table at all, they have been carefully selected to harmonize with the walls and draperies of the dining-room. Mrs. Henry Bernard Scott and Mrs. Stacy Ernest Hill, both experienced interior decorators, have given careful thought to the blending of colors and artistic finish of homes Nos. 1 and 2.

The greatest aim of this better homes demonstration is to create the atmosphere of a real home. The homes mothers, Mrs. F. H. Nadele at 212 Virginia avenue, and Mrs. Edward Hardaway Smith at 281 Dill avenue, will receive their guests as they would in their own homes. Pictures of Mrs. Nadele's two lovely little girls will be noticed in home No. 1, while Mrs. Smith's two handsome boys will be among the group of photographs found in home No. 2.

Among the young men invited are: Golden Russell, J. B. Smith, Marion Benson, John Robertson, Radcliffe Ashe, Earle Smith, Walter Redard, Ben Norton, William Leide, William Van Dyke, Horace Roshinski, William McCollister, William Pittman, of Macon; Dwight Bliss, of Macon; Reuben Hood, John Candler, of Macon; Robert Oliver, Stuart Morton, John Stoker, Graham Dozier, A. Mrs. Wilson Presents Pupils in Recital

A most interesting musical program was presented Saturday afternoon in Cable hall by Mrs. R. Wayne Wilson and her pupils in compliment to the Atlanta Junior Music club and also in honor of National Music Week.

The program opened with a country dance by Nevin played by Florence and Mary Bryan. A group of piano numbers was then most attractively played by Marion Peel Calhoun. Next came two violin numbers beautifully given by Florence Bryan, accompanied by her teacher, Mrs. Marion Vaughan. Little Eugenia Snow, seven years old, astonished the audience by her playing of the Andante and Ronco from the C Major Sonata of Mozart, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson at the second piano. Eugenia Snow is the talented little girl who played in "L'Oracolo" two years ago with Scotti and won such unbounded praise from a great Metropolitan artist.

The versatile little musician, Jacquelin Moore, played an arrangement of Annie Laurie for the harp and also the Allegro from Mozart's Sonata in G major, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson on a second piano. Miss Anna Etheridge played most beautifully a transcription of Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song" by Liszt, and the program closed with a group of beautiful Creole songs sung by Miss Mela Welborn, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson.

Dancing Club To Entertain.

The members and friends of the Hurst Dancing club will entertain with a dance Wednesday, May 14, at Hurst hall. The music will be furnished by McCullough's Georgians. Dancing begins at 8:30 o'clock. Professor Edward S. Hurst will be in charge.

Stirthe, Ernest Kontz, Bill Funkhouser, Jimmie Nichols, Bill Merriam, Hugh Loke, Emory Morris, Joseph Madden, Wilbur Swinford, Fred Iyer, Walter Berger, William Vaughan, James Wilson, Carrol Lattimer, William Kemp and others.

Announcing

America's finest Silks in the South's finest Silk Store

It Will Open Tomorrow

THE Silk Store Beautiful! Tomorrow its doors will be thrown open to the public, marking just one more important step in the development of a larger, more convenient, better-serving High's. Nowhere in the Southland is there a retail store that surpasses it in beauty. Our ambitious plan was to make it "The South's Finest Silk Store" and toward the attainment of that end, we spared not in pains or expense. Certainly it is an outstanding addition to the women's shopping district of Atlanta, the center of which is Whitehall Street. Now all is in readiness and you're invited to the opening of

High's New Silk Store

At 74 and 76 Whitehall Street

HAVING built up one of the largest outlets for silks of any store in the South—an outlet built solidly on quality silks and moderate prices—we were confronted with the problem of securing more space to properly serve the needs of our growing clientele.

The happy solution to this was the acquisition of the building formerly occupied by the Vaudeville Theatre, with a Whitehall Street frontage running back and connecting with the "L" of the store at 66 and 68 Whitehall Street, which has been the home of the J. M. High Co. during the last six years.

For several months, architects, designers of fixtures, decorators and skilled mechanics have been hard at work remodeling the building from roof to basement.

Expense was disregarded. The store was practically rebuilt from top to bottom. New floors, new walls, new ceiling, new display windows, new skylights. And new fixtures—wall cases, counters, tables—all done in richly grained American black walnut, in Italian Renaissance.

The result? A spacious, FLOODED-WITH-DAYLIGHT, magnificent store—"The South's Finest Silk Store!"

Tomorrow you will find the store ready with the fashionable silks for summer. Let us emphasize the fact that these silks come from America's foremost silk manufacturers, the same superb qualities we have always carried. Only stocks are larger and assortments much broader than ever before.

And the same fair and just price policy which has been so largely responsible for the enviable reputation as a Silk Store which High's has for so many years enjoyed, will be continued!

Exhibition of Portraits of Lord and Lady Oglethorpe

THESE two life-size portraits in oil will prove of interest to all Georgians, as Lord Oglethorpe was the founder of Georgia, which later was to become one of the thirteen original colonies. These paintings are the work of famous English portrait painters. They were bought by Mrs. J. M. High several months ago when she was in Europe, brought to Atlanta and presented to Oglethorpe University, there to hang permanently.

They will be displayed for a few days in the new Silk Store

¶ Please treat this as a personal invitation to be present tomorrow---then come; be our guest at the opening of the new Silk Store!

Sponsor for Tea Dance at Club

Mrs. Thomas Heyward Simmons, who will act as sponsor for the tea dance to be given for the high school contingent by the Camp Fire Division of the Atlanta Woman's club next week.

ELABORATE TEA TO BE GIVEN ON FRIDAY

The civic drive committee of the Atlanta Woman's club with Mrs. Newton C. Wing, chairman, will entertain the officers of the club at one of the most beautiful teas ever given at the club. This affair will take place Friday afternoon in the banquet hall and will celebrate the magnificent achievements of the committee during the year, forming a fitting climax for the harmonious reign of the committee.

Mrs. Alonso Richardson will be hostess, and the guests of honor will include Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Norman Sharp, Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, Mrs. W. F. Melton, Mrs. W. C. Alexander, Sr., Mrs. E. W. Carter, Mrs. George Brower and Mrs. Alice Taylor.

The banquet hall will be elaborately decorated in spring flowers, the table being a perfect tower of roses and presenting a most colorful scene with its profusion of other flowers and its color scheme of pink and white. Mrs. J. L. Wheeler and Mrs. P. C. Fabel are in charge of decorations. About 30 guests will be entertained.

West Haven To Meet During Summer.

The West Haven Parent-Teacher association held its regular monthly meeting in the school building Friday afternoon, May 9, with Mrs. J. H. Avery, the president, presiding.

The Lord's Prayer was repeated in concert, after which Mrs. Chaffin, the secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting. The roll was called by the treasurer, Mrs. Russell, and the members responded by paying their dues.

The association voted unanimously to continue their meetings during the summer months.

Woman's Bible Club At Wesley Memorial.

According to united action on the part of the members of the Woman's Bible club, taught by Mrs. T. R. Kendall, Sr., at her home in the Kenilworth apartments on Ponce de Leon, on Thursday morning from 10 to 11 o'clock, it was unanimously decided at its last meeting to accept invitation from Wesley Memorial and Druid Hills Methodist churches to hold the weekly meeting at these respective churches.

The meetings for the month of May will be held at Wesley Memorial and for the month of June at Druid Hills.

An invitation is extended to all as it is undenominational.

Yaarab Chanters Will Sing at Woman's Club

The Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., will present the Yaarab Chanters on Tuesday evening, May 13, at the Atlanta Woman's club. The proceeds will be devoted to the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children and the general expenses of the chapter house.

Among those who will take part is Mrs. Susan Bowden Johnson, accompanied by Mrs. A. L. Staton.

The list of chanters includes Director Frank Cundell, accompanist, Walter Aichel; first tenors, C. J. Aldred, Paul Crutchfield, C. S. Durham, T. A. Martin, C. W. Wall, S. R. Wooten; second tenors, P. L. Blackshear, H. T. Bledsoe, C. S. Buford, W. Bayne Gibson, G. W. Grant, W. F. Ison, J. B. Willingham, J. C. Withers; baritone, R. M. Abernathy; W. W. Bateman, W. M. Bear-den, Chas. Chalmers, J. T. Hoffman, S. A. Webster; basses, G. B. Beck, J. H. Mullin, E. T. Booth, LeRoy Webb, C. V. Logan, W. R. Wilson and T. J. Modie.

GARDEN PARTY IS ARRANGED BY MRS. HELMER

A lovely garden party has been arranged by Mrs. H. E. Helmer, chairman of community service for the Atlanta Woman's club, at her home for next Wednesday afternoon, May 14. The Americanization classes of the opportunity school will be the honor guests of this occasion.

Mrs. Helmer will be assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. J. D. Evans, chairman of the Americanization division of the club. Some of the ladies from the Spanish class will give musical selections and the "Opportunity Boosters," which is a splendid quartet from the school, will entertain those present with vocal selections.

Unique dancing will also be a feature of the occasion. Mrs. Helmer is the possessor of most beautiful flower gardens, where roses, shrubbery and many varieties of spring flowers grow and a garden party with such surroundings, bids fair to be of great pleasure and inspiration to those who attend.

Mrs. Evans announces that on next Tuesday the board of education meets and at this time a large body representing her department of the club will appear before the board with the resolution passed by the Woman's club, asking that the opportunity school remain as a part of the Atlanta public school system.

MRS. M'GUIN TO READ AT CLUB MEETING

Mrs. Wren McGuin, one of Atlanta's artists in dramatic reading, will give the story of "Madame Butterfly" at the regular meeting of the Atlanta Woman's club Monday afternoon. Preceding Mrs. McGuin's reading, Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, chairman of the literature division of the club, will give a short talk on the cultural development of Japan.

Mrs. Alonso Richardson, president of the club, will preside over the meeting. Important business will be discussed and the election of officers for the ensuing club year will be held.

Members of the club will have the privilege of voting for the officers, between the hours of 12 o'clock and 5:30.

A beautiful musical program is being arranged in connection with the reading of "Madame Butterfly," and those attending are assured a most delightful hour of entertainment.

The applied education department of the club, with Mrs. W. W. Alexander as chairman, is especially anxious that all of the pledges made for Tallulah Falls school through the club be paid during the coming week, as this is the last week in order to get the records in for the year. Checks may be sent to Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, 30 West Eleventh street, or to the Atlanta Woman's club, 946 Peachtree.

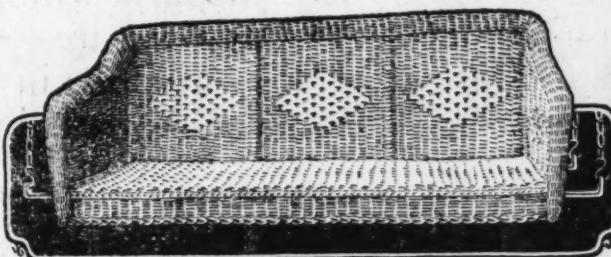

There are times when guess work will not do - - - !

The filling of a prescription, no matter how simple it may be, cannot be a matter of guess work if safety and efficiency are of importance. The exact proportion of every called for ingredient must be put in—and furthermore it must be the VERY ingredient called for by your attending physician who wrote the prescription. This sounds simple enough, but it really is quite a task—a task that many drug stores do not always faithfully fulfill. But from Munn's, a store that specializes in the filling of prescriptions, you always get that which your physician wanted and ordered. The fact that we do better prescription work than the average store is proven by the great number of prescriptions we fill every day—for people from every section of the city. Remember Munn's when you have a prescription to be filled.

Junior High Schools Will Sponsor Play by Theater Guild

What promises to be an outstanding event in school and dramatic circles, which will come near the commencement season, will be the presentation of the play, "The Torch Bearers," by the Little Theater Guild of Atlanta under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher associations of the four junior high schools. Plans are already under way to make this the most successful production yet offered by the Theater Guild and in order that as many as possible may attend the play there will be three performances—two evening shows and a matinee performance during the second week in June, in the auditorium-theater of the Atlanta Woman's club.

Directly sponsoring the performance will be the presidents of the four Parent-Teacher associations, and a large committee. These officers are: Mrs. Victor Kriegshaber, president of the William A. Bass Junior High school; Mrs. Clarence Williamson, president of the Daniel O'Keefe school; Mrs. Birdie B. Moore, president of the Hoke Smith school, and Mrs. J. S. Boardman, president of the Joe Brown Junior High school. Mrs. George Price, Mrs. David Wise and representatives from each of the high schools will handle the sale of tickets.

The guild has chosen for this production one of the most popular and enjoyable comedies ever produced on the American stage. It was written by George Kelly, author of "The Show Off," now running in New York, and is a satire on the little theater movement. It had a highly successful season in New York, when one dramatic critic wrote of it: "The Torch Bearers," an unknown play by an unknown author, had its premiere performance on a rainy, dismal night and more than delighted an audience which rocked with laughter." The play has been successfully produced by a number of theater guilds and dramatic organizations, notably among them, the Pasadena Community Players, and presented by this group, played five consecutive weeks. It is a play which old and young alike will enjoy and runs the gamut of comedy situations and laugh producing lines.

Leaders in high school and parent-teacher work have expressed delight over the forthcoming production. One of them declared: "For the first time the four junior high schools will come together in a cooperative movement. Hitherto everything each school has done has been on a competitive basis. Knowing the clean, high character work accomplished by the Little Theater Guild, we are delighted to have this organization present our first production and believe that it will be a stimulus to the students of drama. Fortunately there are too few clean plays suitable for pupils of high school age to attend, and we believe that the high standard of the Little Theater Guild productions should be encouraged and emulated by our boys and girls, as well as parents and teachers."

Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson, director of the Little Theater Guild, who is responsible for the successful production of the majority of the community pageants and college plays produced here during the past several years, will direct "The Torch Bearers." Mrs. Jackson will select for the cast the most talented members of the guild. Others, not members of the guild, who wish to try out for a part in the cast, are requested to communicate with her with a view to joining the guild and taking part in the play.

Kle Club Will Hold Meeting

The semi-monthly meeting of the Kle club will be held Wednesday, May 14, at 10:30 a. m. at the Elks home. All members are urged to be present and it is especially important that those ladies attend who assisted in the sale of tickets to the Elks' circus. All sales must be reported and any unsold tickets returned, in order that a complete check up may be made by the chairman.

Mrs. H. Clifton Baker and Mrs. G. W. Cooper will furnish an interesting musical program after the meeting.

Ladies wishing to remain for lunch can secure an excellent meal for 25 cents. The social atmosphere prevailing at these luncheons is very pleasant and always enjoyed by a number of the members.

St. Mark Women To Entertain

Circle No. 8 of the St. Mark's Methodist church, Mrs. E. R. Davis, Jr., chairman, will give a silver tea at the residence of Mrs. S. F. Boykin, 209 Ponce de Leon avenue, Friday afternoon, May 16, from 4 to 6 o'clock.

There will be an interesting program of music and readings. Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson will read and Mrs. Jessie Reese Calvert will sing, accompanied by Mrs. Paul Bryan. Mrs. Bryan also will render an instrumental solo. All the friends of St. Mark's church are cordially invited to attend.

Engagement Announced Today

Miss Edythe Davis, attractive daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William A. Davis, whose engagement is announced today to Lanham Croley, of Dallas, Texas, the marriage to be solemnized in June.

Smyrna Troop Is Welcomed

Troop 1, Smyrna, is cordially welcomed into the realms of scoutdom. During the past week Smyrna's troop has come into the fold, so to speak. Twenty-four girls were enrolled, and seven were invested with tenderfoot pins. They are Alice Collier, Alice Harries, Caroline Tollison, Dorothy Pettey, Mary Dean Wells, Jewell Daniels, Robin Wells, Miss Ida

Lee Brown is the captain, and Miss Marion Rhyne is lieutenant.

In order to receive her tenderfoot pin and become a Girl Scout, a girl must be a member of a troop for one month, attend no less than four meetings, pass the tenderfoot test. Then she may receive her pin and register as a Girl Scout.

The object of this plan is rather obvious. It is to make sure that the girl is in earnest when she joins, which accounts for the delightful, dependable character of the average Girl Scout.

West End Woman's Club To Elect Officers

The West End Woman's club, Mrs. Murray Howard, president, will hold its regular business meeting Wednesday, May 14, at 3 o'clock.

The annual meeting of the West End Woman's club will be held at 3 o'clock Wednesday, May 14, in the club room. Mrs. Murray Howard, president, requests all chairmen to have written reports of the year's work. The election of officers will take place immediately following the reports. All members are eligible to vote, even if only six months dues were paid.

Mrs. Horace Presson, chairman of the literary department, entertained her committee at the Atlanta Woman's club Wednesday afternoon. Miss Kathryn Foster, accompanied by Miss Maie West, rendered two violin solos, "Cranes Song," (Haiser) and "Lullaby" (Kreiser). Interesting papers were read by Mrs. Arthur Burdell, Mrs. Ketterer, Mrs. H. A. Watts and Mrs. Arthur Merrill. Miss Brooks' illness deprived the members of the class of the pleasure of hearing her paper.

Mrs. Nellie Nix Edwards, with her usual charm, sang "The Swallows," by Cowen, and "There, Little Girl, Don't Cry," by Barilli.

Mrs. Presson thanked all her chairmen for the splendid support she had received during the year and invited those present to take part in two contests. The second prize was won by Miss Josephine Turner. Attractive prizes were given for both.

Dancing Party Is Given Guests

An interesting event of the past week was a dance given by Miss Doris Wilson and Miss Elizabeth McGlone at the home of Miss Wilson on Ponce de Leon avenue, honoring Mrs. C. O. Lyle, Jr., and Miss Juanita Federico, of New Orleans.

The home was beautifully decorated with potted plants and spring flowers in lavender and white. Each guest was presented with a crepe paper hat of the same color.

Those invited to meet the honor guests were Miss Josephine Cerniglia, Miss Gwyn Ewing, Miss Dorothy Childs, Miss Emma Gardner, Miss Zephia McGlone, Mrs. Eddie Gardner, Miss Bertine Tanquary, Miss Gertrude McGlone, Miss Adele Fife, Miss Theresen Blum, Miss Mary McGlone, Miss Mary Wilson, Mrs. Donald Blount, Miss Severe Wilson, Mrs. J. M. Bell, Mrs. Floyd Wilson, Miss Elizabeth McGlone and Miss Doris Wilson, Floyd Wilson, Harry Cassidy, Oliver Elke, J. M. Bell, Anthony McGlone, Raymond Ewing, Eddie Gardner, Phil Johnson, Marvin Lyle, Ed Dabney, James Blain, Willie Steight, H. E. Parker, Donald Blount, Richard Murphy, W. H. Linsey, Margines Hayes, A. C. Fuller, Johann Camarata, Ralph Henderson and others.

Kirkwood Civic League Appoints Delegates to Convention

At the regular meeting on May 6, the Kirkwood Civic League elected officers for the ensuing year and presented the Branham-Hess loving cup. Mrs. A. T. Almand and Mrs. Kate Green Hess were appointed as delegates to the convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs which convenes in Los Angeles in June. The meeting then adjourned.

Plans for a club house were discussed and the executive board authorized to select a lot and take an option if advisable, and to submit plans at the next regular meeting, June 3.

The loving cup was awarded to Mrs. Fred Norris, of the first section. The points on which she won it were attendance, written reports, the notifying of members and general improvement in her section. The first section has held the cup for five years consecutively.

All officers were reelected with the exception of one section vice president, who did not wish to stand for reelection, and are as follows: President, Mrs. Joseph Smith; vice president, Mrs. E. W. Camp; second vice president, Mrs. S. W. Bowen; treasurer, Mrs. R. S. Goulten. The section vice presidents are Mrs. Fred Norris from the first section; Mrs. M. S. Hanson of the second; Mrs. B. Hamby of the third, and Mrs. J. L. Murphy of the fourth.

The league will not hold its annual reception in June this year, but will join all Kirkwood in celebrating the opening of the park on the evening of the sixteenth. These exercises will begin at 8 o'clock and will be participated in by the mayor, Kirkwood's alderman and councilmen and other prominent people. Everybody in Kirkwood is expected. The name of the park will be announced at that time.

Mrs. Wall Entertains For Mrs. Cash

Mrs. J. P. Wall entertained the W. M. U., of East Side Tabernacle, Wednesday afternoon, May 7. The occasion was a miscellaneous shower in honor of the retiring president, Mrs. M. L. Cash. The living room, where the guests were received, was artistically decorated in cut flowers and potted plants. The contest prize was won by Mrs. J. A. Cagle. Mrs. E. L. Bradley played several appropriate selections on the piano.

Those present were Mesdames M. L. Cash, J. O. Sutton, Ella Bradbury, E. W. Walker, J. A. Cagle, R. P. English, W. J. Chappel, J. P. Wall, M. R. Collins, Lizzie St. John, O. B. Corley, Thurman Cash, R. A. Thacker, C. H. Godwin, B. R. Dickerson, C. J. Corley, E. L. Bradley, W. R. Armistead and Charlie Ferguson. Mrs. Cash leaves Thursday to make her home in Cartersville, Ga.

General and Lady Oglethorpe's Portraits Will Be on View in High's New Silk Shop

Photographs by Mathewson & Price.

The above pictures are photographs of the paintings of General and Lady Oglethorpe which will be on view in the exclusive silk shop of the J. M. High company on Whitehall street to be formally opened Monday. These wonderful paintings were presented to Oglethorpe university by Mrs. J. M. High, prominent Atlanta woman, a leader in social and civic affairs, who is a member of the woman's board of Oglethorpe university.

By Bessie S. Stafford.

A woman's faith and trust, that of Mrs. Joseph M. High, in the integrity, discerning judgment and policy of the men who direct the business interests of the J. M. High company, have been the inspiration of another step forward in the progress of merchandizing in Atlanta, for Monday morning will mark the formal opening of High's exclusive silk shop on Whitehall street, the most recent and modern achievement of this famous department store.

This splendidly conducted and reliable organization, the J. M. High company, has doubled its sales volume since the business was moved five years ago from the corner on the opposite side of the street, to its present location.

The slogan of the new shop will be America's Finest Silks in the South's Finest Silk Shop. The decorations and furnishings are of the Italian ren-naissance period, following the style of Counters, tables and shelves are of solid walnut, with exquisite inlay decorations. An elaborated scroll work design runs the length and breadth of the ceiling, which is supported at intervals by stately Corinthian columns. At the base of the columns a design in acanthus leaves is beautifully worked out, the indirect lights further harmonizing with the Italian period.

Handsome walnut cases with glass doors protect glorified evening silks, satins, chiffons and brocades, while brilliant lights show them off to the most wonderful advantage. Recessed shelves hold tulle and silks for street and afternoon wear.

There are bolts and bolts of exquisite crepe de chine in all the wanted colors from which to fashion charming negligees and dainty underthings. The display, staged against an artistic background is destined to allure, charm, fascinate and appeal to all discriminating shoppers.

General and Lady Oglethorpe.

Suspended in this gorgeous blend of color and almost bizarre hues, hanging in stately and dignified contrast in the rear of the shop, are handsome portraits of General James Oglethorpe and Lady Oglethorpe, purchased by the J. M. High company, and a prominent and leading factor on the woman's board at Oglethorpe university. She presented these portraits to the university January 1, and they will be known as "The High Collection of Oglethorpe Portraits."

Artist Catches Reflection.

It appears as if the artist had caught the reflection of rich brocades, costly velvets and metal cloths and then painted lovely Lady Oglethorpe in full court regalia. She wears a bodice of crimson velvet with bouffant panniers falling over the skirt of heavy white satin brocade in solid flowers. The sleeves reach to the elbow and are finished with ruffled rows of filmy and priceless lace, and there is a shoulder cap of velvet outlined in gold braid. A mantle of gold metal cloth hangs from her shapely shoulders and falls in graceful folds at the back of the seated figure. Large and expressive brown eyes match her wavy brown hair which is slightly parted in the middle and combed back from her forehead, the height of which indicates great intellectuality. Her hair is dressed in the becoming fashion of her day and arranged with a jeweled ornament. The pose is very graceful and shows that Lady Oglethorpe was a very beautiful and aristocratic woman. This is the only portrait in existence of this distinguished person. It is signed and dated by Bartholomew Dendridge, a prominent English artist. She was born Elizabeth daughter of Sir Nathan Wright, of Cranham hall. She married Sir James Oglethorpe in London. Dendridge Bartholomew, portrait-painter, He gained considerable reputation, was the son of a house painter, and employment in the reign of George II, as a painter of portraits and of effective small conversation pieces. He died in the prime of life.

General Oglethorpe, painted in full armor of that period, a volunteer under Prince Eugene, was a son of Sir Theophilus Oglethorpe, of London, whose wife was Elizabeth Wall. He wears a colonial wig and his position typifies the gallant knight of old. His portrait is by Highmore and it is the finest portrait in existence

Many Social, Civic and Church Affairs Take Place in Griffin

Griffin, Ga., May 10.—(Special.) Mrs. C. E. Bayne, of Macon, announces the marriage of her daughter, Olive, to John Franklin Dickinson, of Griffin, the ceremony having been performed at high noon Thursday, May 1, at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Walter B. Anthony, on Mulberry street, Macon. Rev. Mr. Anthony performed the ceremony in the presence of a few friends and relatives.

Mrs. Dickinson is a lovely young woman and popular with a large circle of friends. Mr. Dickinson, who is a young man of sterling character, served several years in the world war, and since that time has been with the Buick Motor company. He recently severed his connection with that firm and is now with the Gulf Refining company in Griffin. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson will reside at his country home near Woolsey. Pulaski chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, had an interesting meeting Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Ralph M. Jones, at her home in West Poplar street. Mrs. Willis F. Huddleston, had charge of the program which was as follows: Piano solos, "Drifting," "Iris," Preferton, Miss Elizabeth Bell; "Women of Revolutionary Fame," Mrs. Grover McKibben; vocal solo, Mrs. Ralph M. Jones. The regent, Mrs. Robert R. Evans, presided over the meeting, a large attendance of the members being present.

Among those entertaining for Mrs. Sanders Walker, of Monroe; Mrs. John R. Whitehead and Miss Celia Whitehead, of Albany, guests of Mrs. Green T. Dodd, were Dr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Thomas at dinner Friday evening, Miss Hattie Head at a theater party Friday afternoon, Mrs. Green T. Dodd at an afternoon tea Saturday, from 4 to 6 o'clock, at her home in the Marian apartments. Assisting Mrs. Dodd in entertaining were Miss Hattie Head, Mrs. Bruce Montgomery, Mrs. John Henry Crouch, Mrs. Charles Thomas, Miss Mathilde Brown, Mrs. W. C. Beeks, Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Crouch, Mrs. C. P. Newton entertained at a beautiful dinner Tuesday evening at her home on South Hill street, complimentary to Mrs. Sanders Walker. Mrs. Bruce Montgomery was hostess Thursday at an afternoon tea at the Country club with these popular visitors as guests of honor.

Miss Virginia Crouch entertained at a large and beautiful reception Friday afternoon at her home on South Hill street in compliment to her guest, Mrs. Powell C. Grover, of Larchmont, New York. Receiving with the hostess and guest of honor were Miss Abby Nichols and Miss Roselyn Carlisle, two June brides, and Mrs. Booker, of Atlanta. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Otis Crouch, Mrs. Charles Wolcott, of New York; Mrs. Selman and Mrs. Thrash, of Atlanta; Mrs. Ober Tyus, Mrs. James Owen, Hilary Wynne, Little Miss Rosalind Blakely Mills received the guests at the door. Mrs. Bartlett Searcy, Mrs. Kinkaid Thomas, Miss Mary Leila Patterson and Miss Jessie Pearl Rice served tea. Mrs. John Henry Crouch presided over the punch bowl and was assisted in serving by Miss Marian Gresham and Miss Edith Tucker.

Miss Cecil Carmichael's art pupils held an interesting exhibit Friday at the school when their work was viewed by more than 200 persons. There were about 65 pictures shown, representing still life, landscapes, marines and several were copies of standard paintings. The work was both in water and oil. Among those whose pictures were exhibited were: Miss Ade Smith, Miss Effie Thornton, Miss Helen Muzzey, Miss Elizabeth Idner, Miss Margaret Finley, Mrs. J. M. Hines, Louis Hall, William Rae, Howard Hines.

The South Side Mission Study Circle met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Will H. Taylor and Mrs. W. H. Cox, at the home of the former on South Sixth street. An hour was devoted to study, "Child Welfare" being the subject, with Mrs. Ernest Travis, teacher.

Mrs. R. L. Hunter was hostess for the North Side Mission Study Circle. Fourteen members were present.

Mrs. and Mrs. William H. Beck and William H. Beck, Jr., entertained Saturday evening at a bridge party at their home on West Poplar street in compliment to their guest, Mrs. Lewis Beck, of Barbours, North Carolina. Ten tables of bridge were played. The conference of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the sixth district came to a successful close Friday afternoon. The feature of the afternoon meeting was the address by Mrs. L. C. Warren, of Griffin. Mrs. Warren's subject was "Women and the Ballot." The morning session opened with an address of welcome by Mrs. Charles Mills, of Griffin, and a special talk by Mrs. August Burghard, of Macon, the organization's state editor. Mrs. Campbell, of Athens, secretary of the young people's work among college students, also spoke in addition to a short talk by Mrs. G. B. Ridley, of Zebulon, on "The Value of Union Signal." The feature of the entire conference was the brilliant address by Dr. Bascom Anthony, of Macon, on the "Progress, Perils, and Promise of Real Patriotism."

The Girls' club held a meeting Sunday afternoon at the Second Baptist church. Every girl in Griffin was asked to cooperate.

The Parish Guild of St. George's Episcopal church met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Walter Graef at her home in the Marian apartments. Mrs. Robert Walker, vice president, presided. Assisting the hostess in entertaining at the social hour were Mrs. Eva M. Goddard, Mrs. Clarke Williams and Mrs. Robert Walker.

Hour of Song Is Announced.

The Barli School of Music announces an hour of song by Miss Margaret Nelson, soprano, assisted by Miss Frances Hatcher, pianist, on Saturday afternoon, May 17, at 2:30 o'clock.

Tennessee Woman Is Given National Patriotic Honor

A group of prominent Georgia women who have returned from Washington, D. C., where they attended the National Congress of the Daughters of 1812, includes Mrs. Katherine Wooten, Mrs. Lena Wise Ogleby, Mrs. Julius Talmadge.

It is of especial interest to the host of friends in Georgia of Mrs. F. W. Millsbaugh, of Nashville, Tenn., that she was unanimously elected recording secretary national for the United States Society Daughters of 1812 at the national meeting in Washington. Mrs. Millsbaugh, who has fine gifts of leadership and who has rendered valuable service in various patriotic organizations, is the able regent of the Nashville chapter of the Daughters of 1812, the Hero of New Orleans.

Mrs. Millsbaugh is prominent also in the state and local D. A. B. and she went to Washington two weeks ago to attend the continental congress of the D. A. B. as a representative of General James Robertson chapter. She served as a member of the house committee for the congress and also as a member of the same committee for the subsequent meeting of the Daughters of 1812. The society held a three-day session at the New Willard.

Mrs. Millsbaugh is the sister of Mrs. A. L. Milligan, of Atlanta, who is well known in Atlanta's civic and social life. She is a prominent member of the Daughters of 1812 and of the Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. B.

Mother's Day

A day dedicated to mother. Twenty-four hours set apart that we may do homage to the one person in all the world who never loses faith in us; the one who in the face of the world's condemnation still loves on, still hopes on that her child may yet see the light and turn from the darkness of sin; in her mind still lingers the memory of the tiny babe once folded so close to her breast; the merry laugh of childhood, the joyous shout of youth are to her the music of yesterday; and she can never be brought to think that her child is unworthy.

A day in which to prove that we are, at least in a measure, not unworthy of that deathless love, not unworthy of that mysterious devotion that led her into the valley of the shadow of death to win life for her child at the peril of her own.

A sacred day of which we feel the Savior Himself might approve, for in that last hour upon the cross, in the unspeakable agony of death, He was mindful of His mother, as if to teach us, as Longfellow so beautifully expresses it, that this holy love should be our last worldly thought, the last point of earth from which the soul should take its flight to heaven.

Mother's Day is the day to write that letter to mother, the letter you have put off writing and that will make her heart glad. Perhaps you will do even more and call her over the phone that she may hear again the voice that she loves. To her you are still just her child, no matter if time has furrowed your cheek or silvered your brow; whether your days are spent remote from the crowd or whether fame has shouted your name from the houseposts. You are still to her just her child.

The members of the Church of the Disciples of Christ in Atlanta have inaugurated the beautiful custom of carrying flowers on Mother's Day out to the federal prison and to the hospitals in the city that those who are thus separated from their families may have this beautiful reminder of mother, the best friend that God ever gives us. And who can estimate the hearts that are thus touched and the memories that are awakened by these thoughts of mother?

The Atlanta Constitution in its own great-hearted way always remembers the mothers in the Old Ladies' Home—and such dear old ladies they are, too—and every year they are entertained as the honored guests of the Constitution, and their hearts are made happy and glad that they are not forgotten.

"If there be aught surpassing human deed or word or thought, it is a mother's love!"

Silmerine Keeps Hair Curly, Glossy, Beautiful

The tight little curls so dear to woman's heart, the kind that remain in curl under any and all weather conditions, are best acquired by means of the simple silmerine method. This enables one to have the most perfect waves and curls imaginable, without the appearance of "Nature's own." Silmerine is, of course, perfectly harmless. It leaves no sticky or greasy trace. It also serves as a beautiful dressing, imparting a lively lustre and wholesome healthy to the hair. And the hair is fine and fluffy when combed out. If you will procure a bottle of liquid silmerine and follow the easy directions, you will be pleased beyond words with the result. This product is not new or experimental, having been sold by drug stores for years.—(adv.)

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this take two ounces of calcium powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly with the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calcium powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.—(adv.)

Methodist Women Demonstrate Love For Mission Work

BY MRS. E. W. BROGDON.
The Woman's Missionary society, of the North Georgia Conference, Methodist Church, South, has just closed a remarkably successful year, from a financial point of view, having reached and passed the financial goal, meeting every pledge and fulfilling every obligation.

We paid to the Woman's Missionary council $58,080.01 exclusive of Bennett memorial money. Too much cannot be said of the magnificent way in which our women have rallied to this memorial fund for our great leader. Our pledge to this fund was $5,000 and we met it in full, making our total for the year $63,080.01. Including local work and city missions, our grand total was $115,012.26. This is an increase of $5,796.40 over last year. A number of these items are of special interest.

Some years ago Miss Isabel Kuhn, with a beautiful generosity of spirit and a broad missionary vision, gave to the Woman's Missionary society a lot in human park. This lot was recently sold for $10,000. This money will be used as a memorial gift for the greater Scarritt, and will be named after Miss Kuhn or her mother. We hope this gift will be the forerunner of other large memorial gifts to the Bennett memorial.

Another notable item is a Scarritt scholarship of $300. This is given by the North Georgia conference, and is named "The Minnie Atkinson Scholarship," in honor of our loved former treasurer, Mrs. R. J. Atkinson, of Greenville, Ga., who in her thirteen years of service as treasurer, rendered a service to our conference that can never be measured.

A third item of interest is $600 given by the conference for negro work in Georgia.

The first quarter of this year gives promise of greater achievement, the total being $14,700.56, an increase of nearly $600 over the first quarter of last year.

A splendid report has been made possible by the cooperation and loyalty of the membership of the auxiliary, and the excellent service rendered by the local treasurers, who have thus made a contribution to the conference and to the whole missionary cause.

Opportunity School Closing Protested By Methodist Women

Women's missionary societies of both the North and the South Atlanta districts have passed resolutions, as follows, protesting against the proposed closing of the Opportunity school.

"We, the members of the North Atlanta district of Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, representing more than 30 churches, assembled in regular session May 1, 1924, wish to offer the following resolutions:

"Whereas, it has come to the knowledge of this body that the board of education of the city of Atlanta is contemplating closing the Opportunity school now operated as a part of the public school system at a nominal cost to the city, appropriations from other sources supplying the greater part of the funds; and

"Whereas, this school is meeting a need for individual instruction not possible through any other source, thereby increasing the value of our citizenship and being of untold value to our community; be it therefore

Resolved, That we protest, most earnestly that this door of opportunity be not closed to those who feel the vital need of its benefits, and have no other means of advancement.

"Signed, Mrs. John S. Hurt, president of the Federation of Social Service Superintendents of the Methodist Churches of Atlanta, Mrs. E. W. Tremery.

These same resolutions were endorsed by the North Atlanta district, representing thirty-seven churches, at the annual meeting of the North Atlanta district, held at St. Paul's Methodist church, W. M. S. D. White, district secretary, presiding.

Miss Martha Sullinger, of Fruitland, stands out as unique in her achievement and experiences as a teacher. During the World war she kept in correspondence with ninety boys in U. S. service who had at one time or another been her pupils at Fruitland. What can she claim as many "service stars" upon her flag? Alas! some of them became gold stars.

During the coming summer a fifty-room dormitory for girls will be erected at Fruitland institute to be known as the "Martha Sullinger Girls' Dormitory." Only eternity can reveal the glorious womanhood of this mountain boy and girls during the last twenty-five years.

Long may she live to serve her Master.

Public Schools in Tokyo. Since the earthquake, the mayor of Tokyo, Japan, has agreed to open the primary schools in the city to Christian teaching once each week. This amazing news was learned through H. E. Coleman, who is honorary secretary of the National Sunday School association of Japan, and who is now in this country. Plans are now being perfected whereby this program of religious education may be carried out.

If in Tokyo, Japan, why not in Atlanta, Ga.?

Board of Missions in Session. Mrs. L. G. Johnson, of Atlanta, who is chairman of the woman's division of the board of missions of the M. E. church, south, is in Nashville, Tenn., for the purpose of attending a meeting of the general board of missions.

All work sponsored by the women in the church heads up in the woman's division of the board of missions. The woman's department administers the funds and supervises the missionaries and other workers. It administers and directs the deaconess work. The woman's work reaches into ten fields, viz: China, Japan, Korea, Manchuria, Siberia, Cuba, Mexico, Brazil, Africa and America.

To Get Warm Welcome. Miss Kathleen Morry of Birmingham, Ala., corresponding secretary of the Woman's Missionary Union auxiliary to the Southern Baptist convention, will receive a warm welcome from her many friends throughout the south, who will have the pleasure of greeting her at the annual meeting of the W. M. U., which convenes May 13 in Atlanta at the Baptist tabernacle. Miss Morry returned just a few weeks ago after having spent nine months in the Orient visiting mission fields in China, Japan and the Philippines.

Mrs. Frank Burney Coming. Mrs. Frank Burney, of Waynesboro, Ga., chairman of the committee of the "Margaret Fund," which is maintained for the purpose of educating in the best schools and colleges of the south the children of Baptist missionaries, will be one of messengers attending the meetings of the Woman's Missionary union, May 13 to 16. Mrs. Burney will compliment the members of the Margaret fund committee with a luncheon at the Piedmont hotel Wednesday, May 16, at 1 o'clock. The board consists of one member from each of the eighteen states affiliated with the southern union.

Mrs. Jones Writes Appreciation of Miss Sullinger

BY MRS. ASHBY JONES.
In 1895 I went as a bride to Bardonia, Ky., and lived next door to the Bardonia Seminary for Girls. The same year Miss Martha Sullinger

MISS MARTHA SULLINGER.
Principal of the mountain school at Fruitland, N. C., under the direction of the home board of the Southern Baptist convention.

er of Mexico, Missouri, came to teach in the seminary, a young woman filled with God's call to service.

Very soon a friendship between the inmates of the "Parsonage" and Miss Sullinger began; a friendship which has grown and deepened with the passage of years. Miss Sullinger has taught in the public schools of her home, but feeling that she wished a more stable and closer touch with the lives of girls, she came to live in the school with them. From the first, her influence upon the girls in the school and in the town was remarkable. For three years we were together there. Then came a physical breakdown, and a year of enforced rest.

In 1902 Miss Sullinger wrote Dr. J. William Jones asking him for advice as to what field of work she should enter.

Always she had expected to go as a missionary to some foreign field. Dr. Jones advised her to give her life to mountain school work, and wrote her so glowing an account of the needs and opportunities in the North Carolina mountains that she was ready to leave her home and for 21 years has been doing that wonderful work.

Miss Sullinger helped to build the school at Fruitland, N. C., and then in 1907 went to Bardonia, where for two years she labored in the establishing of that school. Then in 1908 back to Fruitland institute, where she has fulfilled herself into the character of the boys and girls who have gone forth from that school into every phase of life. Statesmen, business men, lawyers, doctors, teachers, all have come forth, carrying the impress of this noble woman's ideals of love and service.

Even before her has been that magic word—so full of the spirit of God—service, so big and far-reaching—service!

Miss Sullinger will be the guest of her old friends during the Southern Baptist convention here in Atlanta this coming week.

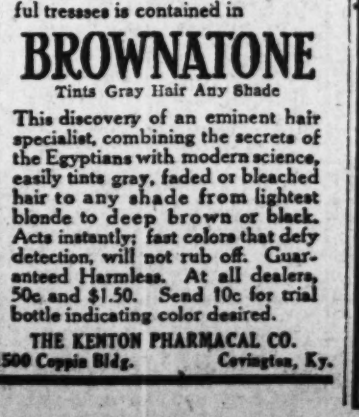

Miss Sullinger's work is directly under the Baptist Home Mission board, and her annual report will be made to the great convention, meeting in Atlanta May 12, 13 and 15.

toward splendid cooperation and fellowship in special branches of the work of the Southern Baptist Women's Missionary Union. One is the annual meeting of the alumnae of the training school of Louisville, Ky., on May 16. On this occasion there will be a banquet in the Rainbow room of the Ansley hotel. On May 19 the W. M. U. secretaries and field workers will meet in annual session and a luncheon will be served in the banquet hall of the Atlanta Woman's club. Some of the best musicians of the city will assist in the program. Miss Laura Lee Patrick, corresponding secretary-treasurer of the Georgia W. M. U., is chairman for both this luncheon and the banquet.

All Saints' Women. Sunday, May 11, is Mother's day and the junior choir of boys and girls of All Saints' Episcopal church will sing at Grady hospital at 4 p. m., going from ward to ward.

They will be in charge of Mrs. Crandall Prescott, the junior choir director.

MOTHER'S PICTURE

(Originally published in The Atlanta Constitution, and subsequently set to music.)

Before me is a picture,
An image fair to see,
That represents my mother,
Just as she used to be;
When in life's cheery spring-time.

As in the picture now,
Health's roses rare were blooming
In beauty on her brow.

But years have come and vanished
Since then, and on her brow
Was laid the hand of stillness,
And she is sleeping now,
Death's shadow slowly hovered,
And peacefully one day
An angel hand descended
And bore her soul away.

I sit in pensive silence,
And gaze upon her face,
And in her kind expression
I see a modest grace;
And many tender feelings
Arise within my heart—
I thank my Lord for giving
To man the painter's art!

While looking at her picture,
I wander back in mind
To happy days of childhood
And pleasures left behind,
And as I see in fancy
The things to memory dear
I seem the intonations
Of mother's voice to hear.

And in the days before me,
Whatever life impart,
The picture of my mother
I'll carry in my heart.

trust they will sing hymns the patients will know, and sing with them, thereby bringing Christ's message to many of the sick.

During the singing of the hymns two children will distribute flowers to the sick. Any one wishing to donate flowers for this purpose can send them to All Saints' church, corner of West Peachtree and North avenue, not later than 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Monday, May 12, is Florence Nightingale day (commonly known as national hospital day) and the public is cordially invited to visit Grady hospital on that day.

Any one having flowers to give away can always find a place for them in the wards at Grady hospital.

Mrs. Pogue Elected.
At the last meeting of the Grady hospital auxiliary, Mrs. Frank C. Pogue, of All Saints' Episcopal church, was elected president. This is a well deserved honor, as Mrs. Pogue has been for some years one of the most valued and efficient workers for the hospital.

Summons to a Growing Task

"Train the children for world-wide service."

"Lead the young women gently into places of joyous responsibility."

The training ground is the most important factor in any organization. Knowing this to be true, the organization of the young people for definite mission training and work was one of the first considerations of the Woman's Missionary union. Summons were organized in 1886, Young Women's auxiliary in 1905, Girls' auxiliary in 1907, and the Royal Ambassadors in 1908.

"The men and women of tomorrow are marching forward on the feet of the children of today." How necessary, then, that very early in life these children should be helped to fix for themselves right values—values that abide. From early life they will acquire, discard and cherish; and they should be taught to retain those things which will come to the light of the presence of God. "And these are the things which are eternal."

They should be taught the courage of life—that courageous persistence is the backbone of every great venture.

They should be taught that in the store of success there are no bargain counters, but the price—one price to all—must be paid, the price of being work, faith, gift, vision, patience.

We should teach them to train to the little things, and to despise no small task. "Trifles make perfection, but perfection is no trifle."

We should teach them that if they would touch lives and moments and events, they must touch them with clean hands, consecrated to service.

We should so lead them that they will grow up knowing that Christianity and missions is not a thing apart, but the very rockbed of their existence. Lead them to early look at all history as "His story."

Interest the boys and girls in mission readings from the Bible, the greatest of all mission books, and from the biographies of our great men and women who have made the age better in which they lived. And so will they give a broad vision—a world-wide vision.

Through these studies of missionary heroes the boys and girls will be brought to know God's love toward all mankind and race prejudice will be done away with. Through such missionary reading and study our young people will come to the feeling of personal responsibility and determination to make their lives count for God in service, and be led to pray for the world and to give to the advancing of kingdom giving, the discipling of all nations.

Oh, young people, with opportunities greater and more glorious than the world has ever known, learn the lesson the poet has for us in these words:

"I kissed a little brown-eyed dearest
Of summers twain—my heart aware Of summer twain—my heart aware"

Said, "Sweetheart, dear, if I were you,
My life to live again, how true,
My dear, I'd be, how true, how true!"

"I passed a saint with life aware,
Yet hope of heaven bright and cheery;
Dear saint, I cried, 'If I were you,
The gates of heaven almost in view,
How true I'd be, how true, how true!"

"A sweet voice whispered, 'Child, the fether
That binds your mid-years is far better
To make you strong—if I were you,
The morning glow, not heaven in view,
How true I'd be, how true, how true!"

Combing Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffier, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and it never fails to do the work.—(adv.)

Careless Shampooing Spoils The Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Multifid coconut oil shampoo, which is pure and gentle, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Multifid coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—(adv.)

The Operation I Avoided—

MRS. IDA M. COFFMAN
SIDELL, ILL.

IF there is one thing more than another a woman dreads, it is a surgical operation, and to be told that one is necessary is very disheartening.

Hospitals are grand institutions, and undoubtedly many operations are necessary. However, we have received hundreds of letters from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation had been deemed advisable.

Every woman who suffers as Mrs. Coffman did naturally wishes to avoid an operation if possible, and the remarkable statements which she makes in her letter will be read with interest by women everywhere.

Mrs. Coffman's Letter Follows:

SIDELL, ILLINOIS—"I was a nervous wreck. I was suffering from a pain in my left side which was noticeable at all times but sometimes it was almost unbearable and I could not even lie in bed. I could not rest on my body at night. I had been sick for seven years but not so badly until the last 18 months, and had become so rundown that I cared for nobody and would rather have died than live. I couldn't do my work without help and the doctor told me that an operation was all there was left for me. I would not consent to that so my husband brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged me to take it. It is taken fourteen bottles of it and I feel ten years younger. Life is full of hope. I do all my housework and had a large garden this year. I never will be without the Vegetable Compound in the house and when my two little girls reach womanhood I shall advise them to take it."—MRS. IDA M. COFFMAN, R. R. No. 2, Sidell, Illinois.

Another Operation Avoided

DAYTON, OHIO—"I was sick for eight weeks and had three doctors. They told me I would have to be operated upon before I would be any better. My sister told me about the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In one week's time I began to feel better. I took seven bottles of it and also some of the Liver Pills and used your Sanative Wash and I soon gained my health. I recommend your medicines to all women who feel badly and have troubles of this kind and I will answer all letters sent to me by women."—MRS. GRACE B. GILLEM, 270 Valley Street, Dayton, Ohio.

Mrs. Sadler Honors Attractive Visitors At Informal Tea

Mrs. Gillespie Sadler entertained at an informal tea Saturday afternoon at her home on West Thirtieth street. The occasion was honoring her mother, Mrs. Ida M. Young, of Charlotte, N. C., and Miss Jennie Klutz, of Salisbury, N. C., who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. M. A. Lane.

Spring flowers decorated the apartments where the guests were receiving, and in the dining room, the table was overlaid with an exquisite Venetian lace cloth.

A crystal bowl, resting on a silver stand, adorned the center, holding pink roses and lavender iris. Silver candelsticks, holding pink unshaded candles, encircled the centerpiece, and silver compotes held the mints and cakes embossed in pink roses and lavender iris.

Mrs. Sadler received her guests wearing a gown of black satin. Mrs. Young was gowned in black canton crepe, richly embroidered in cut steel design.

Miss Klutz wore a gown of pink georgette crepe, beaded in crystal. Mrs. Lane wore a gown of gray crepe, elaborately embroidered in cut steel.

Assisting in receiving were Mrs. Robert B. Wood, gowned in midnight blue georgette crepe, trimmed with erin thread lace; Mrs. Charles Harmon, wearing a gown of black georgette crepe, combined with gray lace; and Mrs. Wayne Martin, gowned in white lace veiling, black georgette crepe.

Miss Mary Sadler, gowned in black satin with petit point embroidery and Miss Ida Sadler, wearing blue georgette crepe, combined with lace, served punch in the sun-room.

Thirty guests called during the hours of 4 to 6 o'clock to meet Mrs. Young and Miss Klutz.

Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Callahan entertained at dinner Wednesday in honor of the Rev. W. H. Collins and the Rev. and Mrs. N. A. White.

A recent pleasant affair was the luncheon given by Miss Orlena King, in compliment to the employees of the mailing department of the Davidson-Paxon-Stokes department store.

Church Circle To Give Play.

The Othello Parham circle of the Woman's Missionary society, College Park Methodist church, will give "The Day of Skulch at Frog-Town Hollow" in the auditorium of the old church Friday night, May 16, beginning at 8 o'clock. The cast of characters, including teacher, scholars, committeemen, visitors, etc., is a list of local talent. Many of the actors who displayed much talent in the recent staging of "The Burlesque on Matrimony" will reappear in this performance.

The doors will be open at 7:30 o'clock. The funds realized as door-receipts will be used for the benefit of the new church building now under construction. The play was composed by Mrs. Juliette B. Parnale, of St. John's Methodist church, Atlanta, and is being given in this instance under the auspices of the Catherine Parham circle of the Woman's Missionary society, College Park Methodist church, with Mrs. H. H. Stead as director, and Mrs. C. L. Robbins as directors.

Accounts of Battle Flags Called for by Mrs. Pittman

Mrs. C. E. Pittman, chairman in the Georgia division for preservation of battle-flags of the Confederacy, issues a call today to chapter presidents, asking them to locate and secure an authentic sketch of every battle-flag in their vicinity.

"Please inform me," Mrs. Pittman writes, "how they are being preserved, and whether they are the possession of an individual, a U. D. C. chapter, or Confederate Veterans' camp."

"Please send me this information at the earliest possible moment, as I wish to have a complete record of each and every battle-flag of the 'sixties' for a historical scrap book."

DAVIS' BIRTHDAY.

Jefferson Davis' birthday, June 3, will be the date for the next award of the Crosses of Service and Crosses of Honor.

FORSYTH.

Mrs. Frank Harold, president general, was the guest of the U. D. C. chapter of Forsyth at the chapter's memorial day observance.

Mrs. Harold was introduced by Mrs. A. M. Zellner, and delivered an eloquent address outlining the great work of the U. D. C., enjoining the soldiers of the states.

MRS. HAROLD'S SON.

The Memorial day address was delivered by Mrs. Harold's son, Frank Walker Harold, and easily took rank among the best ever delivered on such an occasion in Forsyth. Mr. Harold was introduced by Rev. R. L. Bivins.

The program was given at the courthouse, with Colonel A. M. Zellner as master of ceremonies. A feature of the occasion was inspiring music rendered by Forsyth and Bessie Tift talent. Mrs. Hattie Jackson gave an outline of the plans and accomplishments at Stone Mountain Memorial to the Confederacy.

The exercises at the courthouse were followed by a beautiful reception given by the Calhoun Chapter.

Mrs. John A. Perdue Nominated To Head Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C.

Award of medals in the essay contest directed by Miss Kathleen Mitchell in the city's schools and the report of the nominating committee featured the regular meeting of the Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C., on Thursday, May 8.

The nominating committee reported the following selection of officers: For president, Mrs. John A. Perdue; for first vice president, Mrs. Stafford Seidell; second vice president, Mrs. Nathan Bedford Forrest; third vice president, Mrs. George M. Hope; recording secretary, Mrs. J. L. Teaford; corresponding secretary, Miss Anna Bennett; treasurer, Mrs. Forrest Seidell; historian, Mrs. Charles Walker; auditor, Mrs. Walker Dunson.

The election of officers will be held at the next regular meeting. Following the report of the nominating committee, Mrs. Charles Rice, Mrs. Walter S. Coleman and Mrs. Bun Wyllie eulogized the selection of Mrs. John A. Perdue to head the ticket for several days, but has only one day left to go.

Mrs. John A. Perdue spoke enthusiastically of the selection of Mrs. Stafford Seidell as the nominee for first vice president.

Miss Mary Brown Spalding, granddaughter of Mrs. E. L. Connolly, was welcomed into the chapter by the president, Mrs. Charles T. Phillips.

Mrs. Richardson Is Honor Guest At Luncheon in Tennesse

Tennille, Ga., May 10.—Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, of Atlanta, director-elect of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, was the honor guest at an elaborate luncheon given on Tuesday by the Tennille Fine Arts club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Smith.

Miss Louise Brown, president Fine Arts club, acted as toastmistress, and brief greetings were made from the various organizations of the city by the following: From the Fine Arts club, Mrs. W. B. Smith; from the

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

TO MY MOTHER.

The following beautiful lines are worth repeating here, though the author is unknown. It is really an introduction to this book of beautiful poems:

"To my Mother: To whom I would say what the poets in this book have said, and then much more, and yet I would not express all that I feel for her:

God thought to give the sweetest thing

In His almighty power
To earth; and deeply pondering
What it should be—one hour
In fondlest joy and love of heart
Outweighing every other,
He moved the gates of Heaven apart
And gave to earth—a mother."

This Book of Verse is a collection of poems by Joseph Morris and St. Clair Adams—it is a selection of the best poetry about mothers and motherhood—poems that breathe the love that is felt by child and the still greater love she gives to her child.

Among the many writers represented in this volume there are the names of Kipling, Field, Guest, Appleton, Van Dyke, Riley, Hazdorn and Frank L. Stanton, whose poem "Motherhood" has been copied all over the country:

Thou shalt have grace where glory is forgot,
The love all luminous in the world's last night;
Thy children's arms shall be thy necklace bright,
And all love's roses clamber to thy feet.

To shall give all His angels charge of thee;
Thy coming and thy going shall be known,
Thy steps shall shine before thee radiantly.

Thou shalt dance thy foot
Against a star,
The cross still stands, Who shall that love condemn Whose mother-lips kissed Christ at Bethlehem?

No truer, sweeter message ever went
From the white house than the one Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, directed that the second Sunday in May should be designated as Mothers' day and that the officials display the United States flag on all the government buildings and that the people also display theirs in their homes, and to this has been added the custom of wearing a white or red flower in memory of Mother's day.

"A mother's gift—the Bible . . . Remember, 'tis no little toy
A mother's gift! Remember, boy."

Marie Corelli and her books have been one of the most interesting chapters in the literary world—she has been one of the most picturesque personalities, and at one time her romances, beginning with "A Romance of Two Worlds," which she wrote at the age of 17, were among the best sellers of the time.

And while she was always recognized as a unique character, not famous or brilliant, yet as one of the most attractive and mysterious writers, her own life was cloaked in mystery, though she claimed to be a Venetian. She was educated in a French convent, making a specialty of music, but instead of following music as a profession fate or destiny planned that her life should be devoted to literature.

Among the books written by this wonderful writer are "A Romance of Two Worlds," "Thelma," which became so popular that many daughters here and in England were named for the heroine of this story. "Barabara" had an extensive circulation, and these books were followed by many others, and it might be said that all were best sellers both in America and in England.

Among the old books that are popular the Corelli books are still in demand, and, like Augusta Evans' stories, they appeal to the school girls, especially "St. Elmo" and "Thelma."

As to her statement made time and again that she never loved any man, it seems hard to believe when she so attractively painted her ideal hero. But her life was spent in her books with her charming heroines and creating of the heroines, as well as the writing of the story gave her more happiness than anything else.

One of Marie Corelli's strongest points was her frankness which prevented her from being a very kind daughter or making Augustus Evans' though many who knew her real well called her a charming hostess, Hall's Croft, at one time the home of Susan Shakespeare, and she lived in her home at Stratford-on-Avon. She always received American women in a most gracious manner and seemed to find them very entertaining.

Marie Corelli was not only a successful writer, but an excellent business woman and was considered one of the wealthiest writers in England. This is just a little summary of the life of a woman who made for herself

"Irish Pedigrees"
2 Vols. 2000 Pages
LIMITED AMERICAN EDITION
Containing the pedigree stem of every Irish family at this time for a day passes that something does not happen, and it is true, says the author, that there is a revolution in China, and in an understanding way he describes a few of the movements among the students, the women, in the homes, in the factories and in the churches. (Missionary Education Movement, New York City.)

MEXICO.
In and Under Mexico, by Ralph McAllister Ingersoll. The author's illustrations, according to the author's statement, "is not a travel book, because it is all about one place. It is not a novel, because the characters are real and play no part in the author's story. It is a book that has been written by a man who has spent the years that he has spent in this vicinity gathered the material for a first-class copper mine story in Mexico. He describes life in a mining camp as it is with a great copper mine below. His description of life below where the 'ceaseless battle of steel and compressed air and dynamite in the eternal darkness' under the earth, and its dance halls which are frequented by the trahadores (workmen) is entirely different from the old Mexico, and there is a Main street, which has ridden on the wings of adventure into exile."

This is a real story of life at a copper mine in Mexico as it is today. The illustrations are interesting and add to the story of miners who live in that country. (The Century Company, New York.)

MORE WILD FOLK.
There are some authors whose plain descriptive style of writing animal and nature stories has appealed to the many readers of their contributions until they have been placed on the list of talented story tellers; among these names you will find that of Samuel Scoville, Jr., author of several interesting animal books for boys especially the latest contribution, "More Wild Folk," will be read a place in the world of literature but she always was lonely when it came to human companionship, spending her time with her music, flowers and writings, and yet there are many men and women who knew the real Marie Corelli and are giving her the praise they believe she deserved.

THE PRISONER WHO SANG.
The author of "The Prisoner Who Sang," a story which is proving quite popular, is Johan Bojer, author of "The Great Hunger" and "The Last of the Vikings," another book which has received special praise from the public. The great Norwegian novelist's story is called "A Peer Gynt" in prose, and the reader will not be disappointed in its beauty and attractive style.

While his former books had a special appeal, this story is based on the every-day life of the fisher-folk and is filled with words that portray the highest touch of the artist, and the story should have a place among the best literature.

Andreas Berger, around whom the story is woven, began life as a poor Norwegian peasant, but being an unusual character, as a critic says: "He has a passion for affecting the lives of human beings, for creating constancy and cheerfulness, for building up immense self-satisfaction and shattering them," etc. When young manhood is reached Andreas becomes restless to get out into the world and live the parts he has played in his humble life—that is to be what he is not, to deceive the world, to make men and women accept him for what he is really not.

It is but natural that he should find himself in the clutch of the law, and while being tried he attracts the attention of a physician who recognizes in the prisoner an unusual creature, who, having never been given a chance had within him the making of a great actor. He immediately made plans for the future of Andreas and adopted him as his protégé.

With an enrollment of 190 members in various agricultural clubs, a banner year in farm club work is in prospect for Butts county, organizers declare. The enrollment is the largest in the history of club work here and boys and girls are showing more interest and enthusiasm in their work.

Cordele, Ga., May 10.—(Special.) Sunday school workers of the South Georgia Methodist Sunday School conference will meet here July 11-12, it is announced by Rev. J. M. Outler, of Americus, today.

After a careful survey of the ends to be sought the Sunday school board, of which Rev. Outler is chairman, has decided that the plan of representation for Sunday schools shall be as follows:

One representative from each of the elementary, intermediate, senior, young people's and adult departments, presiding elders, pastors and Sunday school superintendents will be admitted as delegates. A registration fee will be charged to defray expenses of the conference.

Rev. Outler is preparing a program for the conference. A group of speakers are expected to appear during the sessions.

Cordele is making plans for a large gathering and an elaborate entertainment program is being included.

Agricultural Clubs
Of Butts County Plan
Banner Year's Work

Jackson, Ga., May 10.—(Special.) With an enrollment of 190 members in various agricultural clubs, a banner year in farm club work is in prospect for Butts county, organizers declare. The enrollment is the largest in the history of club work here and boys and girls are showing more interest and enthusiasm in their work.

The Soil Building club was organized the past fall, when members of the Kiwanis club furnished seed for the boys and girls to sow an acre of grazing crops.

All those enrolled in the various clubs and comprise the year's work will be completed with prizes this fall. A number of scholarships are being arranged for the short course at the State college and many club boys and girls will receive instruction in this way.

250 Berry Students
To Work at School
To Make Tuition

Mount Berry, Ga., May 10.—(Special.)—Miss Martha Berry, director of the Berry schools here, and her assistants, have arranged to employ 250 students during the summer months, and fees for next year, it is announced. The program of self-help in education was instituted at the Berry schools 22 years ago.

During the past several months, more than 400 boys and girls have applied for admission to the schools. The program of self-help in education was instituted at the Berry schools 22 years ago.

The self-help idea at the Berry schools provides that a student who works four months is given his or her board for that period, and in remuneration for his or her work, will be given tuition and board and lodging for the next eight months of school.

The work which the school provides this summer, in addition to the regular term, is the building of a new pipe line from the boys' school to the girls' school so as to give increased water pressure to that school, and bring water from the mountain side to the foundation school, which is at the foot of the mountain, it was pointed out.

The girls will be employed in Sunshine cottage where they will spin wool and flax grown on the farm, and part of the time, it was stated, they will work in the sewing room making garments for the own use and for the girls who are unable to provide their own clothing.

Miss McCool is one of several talented actors who have been introduced to Atlanta by the Lyric Players' national prestige.

250 Berry Students
To Work at School
To Make Tuition

Mount Berry, Ga., May 10.—(Special.)—Miss Martha Berry, director of the Berry schools here, and her assistants, have arranged to employ 250 students during the summer months, and fees for next year, it is announced. The program of self-help in education was instituted at the Berry schools 22 years ago.

During the past several months, more than 400 boys and girls have applied for admission to the schools. The program of self-help in education was instituted at the Berry schools 22 years ago.

The self-help idea at the Berry schools provides that a student who works four months is given his or her board for that period, and in remuneration for his or her work, will be given tuition and board and lodging for the next eight months of school.

The work which the school provides this summer, in addition to the regular term, is the building of a new pipe line from the boys' school to the girls' school so as to give increased water pressure to that school, and bring water from the mountain side to the foundation school, which is at the foot of the mountain, it was pointed out.

The girls will be employed in Sunshine cottage where they will spin wool and flax grown on the farm, and part of the time, it was stated, they will work in the sewing room making garments for the own use and for the girls who are unable to provide their own clothing.

'THE BREAKING POINT' PICTURE AT HOWARD

Mary Rinehart's Mystery
Drama Features Nita Naldi.

When Mary Roberts Rinehart wrote "The Breaking Point" it was hailed as the keenest study of psychology which had appeared in the form of fiction. Stripped of its fiction character, it remained an intelligent and carefully written treatise on the science of the mind.

"The Breaking Point" produced by Herbert Brenon for Paramount is a mystery drama packed with action. Nita Naldi, Patsy Ruth Miller, Matt Moore and George Fawcett being featured.

Moore plays the role of a reckless millionaire, Judson Clark, who is desperately in love with a popular actress, Beverly Carlyle (Nita Naldi). At Clark's Wyoming ranch, he and Beverly's husband quarrel; the lamp is overturned; a flash is seen in the dark, and the husband is found dead on the floor. Clark escapes into a snowstorm. He is found in a delirious condition by Dr. Livingstone who takes him to his home at Haverly, just outside of New York, and introduces him as his nephew.

Years go by, and the man becomes a successful physician. He becomes engaged to a young girl, Elizabeth Wheeler (Patsy Ruth Miller). One night at the theater he is recognized by Beverly Carlyle who faints upon the stage. From this point in the story, the old influences which he has forgotten begin once more to wind themselves around him. Scenes, of which he is the unconscious center, are formed by characters who see in his sudden reappearance a grave menace to their own safety and popularity.

The final clearing of the mystery forms a series of scenes which build to a dramatic climax.

In his overture presentation this week Conductor Risner offers "A Symphonette in Color." This number is an original treatise on the old theory of color as interpreted by the various tonal groups of a modern orchestra. Briefly, strings first, of course, violet, indigo, blue, respectively, represented by violins, violoncello, and double bass. Green, the many-sounded kinds of woodwind instruments; spring-bowed flute, deeper, yet softer clarinets with the somber depth of the bass-clarinet and the bassoon, the darkest tone, not to be surpassed in its shade. The brass is yellow, and if the horns suggest the pale yellow, the trombone takes the golden orange, and the red is left

"Black Oxen," at Alamo No. 2 Monday

"Black Oxen," a Frank Lloyd production, featuring Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle, is to be the offering at Alamo No. 2 starting Monday and the booking is looked upon as one of the biggest cinema events which has ever been presented at this popular playhouse.

The best selling novel of 1923 in book form, "Black Oxen" is said to have been greatly enhanced by the elaborate filming.

Corinne Griffith, regarded as one of the most beautiful and smartest dressed stars, essays the difficult dual character of Madame Zataianav, and Conway Tearle has been cast as the romanceless newspaper writer, Lee Clavering. Clara Bow, a 17-year-old girl who but recently made her screen debut, was selected for the role of the flapperish Janet Oglethorpe from more than fifty well known screen ingenues and established flapper types.

Miss Griffith wears more than $50,000 worth of fashionable furs and gowns during the production and the costuming of members of the supporting cast has cost nearly the same amount.

The balance of the players include such well known artists as Thomas Ricketts, Thomas S. Giese, Kate Lester, Lincoln Stedman, Claire McDowell, Alvin Hale, Carlissa Selwynne, Eric Mayne and others.

for the trumpets—a vivid scarlet at times. All this shading is brought out in Mr. Risner's arrangement of complicated passages bringing out the color of the various instruments and the offering closes with a brilliant finale resounding with a depth of combined colors in kaleidoscopic revelry. Mr. Risner has selected "Love Comes Calling" for the love motif of the feature picture.

Incident Lopez Juniors Jazz Orchestra will be held over at the Howard for a second week. A complete change of program will be offered by these talented boys featuring the very latest popular hits. The Lopez Juniors have made a big hit with Atlanta audiences during their first week here and the announcement of their staying over for a second week will be good news to many.

"Commencement Day," one of the Our Gang Comedies is the comedy.

Professor Kier, of Dartmouth college, while traveling recently, met John Baptist Ford, a negro Pullman porter, and was so impressed that he invited Ford to address students of the Truck School of Administration and Finance. Ford claims that many porters spend their time while passengers are sleeping in studying for better jobs. He also claims that 30 per cent of negro doctors are former Pullman porters.

'FOOLS' HIGHWAY' IS FEATURE AT RIALTO

Mary Philbin Is Star in This Story of the Old Bowery.

The old Bowery, with its quaint resorts that have gone down into romantic tradition; Chuck Connors, Philadelphia O'Brien and Steve Brodie, the man who took a chance and thundered down the years to fame; these all will live again in a gripping film romance, "Fools' Highway," first great Universal starring vehicle for Mary Philbin since her astounding success in "Merry-Go-Round." The new picture, a spectacular artistic nephew, are a remarkable pair. Edwin J. Brady, in the character role of Jackie Boodie, the stooge, has a good role. A dominating figure is Lincoln Plummer, and other noted players add to the list. Whitney Hubner, director of the Rialto orchestra, will offer a musical program to fit the picture, including such old-time favorites as "Sleazeballs of New York," "Ann Rooney," "Reuben, Reuben, I've Been Thinking," "The Bowery" and "Sweet Rosie O'Grady."

A snub Pollard comedy, "The Courtship of Miles Standish," and an International News reel also will be shown.

THE METROPOLITAN TO OFFER 'THE GOLD FISH'

Constance Talmadge Stars in Screen Version of Great Stage Success.

Five lovers, and five kinds of love. In "The Goldfish," her latest comedy, Constance Talmadge undergoes a barrage of love-making. As Jenny Wetherby, Constance has three hundred and two other swains who spend their time proposing marriage to her.

"The Goldfish," a First National picture, will be shown at the Metropolitan theater this week.

Her first and last husband-sweet-heart is Jimmy Wetherby, a Coney Island song plugger who eventually becomes a wealthy shoe manufacturer. This role is played by Jack Mulhall.

Her next husband is Herman Krauss, a round get with gold spectacles and hairbrush pompadour. When Herman is handed the fatal blow of goldfish which signifies that he is not wanted as a husband, husband No. 3, a wealthy manufacturer, succeeds in making a lady out of Jenny.

The other two would-be husbands are a Polish count and an English duke. With such an array of love-makers surrounding her Constance is in her element.

Constance's latest comedy, "The Goldfish," was directed by Jerome Storm with Jack Mulhall in the leading male role.

"The Goldfish" was adapted from the successful stage comedy of the same title by C. Gardner Sullivan. The supporting cast of "The Goldfish" consists of: besides Jack Mulhall, of Jean Herscholt, Za Su Vitt, Edward Connelly and William Conklin.

Comedy will run riot this week, for in addition to the feature, Mack Sennett's newest comedy, "Black Oxen," has been added to the program and several very attractive musical novelties will be presented.

An orchestral arrangement of Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody, made famous by every concert pianist in the known world, will open the program as an overture. Mr. Leide has composed this number especially for his orchestra and will conduct in person at every performance.

"When Lights Are Low," a waltz-ballad of irresistible swing, is played through the "Goldfish" as a love motive, and "On Such a Night," the star song in the new musical comedy, "Moonlight," is the theme offering for "Black Oxen."

A specialty number of considerable interest also appears on this week's musical program: it is a burlesque adaptation of the sextet from "Lucia," composed for slide trombone and orchestra by Harry Hughes, of the Metropolitan orchestra, who will also be the soloist in the presentation. The tips from the Literary Digest will be accompanied by "Shine," latest Broadway hit.

It is a photoplay of all photoplays, a masterpiece and a crowning triumph for a great actor. Irene Rich, Carmel Myers, Mary Astor, Alice Francis and a dozen others, players of note, are included in the supporting cast. No expense was spared in the production, whole streets of London being searched to get just the right thing in every detail to reproduce accurately and vividly the person and the life of "Beau Brummel."

Mosquitoes are found in all parts of the world.

BARRYMORE IN 'BEAU BRUMMEL' AT LOEW'S

Greatest Actor Plays Greatest Heart-Breaker of History at Grand.

John Barrymore as Beau Brummel is the super-feature offered for this week at Loew's Grand theater.

The photoplay "Beau Brummel" is the most recent of Warner Brothers' screen classics and during the month since its release has established its place as the greatest artistic achievement of the silver screen.

The tensely exciting, romantic, pathetic, comic phases of the life of the beau ideal of all time are enacted in a way that makes George Bryan Brummel seem actually to live and make love again.

No more suitable actor for the part of the beau could have been found in the world than John Barrymore, the incomparable Hamlet, the marvelous "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," the lion of stageloom on two continents, perhaps the most famous actor in the world today.

The exquisite refinement of the dandy who dominated the society of England when George III was prince of Wales, the intense passion of this conqueror of the wives of the most powerful nobles in the British Empire, the soul-searing pathos of the man whose intrigues and exploits all were in desperate effort to drown the memory of one honest love and to conceal a broken heart from the jibes of his fellows, is excellently portrayed by Barrymore.

George Bryan Brummel was a captain of the 10th Hussars when he first loved the beautiful Margery. When he saw her given into a loveless marriage with wealthy Lord Alvanley he plunged into the social excesses of the court, determined to wreak vengeance on the society that robbed him of his heart's desire, even though he could not forget the anguish of his loss.

Barrymore traces the rise to power of the beau with the finely intelligent acting that made him famous; makes one feel the bitter insolence of the disappointed man when at the zenith of his power he realizes that pleasure, the adulation of all the other women in the world, the idolization of all the dandies of the age, cannot compensate him for his loss. Barrymore carries his audiences through the gradual decline of the handsome face begins to line with care, as the perfect clothing begins to show traces of poverty, as the magnificent vest begins to bend under the strain of worry and disappointment, as the once proudest ere in all of England becomes vacant in a mad man's stare.

It is a photoplay of all photoplays, a masterpiece and a crowning triumph for a great actor. Irene Rich, Carmel Myers, Mary Astor, Alice Francis and a dozen others, players of note, are included in the supporting cast. No expense was spared in the production, whole streets of London being searched to get just the right thing in every detail to reproduce accurately and vividly the person and the life of "Beau Brummel."

LOEW BACKS 'BEAU' BY GOOD VAUDEVILLE

Jan Rubini, Concert Violinist, and Frank Lait Farce on Program.

Jan Rubini, incomparable concert violinist and composer, heads the all-star vaudeville bill at Loew's Grand this week which is to share honors with John Barrymore's superb version of "Beau Brummel," the Warner Brothers' classic photoplay which is to be shown here for the first time in America at popular prices.

Rubini's running mates in the racy vaudeville bill are Armand Kaliz's company of seven people in Jack Lait's latest musical farce hit, "The Honey Mooners," Frank "Peggy" Jones, the monoped wonder, and the Morton brothers' novelty act.

This young man, Jan Rubini, is something entirely out of the ordinary for vaudeville entertainment. He is a concert artist, known in every important concert hall in Europe and among musicians and music lovers of America for his own compositions and the photograph records he has made.

Rubini plays a delightfully varied program, with classics and familiar favorites included. His accompanist, Yvonne Marr, is quite well worth hearing herself.

Jack Lait's farces are pretty well known in Atlanta as they are known wherever people like real entertainment. He writes real plots with a smash to them with bubbling comedy to set off the harmonies he composes. The Kaliz organization of three men and four girls is good enough to extract the last touch of comedy excitement and melody out of the piece.

"Peggy" Jones is acknowledged as unique among all vaudeville performers of history. He has contrived an act of songs, stories and of one-legged dances that would seem to make his lack of the usual quota of legs a benefit rather than a handicap. One laugh after another is a sure accompaniment for his stunt.

Morton brothers bill their act as "Odd Moments" and cram as great a variety of amusement into it as any other pair of people who have trod the Loew's Grand boards. Comedy chatter, astonishing feats of paper tearing, jazz and classics on the harmonica are incidents.

John Barrymore is to be supported in his reincarnation of Beau Brummel by as great a cast as ever was rallied under one director's megaphone for a super-feature photoplay. Irene Rich, Mary Astor, Carmel Myers, Alec Francis are a few of them. This picture has been exhibited alone for "one dollar up" every other place it has shown since it was released by Warner Brothers last month. Loew's prices remain the same as usual.

Jeoffrie, at Keith's Forsyth Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

LYRIC OPENS MONDAY IN 'THE FIRST YEAR'

Frank Craven's Wholesome Comedy of Young Married Life Holds Interest.

"The First Year" is the play of the week at the Lyric theater, with Isabelle Lowe as Grace Livingston Tucker, the abused young bride; Wilfred Lytel as the disappointed and misunderstood young husband, and Anne Warrington, new character woman, as dear old Mrs. Livingston.

It is the same old play which Frank Craven wrote and played Tommy in for two rollicking years in New York, the play which put the gold in John L. Golden and became the apple of his producer's eye and the pet of all his flock of big successful and wholesome comedy dramas.

The Lyric players have the distinction of being the first stock organization in the world to produce the play, John L. Golden personally gave permission for them to use it because he wanted to be sure that it was entrusted to players who would maintain its prestige and justify his reputation as the funniest, most humanly pathetic, 100 per cent O. K. play of this generation.

Grace Weds Tommy. Tommy was in love with Grace. But a dozen or so others were, too, including Dick Loring, to be played by Rankin Mansfield. But Tommy had an indefinable something about him that made Grace willing to trust her life and her future in his willing hands.

Ma Livingston's heart was nearly broken by her daughter's resolve to build a home for herself, but like the good old American mother she was, she bore with her sorrow quietly. Pa Livingston—and Gus Forbes should be a perfect scream in the part—look to the love math more readily and gave his blessing freely. So did Uncle Myron, the country doctor, who is to be incarnated here by Will Lord.

The young couple strike out to a new town to build a love nest more perfect than that of anyone else in all the world. Everything goes fine for awhile, in spite of the gloomy expectations of Mrs. Barstow, Miss Lorraine Bernard's character for the week, and the dutiful agreement of her husband, Peter, to be portrayed here by Robert Smiley.

Then the little annoyances of married life, the things that outsiders can laugh at and that audiences from coast to coast, including Atlanta, all have laughed at until their sides ache, begin to fet the bride and groom. Life is not all one sweet song.

Even Hattie, the maid, played by Marion White, causes tears and trouble for the little wife.

She Goes Home to Mother.

Then she goes home to mother. Oh, what a tragedy for Grace and Tommy, and, oh, what a scream for the people across the footlights. Most of the people in the audiences will have a perfect right to laugh at Grace and Tommy. Most of them, all of them that are married, will have gone through just about the same sort of experience and have lived through it happily. They will feel entitled to laugh at the trouble those two charming young people have in solving the world-old problems.

Director Edwin Vall has arranged some stage settings that are just a living slice out of old-fashioned home life in the thousand small towns in this great land. The players have put more pep into rehearsal for this production, than for any other in weeks because it is so thoroughly enjoyable.

"Ladies Bargain Night," which opens the week Monday, is to mark up another packed house for the Lyric. Advance seat sales through Saturday night rang the bell just a little short of absolute capacity, leaving a few good seats for people who didn't know "The First Year" was there until today. The rest of the week should be equally as good as the first night.

RED-HEADS SEE NEW STAR FREE AT THE ATLANTA

First of all, you must be of the feminine persuasion, and above all, you must be red-headed.

And if you fill these requisites you are hereby cordially invited to attend, without charge, the Monday night performance of "Believe Me, Xantippe," to be staged by the Baldwin players at the Atlanta theater all this week.

It's to be a big "red head" party given in honor of the Baldwin players' new leading lady, Miss Gladys Hurlbut, who makes her debut in Atlanta Monday night.

And Miss Hurlbut, being herself of that envied type of auburn locks, she conceived the novel idea of having all of her natural blonde "sisters" as her guests to see her grace the classic boards for the first time here.

A large number of very choice seats have been set aside at the box office for those who accept Miss Hurlbut's glowing invitation. There'll be no back seats taken at her party, she avows.

All that's necessary for the golden-haired ladies to obtain their tickets is to clip the coupon appearing in the advertisement of the Atlanta theater in this paper.

And then armed with coupon and coiffure apply at the box office. And with the rip-roaring comedy that's the week's sensation bristling with laughs, in every line, Monday night's audience will be as light of heart as it is of head.

A NEW LEADING LADY FOR BALDWIN PLAYERS

"Believe Me, Xantippe" Is Week's Offering at the Atlanta.

Miss Gladys Hurlbut, Broadway favorite and actress of recognized ability, makes her bow to Atlanta audiences this week as the new leading lady of the Baldwin Players, and in "Believe Me, Xantippe," the fun bristling farce comedy that will be offered as the week's attraction, she finds excellent opportunity for expression of her high capabilities.

John B. Littel, the company's leading man, falls heir, of course, to the premier role, enacting that same character that New York saw graced by John Barrymore when the play made such a distinct hit along Broadway several seasons ago.

"Believe Me, Xantippe," the third of the Baldwin Players' presentations since the opening of its spring and summer season, is perhaps the best of their vehicles thus far. It provides a series of highly comical and exhilarating adventures and misadventures of a young man and his lady love, and in such parts Mr. Littel and Miss Hurlbut prove their worth.

Rehearsals have been going forward during the past week to the entire satisfaction of Director Walter B. Gilreath, he said Saturday, with the indication that every member of the company will have his part down by Monday night to the well-known gnat's-beel.

The story has to do with the aforementioned young man and a bet he lays—quite a sum of money—that he can elude the police for one year. The time has almost elapsed when he wanders into a hunting shack in Colorado, and there he is captured, not by armed posse nor snarling bloodhounds, but by the winsome and attractive daughter of the sheriff. The part of the sheriff's daughter was created by the famous Mary Young, one of the foremost comedienne of the American stage. And two others of great prominence in the original cast were Theodore Roberts and Henry Hull, both stars of much magnitude.

And, of course, Miss Hurlbut has been assigned the part of the fair young captor.

Romaine Callendar, who returned to Atlanta to join the Baldwin Players and made his first appearance in the play the past week, has another splendid characterization in "Believe Me, Xantippe."

Mr. Callendar is considered one of the foremost supporting actors on the American stage, and his addition to the forces of the Baldwin Players has strengthened the cast excellently.

A novel feature has been worked out for the Monday night's performance. Every woman whose hair is red will be admitted free of charge, for Miss Hurlbut's hair also is red, and she's giving sort of a "how-do-you-do" party. All that's necessary is to clip the coupon appearing in the advertisement in today's paper and present it at the box office.

The Paramount.
(For Colored Only.)

Thousands who have read A. S. M. Hutchinson's "If Winter Comes" and have heard that William Fox has produced a motion picture version of the great novel have wondered how the dramatic element could be extracted from such a conversational book, and presented on the screen. A highly impressive answer is supplied in the photoplay itself which has attained a height of dramatic power rarely achieved on the screen. "If Winter Comes" will be given its first showing at the Paramount theater Monday.

Two of the most powerful scenes in this screen masterpiece are the inquest on Effie Bright, the young girl whom Mark befriended and for whose death he is suspected, and Mark's meeting later with the hypocritical Twynning, who sought to fasten the crime on him.

Another Stirring Tale of Beasts and Battle and The Struggle for Existence in the African Wilderness.

He brought his iron jaws about the middle of another with a snap like a bear trap, and no part of that brute lived again.

HE shallow, slow moving waters were whipped to a dun opacity by the furious passage of unseen bodies. Only the violent waving of the floating water lilies, white, blue, and brilliant red in the dawn light, marked the twisting path of that hidden warfare. Abruptly a dozen monstrous heads broke the surface as in clamant rage the truculent hipotami bellowed and fought among themselves amidst a teeming reptilian life. With the electric finality common to all such episodes, their voices ceased upon a sudden interruption.

Through the green wall of towering papyrus reeds which fringed the river bank some great beast was making noisy way. Few in that desolate land so advertised their presence. A score of misshapen heads peered suspiciously landwards, their owners ready for instant flight or merciless attack. The steel stiff stems were parted with an ease which spoke of giant strength, and Uzito (That Mighty One) bulked huge upon the brink. Mighty indeed were the squat, slate black figures scattered upon the surface of the water, or frozen in intent attitude on the steaming mud flats, but mightier far was that huge bull whom they called master.

Weighing a trifle over three tons, as he stood there glaring at his henchmen, he was undoubtedly a fearsome sight. His partly open mouth disclosed his yellow tusks, each one of size appalling. The fiery light in his little eyes gave promise of no easy lordship. The trailing weeds which hung about his unwieldy body in sinuous green curves served but to emphasize the innate, untamed savagery of the animal. His was the kingdom and his the strength to keep it safe.

He swung his huge head from side to side, scanning the immediate surroundings for any signs of hidden danger. On his left rose the frowning ranges behind which the Congo forest lay like a shroud over the land; on his right, the mouth of the Victorian Nile.

As he stood there in all his pride of strength a monstrous crocodile, disturbed by his rough entry, plunged sullenly into the river at his side, and disappeared. Uzito watched its departure, meditating upon the need for action. Well he knew the danger to the young of the school represented by that 19 feet of armor-clad ferocity. But the saurian was an enemy that even he hesitated wantonly to attack. He made as if he had not seen it. Of human enemies he had no fear, for the banks of that river are barren of mankind because of the fly whose bite brings the torment which only ends in death.

Satisfied at length, Uzito plunged into the water, sank immediately from sight, and galloped at speed along the bottom towards his friends. Arrived, he hustled two or three of the younger bulls out of his way, and settled down beside his mate in the position in which he meant to pass the coming hours of burning sunshine. From above only the bulging top of his forehead was to be seen, the dome-like eye sockets and gaping nostrils.

One by one the remainder lowered themselves to a similar stance. They peered up into the mounting daylight, unmoving, like floating logs. Overhead the swarming bird life of the endless marshes swept by unceasingly. Great flocks of white egrets, clamorous, spur-winged plover, and sacred ibis, as well as the saddle-billed storks, the noisy purple ibis, and long-legged heron. Across and across the broad lily pads which moved no more than these giant creatures in their midst the curious long-toed lily trotters darted in search of food like fragments of many colored rainbows. This was a country at seeming peace, unworn of man, and changed only by the slow progress of the ages from time everlasting.

BUT grim dangers lurked on every hand. More than once as the slow hours passed a sinister shadow shape, at the apparent mercy of the shifting eddies, drifted near the school, and each time, unmoving Uzito watched its stealthy progress, marking its course to within a fraction of an inch. And each time the cruel, all seeing eyes of the sluggish crocodile, reckoning the appalling danger of Uzito's battering rush, sank softly from sight as a deflected pathway.

Not one instant of respite is known to him who in the wilds holds onerous position. Ever must he bear in full mind the terrors of the dry land no more and no less than the death which lurketh among the water plants.

Twice the fierce bearded face of an itinerant lion made ghostlike appearance at the water's edge in dangerous proximity to the younglings, and twice Uzito heaved round his great bulk in guardian scrutiny, and on both occasions the sight of that immobile watching from the waters brought safety.

As the sun wheeled to the western horizon, Uzito led his charges ashore. Strange relics of a long dead past they seemed as they climbed all dripping to the bank, and were swiftly lost to view in the hot green tunnels of the slender papyrus. Behind them the muddy waters slapped the slender stems as if balked of rightful prey, and underneath those obscuring waves was a great passing and repassing of evil, many toothed nightmare shapes, searching lest by some happy chance a tender calf might have delayed his departure.

Denied their horrid meal, the crocodiles settled down to await what chance or treacherous deceit might bring to them. The muffled bellowing of the hippopotami came to these sinister creatures, sunk in the primeval ooze, and at each harsh outbreak they burrowed deeper into the slime, but ever kept their eyes fixed on the beaten track by which the great beasts were wont to return. Theirs was an ill-omened patience.

Uzito led the way down that path trodden out by generations of their kind, through the yielding boglands, till the earth ceased to give under their enormous weight, till the solid ground appeared beneath them beaten down on each side by their numberless pilgrimages, whilst in the center uprose the distinctive, untrodden ridge like no other track made by denizen of land or river.

For nigh a mile they followed this primitive tramway, till the leader halted by a thick bed of succulent reeds. Here they spread out, and began to tear at the grasses, consuming them by truckfuls, the while darting suspicious glances to right and left. The matted undergrowth was the haunt of many strange and diverse animals.

At sound of that gargantuan feeding uprose a herd of some fifty buffalo, which stood at gaze for a moment, then lumbered off to some more secluded spot. Hot on their trail three lionesses cleared with huge bounds, snarling horribly at being thus disturbed. Time and again a situtunga, most shy and elusive of all antelope, shook the moisture from its shaggy coat as it stole fearfully away. Finally, a huge, square-mouthed rhinoceros, the so-called white rhino of men's desire, ripped a passage for itself through the hampering stems in ponderous bewilderment.

To none of these the hippo gave a second glance. They were themselves too dangerous for any to attack unless the attacker should be crazed with hunger; or so numerous and malignant, as the red and black driver ants be, that they recked nothing of death so that the hurrying millions of their rope-like swarms might feed in insatiable greed for flesh.

But with the speed of the tropic storms arose a quarrel amongst those dull witted animals. There was no real reason for it, but then a hippo never needs a reason for his incessant brawling. At one moment the only sound to be heard was the rhythmic swish and crash of those huge jaws, at the next the marshes rang with the voice of their anger. Bull fell bawling upon bull, and cow upon her sister. Even the youngsters squealed and hit at each other in imitation of their elders. The din was frightful, and the havoc wrought by the jagged teeth shocking to see. Uzito, bellowing like a giant fog horn, elbowed his way into the thick of the trouble, and sought to quell the disturbance by a more frightful display of truculence. But three of the disputants turned upon him, blind with their wrath, and for a moment it seemed as if even his incredible strength would go down before that concerted attack.

Now the rapidity of movement of which a hippopotamus is capable has to be seen to be believed, and Uzito was well versed in the tricky warfare of his kind. He became three enormous destroying engines at once. True, one assailant by a lucky snap, tore a strip from his shoulder some 3 inches deep and 16 broad; it was a flea bite to Uzito. It only served to increase his already furious temper. He turned on that one and nigh rent his life from his body with three cunning, well placed, shearing bites.

While yet the unfortunate staggered at the impact, Uzito whipped about and fairly overthrew a second by sheer iron strength of straining hind legs. He turned upon the last, mouth open in hideous grimace, and perceived there to be no need for further correction. Never was such a chastened animal as he was who now sought to efface his bulk among his brethren. The affair as far as he was concerned was closed. And at sight of their lord's anger the remainder also made haste to be about more peaceful avocations.

For a while the hum of the myriad insect life held undisputed sway. Then Uzito, foraging on the outskirts of the reed bed for a toothsome morsel, came upon that which was like to cause his death.

He did not know, and would not have cared if he had known, that those tiny white shapes hidden under a head of dead grass, which he crushed into the earth with one great foot, were the eggs of a venomous lightning swift cobra. He merely heard the long-drawn hiss like a flame makes as it licks up the brittle stubble. Then he saw the trembling spectacled hood upreared full in his path 3 feet above the swelling curves of the body.

Uzito paused, and for an instant of time those two stared at each other. On the one side a frankly puzzled interest, on the other a malignant, lidless examination. On the one hand of the mightiest of four-footed animals in all the world, on the other 7 feet of electric death with a body as slender as a young girl's ankle and a mouth whose caress spells eternity.

Even as Uzito slowly pondered the meaning of this sudden apparition, even as the hard-won knowledge of long dead ancestors warned him to let this thing be, the cobra twice ejected the contents of its poison glands full into the face which loomed above it.

The twin fragile streams of poison hung a moment on the air like fine spun threads, then, propelled over 4 feet of space with deadly accuracy, plunged full into the staring eyes. On the instant Uzito was blind, and on the instant the flames of hell lit up within his brain. He surged forward, and the cobra became a crumpled mess upon the earth; he surged sideways, and the noise of his torment filled all the earth. He turned and ran amuck. Hither and yon he plunged across the marshes, bellowing like one distraught.

More than once he tripped over the tough stems of the papyrus and the sight of his clumsy struggling was pathetic. Once he ran clear through the circle of his astonished followers, and they, believing it to be their duty, attempted to join his crazy circlings. Suddenly he stumbled over the upstanding ridge of the age-old trail and turned down it in clamorous distress. He took the water and the spray soared over the red tops at the shack. He took the water and at full speed charged the opposite bank in a burning darkness. He spun about, and, like some great battleship with steering gear deranged, curved to and fro across the river in baffled rage and agony.

One by one the remainder of the school, reaching the water's edge, dropped silently in. Most careful were they to avoid the hagridden bulk, most eager to deny all kinship, for very well they knew the inexorable law, and already the ghouls were ranging themselves on each side of the maddened monster.

They circled about him like evil shadows, wistful yet afraid to make an end. And as Uzito sensed that vile accompanying, his frantic passage became a nightmare jazzing. Once a great 20-foot body slid up beside and made a tentative slap at his unprotected flank. It was more in order to discover what liberties might be taken than definitely to do harm, yet the light touch of those razor sharp fangs tore Uzito as no other living agency could have tore him. He swerved at the pang, and the sheer dead weight of him spun the crocodile as if the huge creature had been but a children's toy. But as he turned to one side another foe swam in upon him and ripped and was away.

He broke water, and now his strident bellowing was tinged with the first fear. He, master of the endless marshes and lord of all that river, knew now his helplessness. With mouth wide open like the half of a great barrel above the surface, he tore from side to side, the foam creaming about his teeth. Again he sank and galloped along the bottom, and only the lily pads showed the direction of his flight, but ever the crocodiles followed in haste, and ever they grew more numerous. Now they closed in, almost unafraid, and now the muddy water was abruptly streaked with red.

IT WAS as Uzito rolled clear over in one terrific spasm that the first hint of returning sight came to him.

It was then that he noticed the pain to be abating, it was then that he determined to be avenged.

Even now it was a question whether he would be overwhelmed before the cooling waters should have washed the poison from his eyes. His assailants were jostling each other in a score of places, his life could almost be measured by minutes. With a giant heave of his massive body he won a brief respite and stormed beneath the surface towards the usual meeting place of his tribe. What he had in mind, he, Uzito, who had never asked another's help, it is not easy to say. Perhaps he had hoped that others would come out to his aid. If so, he was grievously misled.

At his violent approach they scattered on all sides. They left him utterly alone. But one, a cow with calf upon her back, looked even towards him, and she strangled the quixotic idea at birth. He who lives in the wilds must keep the laws, and the preservation of the young life is the paramount need. So his mate turned away, and Uzito, seeing now as through a thick veil, turned back upon his invisible tracks.

He met the ravening crew behind him and swam literally into their gaping jaws. They immediately became the most astonished crocodiles in all the Nile. To hunt down an unresisting meal is one thing; it is another when your lunch turns upon you with determination no whit inferior to your own and strength more ponderous.

Making a virtue was necessity, and knowing that their opportunity was almost gone, the saurians grappled Uzito actually from all sides. They hung upon him like bulldogs, and two Uzito stamped incontinently into the mud. Upon one he set his foot and the head and tail of him lived for a considerable time. He wallowed to the sunlight and brought his iron jaws about the middle of another with a snap like a bear trap, and no part of that brute lived again.

With nigh perfect sight restored, Uzito wove a circle about the remainder and drove in upon them, and they that remained alive made haste to depart.

Uzito did not pursue. He had other work to do before his rage would be appeased. But first he made his way towards the school and, lest any should think him now of no account, proceeded to exercise full authority. To and fro he chivvied the individual members of his suite, allowing them no rest. Bulls, cows, and calves he taught that the reign of Uzito was by no means at an end. He bore them no grudge for their desertion, but he was not minded to have another usurping his position.

For a long time the river resounded with the sound of their chastisement as that dark shape, which was their undisputed lord, and which yet left an ominous crimson wake, harried them without pause.

At length Uzito thought all was well. At length the sacred ibis felt it safe to return to his reedy perch and the lily rotter to his indefatigable pastime. The crescent of the dying moon shone livid through a thickening mist as Uzito swam contentedly to the scene of his latest and greatest victory. There he halted, plunged from view on a tour of inspection, and found the battered relics of his foes.

Night fell, the plumed papyrus whispering to itself along the banks; white and red and blue the floating water lilies covered the lagoons; here and there the lotus lifted its leaves and flowers stiffly above the surface. Hour after hour at regular intervals the ugly head of the Mighty One bobbed up above the surface as he danced his dreadful dance upon the bones of his would-be destroyers, and ever the great, strange river went twisting away into the fog-wreathed distance. AMY LOWELL
(Copyright, Paul Thompson.)

Here (meaning the left) is Ruth Hale, and there (meaning the right) is Amy Lowell. Ruth Hale is Mrs.—but no; she is wedded to the Lucy Stone league. Amy Lowell, free verse champion, once sat on the league (oratorically, of course). The league, however, is still flourishing.

By MRS. ANONYMOUS.

SOMEBODY has said you can get plenty of people to eat dinner with you in New York if you charge them five dollars. It is perfectly true that some people make a good easy living getting up functions.

You see there are always plenty of more or less well known people who need publicity, and who are willing to perform. Then there are always plenty of others who are willing to pay to see and hear them. Near-celebrities are very useful as fillers, and a number of them can be used, provided the program is disinfected with at least one or two real names.

Now there's always Irvin Cobb to fall back on. He is the greatest acceptor of invitations there is. He will promise to speak for anybody, anywhere, any time. If he doesn't show up, his name sounds well on the printed "literature" and it listens well over the telephone when other celebrities are being importuned. He gets the publicity, which is never to be despised, and so it breaks right all the way round.

The guests may be disappointed but there are some compensations, because they have already bought and read his latest book and enjoyed it, so there's no hard feelings. Yes, Irvin is very generous that way. It's a dull day indeed in New York when he is not announced to speak for some cause or other.

While a cause is the surest way to get a crowd, in the absence of a cause or of an organization it is still possible to make a neat profit if you have a loose, high-sounding name of some kind to hang the thing on. The word "club" is used in its widest, freest sense—if in any sense at all. If it is a luncheon club, the key word is "luncheon."

If operating on this plan the banqueteer must mail out "literature" to a list of names which may be purchased at so much per hundred from some banqueteer who has amassed a fortune and retired from active business. All first-class hotels also furnish these lists confidentially to reputable people.

THERE'S only one cause I know of for which it seems to be difficult to get celebrated speakers, because nobody seems passionately for Now what a lot of trouble would have been avoided if the serpent had only addressed Eve as "Mrs. Adam." The question would have been settled there once and for all. But alas, the serpent, being as wise as he is supposed to be, left it to the state department and as a result Eve is now leaving no Lucy Stone unturned to right the wrong.

To insure success then, it is only necessary to arrange for a two or three dollar luncheon or dinner and add a couple of dollars to the price of the tickets. That's what you live on—that extra two dollars a head.

or passionately against it. That's the Lucy Stone league. This league has a large membership, including Ethel Barrymore and a number of very celebrated women. The passionate, burning object concerning which the flames of opposition are supposed to rage is "to encourage women to keep their own names after marriage."

Personally, I could never get up any steam on this thing for the simple reason that women can do it anyway if they want to. We don't have to get a law passed or get a law repealed or anything. All in the wide world we've got to do is to do it. If only some one would say we couldn't! But they just won't. For that reason the cause is a little thin, but there are always five hundred people at their banquets and we all dearly love to go. The members include not only women with husbands but those who have only husbandly hopes.

Ruth Hale is president and she is the wife of Heywood Broun. This latter fact she simply will not have flaunted in her face. "My life is my own!" Ruth says fervently. "No one has a right to re-label me." And Heywood applauds with the rest of the five hundred. She just won't wear the Heywood Broun tag. Really, Heywood is very decent about it. He says the advantage of having a fifty-fifty wife is that you know she stays with you, she stays because she likes you, and not for a meal-ticket.

I felt sorry for Ruth the other night. She asked Amy Lowell to be guest of honor and chief speaker at a league banquet and after some long-distance conversations Amy said she would, under certain conditions. Ruth explained that she always liked to have debates at the annual dinners. As a matter of fact Ruth and the rest of the Lucy Stoners are dying to argue about it but no one will argue. The people who attend the dinners are divided into two classes—the oppressed leaguers and those who are married to them, and the regular banqueteers or five-dollar-a-platers. You see this is a very high-power organization and the dinner always attracts real people.

It all started—I mean the Lucy Stone league and its cause—when Ethel Barrymore and Ruth Hale applied for passports to go to Europe just after the war. The state department said the passports must be issued in the married names. Ruth and Ethel rebelled. The state department was adamant. Ruth and Ethel said "we'll stay at home first," and stay at home they did. It is said that towards the end the state department did loosen up and offer to issue the

Princess Mafalda's Distressing

ACCORDING to the gossip that fills Europe and is filtering across the Atlantic by mail and cable and word of mouth, it would be hard to find any unhappier little royal princess than Mafalda, the second daughter of the king and queen of Italy. Mafalda's unhappiness, according to what seem to be well founded rumors, is all due to the fact that, much to her distaste, she forms the corner of a love triangle.

Prince Leopold, duke of Brabant and heir to the throne of Belgium, has for a long time been eager to strengthen his nation's position and increase his personal happiness by winning Mafalda for his bride.

More recently Prince Nicholas, the dashing young future king of Rumania, has become an ardent suitor for her heart and hand.

A situation of this kind would be more pleasing than troublesome to the average girl. After a pleasant period of flirtation with the two rivals for her love she would marry one of them, wish the other godspeed and forget that there ever was such a thing as a love triangle.

This is said to be exactly what Princess Mafalda would like to do—provided Prince Nicholas could be the man with whom she would walk to the marriage altar and the crown prince of Belgium the one whom she would bid good and seek another bride.

But thus far she has been unable to do anything of the kind, and it is a question if she ever will. Both her parents and the matchmaking diplomats of Italy are said to think it will be far more to her country's interests if she marries the crown prince of Belgium than if she becomes the wife of Prince Nicholas.

The blame for the unwillingness of the Italian princess to marry the heir to the Belgian throne cannot be thrown entirely on the shoulders of the Rumanian crown prince. Long before Wants Crown Prince Nicholas of Rumania For a Husband, but Italy's Matchmakers Insist That She Marry the Young Duke of Brabant, Heir to the Belgian Throne.

Crown Prince Nicholas in the uniform of a midshipman of the British navy in which he began a term of enlistment a year ago.

Prince Leopold, Duke of Brabant and future King of the Belgians, with his only sister, Princess Marie Jose she fell in love with him she had expressed in no uncertain terms her distaste for a marriage with Prince Leopold.

The plan to link the destinies of Italy and Belgium through the marriage of Mafalda and Leopold was originated some two years ago—before Mafalda was old enough to be thinking of love.

It is said to have been suggested in the first place by Italy's statesmen and it met with a favorable response as soon as it was mentioned to the wise heads that direct the diplomacy of Belgium. The cabinet ministers of both nations thought it would be an excellent idea if the two thrones could be united by the ties of marriage.

Prince Leopold was delighted with the proposed match. He had seen Mafalda a number of times and had been captivated by her winsome, dark beauty. He could think of no other girl he preferred for a wife.

But nobody seems to have taken the trouble to ascertain Mafalda's feelings on the subject until the engagement was on the point of being officially announced. Then the matchmakers found, to their great surprise, not only that the princess did not care at all for Leopold but that she was bound and determined she would never marry him.

WAS there another young man in the case? Oh, no, Mafalda assured her inquisitors. It was only that Prince Leopold, brave and cultured and good looking as he is, did not appeal to her.

When she thought of him as a husband she felt that she did not care about marrying at all. She said she preferred remaining single and having for her companion as long as she lived her beloved little sister, Giovanna.

After long and vain arguments with the girl, her parents and the statesmen are said to have decided that her prejudice was only a childish whim. They determined to go right ahead with their plans for announcing the betrothal of the two young people. When they considered what a desirable husband Prince Leopold was sure to make Mafalda they seemed to have no compunctions about driving the princess into a marriage against her will.

Then suddenly, just when Mafalda seemed in perfect health, she was taken dangerously ill. A few hours later Giovanna took to her bed, suffering from an illness that showed the same alarming symptoms as her sister's. For several days the lives of the girls were despaired of.

The official court announcements declared that the royal daughters were the victims of severe attacks of typhoid fever. But the gossip of Europe had it that they were suffering from self-administered doses of poison—that they had attempted suicide.

From one end of the continent to the other it was whispered that high-spirited young Mafalda had preferred death to a marriage that awoke not the slightest response in her heart. It was said that she and her devoted sister had taken doses of a drug that would have been quickly fatal to any less youthful and strong vitalities.

While the girls lingered at the point of death and during their long, painful convalescence there was a cessation of the plans for Mafalda's marriage to Leopold, but as soon as the royal daughters were up and about again they were resumed more actively than ever.

JUST when the announcement of the engagement seemed imminent Mafalda and Prince Nicholas became acquainted and fell in love, it is said, almost in the flash of an eye.

It was the girl's first love affair and she was quite carried away by her admiration and affection for the dashing young Rumanian. The fact that he was educated in England and that he enlisted as a midshipman in the British navy pleased her particularly, for she is a great admirer of the English.

In her innocent girlhood she seems never to have dreamed that any young man could be quite so appealing to a girl. He is as good looking as the Belgium prince, and infinitely livelier—far better suited, the gossips say Mafalda thinks, to her gay Latin temperament.

It is reported that Prince Nicholas asked Mafalda to marry him within Until Prince Nicholas leaped into the romantic plot it seemed almost certain that Mafalda would eventually have to yield to the wishes of her parents and the far-seeing statesmen of her nation. But now the contest has ceased to be so disadvantageous to the princess.

Instead of having to wage her battle almost single-handed, she has the active support not only of Prince Nicholas but also of his royal mother.

BEAUTIFUL and brilliant Queen Marie of Rumania is known as the greatest matchmaker in Europe. If she cannot devise a way of thwarting Italy's plans for marrying Princess Mafalda against her will it is thought that no one can.

The successful international marriages the queen already has achieved for a number of her children encourage her to believe that by similar alliances she can make Rumania one of the great powers of Europe. And she is said to think that nothing would serve her ambitions better than to have Princess Mafalda for a daughter-in-law.

Many observers of this triangle are inclined to divide their sympathies between Princess Mafalda and Prince Leopold. The latter is certainly a rather pathetic figure in this international game of hearts.

He is as praiseworthy a royal prince as there is to be found in all Europe, and it is believed that he is very much in love with little Mafalda. There is absolutely nothing against him as a husband for her—except the fact that she never cared in the least for him and that now she is deeply in love with another.

Which will win—Mafalda or her ambitious parents and the statesmen? And if she proves the victor what will become of unhappy Prince Leopold.

Until her life begun to be shadowed by the effort to force her into a marriage her heart is turned against Princess Mafalda was an unusually gay and carefree girl.

In disposition she differs much from both her mother, Queen Helena, and her elder sister, Princess Yolanda. They, as is well known, much prefer staying quietly at home in the Quirinal to going to the theater or any other place of amusement.

But Princess Mafalda is fond of society and art and attends the best concerts, operas and dramatic performances of every kind just as often as a few hours of their first meeting, and that she is determined to do so, in spite of everything her parents and the diplomatic matchmakers can say or do.

But apparently the plans to unite the royal houses of Italy and Belgium by marriage have not yet collapsed. From semi-official sources there come frequent reports that the engagements of Prince Leopold and Princess Mafalda is soon to be announced.

The matchmakers die hard when there are such tremendous diplomatic prizes at stake. They would not let their plans be thwarted by Mafalda's gruesome gamble with death, and now they seem determined to continue to press them, even though the princess is in love with another man.

Which will triumph, the ambitions of statecraft or the yearnings of a girl's heart? That is a question which intrigues Europe's gossips more than any other has in a long time.

Princess Mafalda, the unhappiest little royal daughter in Europe because her young heart is not being allowed to have its own sweet way in love she can. In this she resembles her paternal grandmother, the beautiful Queen Margherita.

She possesses in a very high degree the sense of her princely mission. No one deserves more than she that popularity which Queen Margherita acquired in Italy and abroad.

And if she succeeds in marrying the man of her choice without doing irreparable damage to her nation's ambitions she will have a warmer place than ever in the hearts of her people.

Who Is the Bible's Most Appealing

ALL the women who play such prominent parts in the pages of the Old and the New Testament, which make the strongest appeal to the heart and minds of the modern world?

Which of these figures, some heroic or saintly, some weak or sinful, and some only pathetic in their misfortunes would Bible readers be most glad to know more about?

In England not long ago an interesting attempt was made to answer these questions by having the members of several large church congregations name in the order of their preference the 10 women of the Bible who appealed to them most strongly.

When the votes were counted it was found, just as everybody would have heroines. All are outstanding figures in Old or New Testament history, all are distinguished by the most admirable qualities of heart and mind. Probably the greater part of these would be included in any similar list prepared by almost any Bible reader.

What was really surprising was the fact that many of the women who, while not receiving enough votes to include them in the first 10, still received a quite extraordinary amount of support, were those whose influence is generally thought to have been profoundly evil.

Jezebel, Athaliah and Delilah and even Herodias, the wife of Herod and mother of Salome, all had their champions who thought that one or more of them deserved a place along with their more virtuous sisters.

"Jezebel was an evil woman," wrote one woman in explaining why she gave the notorious Old Testament queen the tenth place on her ballot. "Of that there can be no question.

"Yet her bad qualities were mingled with so many good ones that to me she is one of the most appealing women in the whole Bible and one I am always wishing I might know more about.

"When I read the story of her career I am profoundly impressed with the keenness of her intellect, the strength of her will and the boundlessness of her ambitions. What a woman she would have been, what great good she could have accomplished for her husband and his subjects if she had had the character to turn her abilities in the right direction!"

STILL more surprising than the amount of support given women of supposedly bad character were the number of votes received by a number of the most obscure women in Biblical history—women who receive only a few words of mention in the Bible's pages and then vanish completely from the record of events.

narratives. Yet many of the readers who took part in the English voting contest find her more appealing than many women whose lives and achievements are described in great length.

In the eighth chapter of the Gospel according to St. Luke, we read:

And, behold, there came a man named Jairus, and he was a ruler who had a daughter, or any other woman, I heard, felt, and it expected, that Mary, the mother of Jesus, stood first in the opinions of an overwhelming majority of the men and women polled. Next to her came Mary Magdalene, that devoted follower of the Saviour whose life is made all the more appealing by the mystery that surrounds it.

And then in the order named came Esther, the great queen of the Jews; fearless and self-sacrificing Ruth, the Gentile; Anna, the aged prophetess; Miriam, the leader of the Hebrew women; Priscilla, the co-worker of Paul; the noble Dorcas, also known as Tabitha; Judith, the patriot of Bethulia, and Abigail, the heroic wife of David.

There was nothing at all surprising in this list of 10 women who were voted the most appealing of the Bible's

John, and the father and the mother of the maiden.

And all wept, and bewailed her: but He said: Weep not; she is not dead, but sleepeth.

And they laughed Him to scorn knowing that she was dead.

And He put them all out, and took her by the hand, and called, saying: Maid, arise.

And her spirit came again, and she arose straightway: and he commanded to give her meat.

And her parents were astonished: but He charged them that they should tell no man what was done.

"The Meeting of Jacob and Rachel," from the painting by William Dyce, the noted English artist arise," are often carved over hospitals or homes for the resurrection of "dead souls."

Another is that her snatching from death's door has inspired some of the many paintings which have taken their theme from incidents in the Saviour's earthly career.

It has been suggested by some students of New Testament history that the daughter of Jairus was only in a state of coma, but many others think that any such idea is a plain evasion of the facts so vividly narrated in the Gospels.

The feeling which inspired many English Bible readers to include as obscure a figure as Judith's maid among the 10 most appealing heroines of Biblical history is shared by a distinguished American woman writer, Anne Marble.

"In admiration for Judith, the patriot of Bethulia," says Miss Marble in her "Women of the Bible," "one would not forget the faithful service of her maid.

"Not alone was she the companion and guardian of her mistress, but she was the bearer, back to Bethulia, of the severed head of the great captain, Holofernes, hidden in her bag of food but never absent from her frightened yet self-controlled mind."

Judith has been one of the most idealized women of Hebrew history or tradition, and now many students are beginning to think that her devoted maid deserves to share the praise which is heaped on her.

For three years before her memorable visit to Holofernes' camp, Judith had been a widow, living in retirement in a tent on top of her house, wearing sackcloth and fasting except on Sabbath eves, Sabbaths and festival days.

In addition to being beautiful and wealthy she was a very gentle woman and firm of character. We are told that "there was none that gave her an ill word; for she feared God greatly."

When Judith's country was menaced by Holofernes she boldly went to his camp, sought an interview with him and told him extravagant stories about her people and her allegiance to his king.

"Holofernes was enthralled with Judith's beauty," says Miss Marble, "but he spared her from attack. She and her maid remained close to his camp, refusing his food because she had brought her own but, on the last night, venturing to remain with Holofernes and to encourage him to feast and drink.

"The hour for action came and 'the scimitar passed through his neck.' With the head of Holofernes in her maid's bag, Judith returned to Bethulia, which was now safe from the disorganized, panic-stricken camp of the enemy.

"According to the final chapter of this tale of Judith, she gave the directions to Ozias and the leaders for the conquest of the camp of Asshur, after the death of Holofernes. With typical custom, 'the people plundered the camp for the space of thirty days; and they gave to Judith the tent of Holofernes, his silver cups and his furniture.

"The women of her city 'blessed her,' and made for her garlands of olive and had branches in their hands, and Judith 'led all the women in the dance; the men in armor, sang also."

But would Judith have been able of Jesus at the bedside of the twelve-year-old daughter of Jairus, a ruler of the synagogue. This miraculously saved from death when He took her by the hand and said, "Maid, arise"

While He yet spake, there cometh one from the ruler of the synagogue's house, saying to him, Thy daughter is dead; trouble not the Master.

But when Jesus heard it, he answered him, saying: Fear not; believe only, and she shall be made whole.

And when He came into the house, he suffered no man to go in, save Peter, and James, and

THAT is the beginning and the end of the story of the daughter of Jairus. The New Testament has nothing more to say about her. We do not know what her future was or whether she became one of Jesus' faithful followers. But these are things the world wishes it might know.

One reason why her story has impressed itself so indelibly on humanity's heart probably is the fact that the words Jesus spoke to her: "Maid,

CHAPTER XVII.

HE few weeks which elapsed before Brunel staged his new revue at the Joyeuse were, for Elise, filled with swift events, the swiftest her life had ever known; so swift that she almost forgot the doom which hung over her head, and the fact that each fleeting day drew her nearer to that goal to which even the paths of glory lead.

Brunel adhered religiously to the financial stipulations in the contract, for he was one of those large men to whom expense is no object once he has decided on a thing, and Elise found herself—though it was but the retaining fee—in receipt of a salary which at one time would have exceeded her wildest dreams.

Within the fortnight she had decided that Marthe must leave Paris. There were several reasons contributory to this decision, and among them were a desire that Marthe should live among more congenial surroundings, and a fear that Marthe might discover too much were she to stay on in the capital indefinitely.

She suggested to Marthe that the Picardy coast was particularly pleasant during the summer time, and Marthe, tired of the garret, its airlessness and its heat, its drab dinginess, and its atmosphere of despair, eagerly assented to the change, especially when Elise was able to arrange that she should have the company of the grandmotherly old woman who had occasionally tended her, and who, being alone in the world and in straightened circumstances, was more than pleased at the prospect.

So a little cottage was rented outside one of the smaller north coast resorts, and thither Marthe and the old woman were transported, Elise superintending the whole affair, and conducting it with that new-found aplomb which had come to her so swiftly after her momentous decision was once taken.

Her practicing and rehearsals now went on without interruption. She was allowed to use the Joyeuse for the perfecting of her dances, and she invented and staged four, two of which were to be selected by Brunel when the great full-dress rehearsal arrived, and her part in the show allotted to her.

The rehearsal came at last. It was in an afternoon—for the mornings were devoted to the production of the rest of the revue—and Brunel alone sat in the stalls and watched her, while the orchestra played for her the music the famous composer had written in consultation with herself.

Brunel said very little. She had never before seen him judging performance, and his attitude frightened her—it seemed so cold and uninterested, condemnatory rather than approving, destructively critical.

When it was finished he came up on to the stage.

"There are alterations I want," he said. "Come into my office when you've dressed."

She went. He was smiling, and, with the door closed, he held out both hands to her.

"La Phalene!" he said gently. "I salute you!" And kissed both her hands.

She was excited, tremulously so, for she knew she had at least won his approval. He retained his grip of her fingers and drew her towards him.

His face was bent over hers and his eyes looked into hers.

"There are some things we must discuss," he said quietly. "Things connected with your dance. One of the dresses is, in my opinion, wrong, and one of your girls in that valley dance is not well chosen. But for the rest—the contract stands, and from now you receive your salary—little girl."

She tried to smile, though her heart was tumbling with fright; for in his eyes was that look she had seen when he put his proposal before her, that hint of the beast, lurking in their far shadows. This was the hour when he was fulfilling his bond. Was it the hour when he would expect her to fulfill that part of her bond which, though unspoken, he understood to have been sealed and signed?

His fingers gripped hers closer.

"Little girl," he repeated; and "My little girl. Mine . . ."

He kissed her hair where it dropped over her forehead.

She stood back while, with his tenderness gone, he spoke briskly, watching her covertly.

"We must remember that there is yet work to do—lots of work—and that afterwards can come the leisure. Now today you dine with me. No! There will be no refusal. For the rest of the afternoon I am busy with various people, and tonight I must be at the Internationale. So over dinner we can discuss our little changes and set all the things to rights. The Cafe de Paris. I will reserve a table, and will call for you soon after seven."

SHE could not protest, for the proposition was perfectly reasonable and, having bid him goodbye, she left him.

So she had succeeded. Brunel was to make her a dancer.

She was throbbing with excitement, and under the excitement was an ache so dreadful that it threatened to break her heart and her spirit.

"Marthe will be saved! Marthe will be saved!" She repeated it again and again.

And as she repeated it she thought of Kendrick.

Surely he must come back to Paris one day! Suppose he came and found her as La Phalene! Suppose he came back to seek her—discovered her—and learned that he had lost her and that she had lost him!

Yet—that would not be. He had forgotten. He must have forgotten. For men forget so easily. It is only the woman who remembers, and the memory sometimes bears her down to destruction.

She went back to her little suite of rooms near the Opera, and there she found a visitor awaiting her, a visitor who her rather uneasy maid informed her had insisted on waiting no matter how long it might be before she returned.

The visitor was Dr. Lapiere.

CHAPTER XVIII.

When she saw him, dressed more carefully than usual, sitting in the little drawing room, with its tasteful furnishings, Elise realized that, in imagining the closing of her old room above the Rue Jacques to be the severance of the tie in her old life, she had been wrong. For this man was the last—this man who had pronounced the doom upon her—this man whose love for her showed in his face as he got to his feet to greet her on her entry.

"Elise," he said, and was silent.

She invited him to sit. "I am ever so glad to see you, doctor. You know Marthe has gone away to the sea?"

"Yes. I went round and heard it from Froquin, the concierge. It was he who gave me your address. Elise! What are you doing with yourself?"

"I! I have become a dancer." She strove desperately to be lightly indifferent to the accusation in his gaze.

"For Brunel?" he asked quietly.

"For Brunel."

"Ah!" It was a long indrawing of breath. He still watched her steadily and accusingly. "I know about Brunel—all Paris knows about him."

"What Paris knows doesn't interest me, doctor."

He was silent a space. "Elise! You have changed—changed even in that short time. You are harder and—and—how can I express it? Different."

Some of the dreadful bitterness which she tried to cloak showed itself for a moment.

"One must change when one faces death for a long time, knowing that at the last death must win."

He broke in. "I am sorry, truly sorry. Forgive me. But I am agitated—you understand. I love you still, Elise, and now I am losing you altogether, losing what short time I might have seen you and have stayed with you. You are going from me—and—Elise—it just fills my heart and my thoughts. There is nothing else in life for me—nothing at all. As I walk, as I ride, all the street noises seem to say, 'She is gone. She is gone!' All the world is full of it, for me; and full of the memory of you, as I shall always know you, very sweet, without this hardness, this businesslike attitude—just you, whom I learned to love when you had nothing but your beauty and your grace—just you! My dear—my dear—"

HIS eyes were streaming, and his whitened face, thrust forward, was filled with a light which transfigured it, made it younger, stripped all the years from it, and showed it as something urgently youthful and appealing. One of his hands was out-held towards her, trembling.

She uttered a little sound, like a moan of pain.

"Doctor!"

She could have fallen at his feet and sobbed out all the secrets of her heart, all the horrid tortures she endured beneath the surface of that hardness he disliked, all the terrors which afflicted her in her lonely moments, through the long night watches and the silence of the darkness.

He sat back, recovering his self-possession by a tremendous effort of will.

"Forgive me," he muttered. "Forgive me. I shouldn't have come. I knew it would but make the load heavier; yet I felt I could not stay away, I could not leave without once more gazing on your face and hearing your voice."

"Leave?" she repeated.

"Yes, Elise. I have, in these past weeks, sold my practice, and I am going away from Paris. I don't think I shall ever come back to it."

"But—doctor! You will work somewhere else? You will get another practice? You are not—finishing?"

He shook his head. "I shall practice medicine no more. Through it I have killed the thing I loved most in all the world, and I dare not touch it again. Dare not! Do you know, Elise, from that moment when you walked from my consulting room I ceased to work? It was for me the end just as it was for you. Only—" He stopped, evidently finding no words to say in explanation.

"What will you do?" she asked, in a low voice, for she knew that even with the proceeds from the sale of his meager practice he would not have sufficient to sustain him for the rest of his life.

He answered her in just the words she had used to him when he pronounced sentence on her.

"God knows." Then, with a little flash of eager hope: "Elise! Would nothing persuade you to abandon this career to which you have set your hand? Nothing at all?"

"Nothing can, doctor. I have signed a contract and you have received money on account of it. Brunel has spent already considerable sums upon me. I cannot withdraw. And—anyhow—what does it matter? I am committed altogether, and must go through. Besides—it will ensure Marthe's safety and perhaps Marthe's recovery."

CHAPTER XIX.

Lapierre stood up. He seemed suddenly to have lost all his emotion and have become very definite. Indeed, the swift changes in him, that had been apparent ever since his declaration of love to Elise, were never more completely exemplified than in those few moments.

"I see," he said. "That is your final decision, you will go on this path you have chosen—this path which can lead to but one end—so that Marthe may be happy?"

"I must, doctor. And—what does it matter about me? I shall die. So there is nothing for me. It would be wrong of me to have a chance to save Marthe, and to let it slip for the sake of a little sacrifice." She was on her feet, facing him. "Doctor! You have attended Marthe for so long. I intend no insult—but—with the attention of the most skilled specialists, would there be a chance for her?"

His old professional attitude dropped on him like a well-worn and accustomed cloak.

"There is a chance. It is a perfectly legitimate question. I am but a general practitioner. Yes. There is a chance. It would mean the risking of several thousands of francs in specialists' fees and operations—but the chance might come off. I will advise you as to the man you should consult." He mentioned a famous name and Elise made a mental note of it. "If he fails—then you can reckon the case is hopeless. But it is more than possible that he would succeed. Only his fees are very high."

"I will pay them," said Elise. "If I could give Marthe back her life—why, mine would be well lost, I think; for she has suffered much."

HE WAS a professional no longer, but just pitiful and pitying.

"That is wonderful of you," he said. "Wonderful. Almost it makes me—" He checked, irresolute, with a great bitterness in his eyes. "But no—I do not count—now. I am no longer wanted. I will go."

"Doctor—not like that." She held out her hand.

But he did not heed it, for he had turned to the door and opened it, going from her quickly like a man fleeing from temptation.

He puzzled her, and rather bewildered her. His changes of attitude were like the shifting surface of a pool under the touch of a breeze. Yet it was probably all due to his love for her and its hopelessness. She could not help but pity him.

She heard the outer door slam after him, and sat down to think.

This was the end of her old life at last. Everybody was gone—Marthe away on the coast; Dr. Lapierre stepping through her door into the unknown, perhaps never to be seen again; Kendrick—God alone knew where Kendrick was or if he would ever return to her, or if ever she would see him.

With her own hands she had severed all the bonds one by one. Of her own will she had guided her feet into the paths of this new brilliant life which Brunel was planning for her.

There could be no turning back now. She must go forward and ever forward, playing the game, smiling into the face of fate and the world, to meet death at the end, conscious of the fact that she had done what she thought was best, and done it bravely and to the utmost of her ability.

There could be no turning back.

She dropped to her knees and prayed.

The room was silent and close.

CHAPTER XX.

Brunel, once the contract was un-faintly accomplished, and he was satisfied that Elise would fulfill all his expectations, began to boom her as only he, of all the entrepreneurs in France, was capable of booming anyone on whom the manna of his favor had descended.

It started on a low note, crescendoing to shrillness.

At last her name appeared—La Phalene—and with it was a hint of mystery.

Who was this beautiful woman who called herself the moth, and nothing else, whose origin was hidden behind an inscrutable veil, whose real name was withheld?

Soon all Paris was talking of her and of the new revue. The first night seats were sold right out. Everybody wanted to see the new dancer, of whose beauty and cleverness such wonderful tales were told.

Her dances had been fitted into the show, and they formed an integral part of it. She worked harder than ever, and Brunel, apart from a few sure criticisms here and there, found nothing but praise for her.

They were feverish days for Elise, feverish in their strain and in their excitement. She read her new name wherever she went, on the boardings, in the journals, everywhere. She heard it on the lips of the people who sat about her when she lunched or dined with Brunel, as she now did often. And all the time she worked and worked, trying to smother and still that voice which repeated to her that every day was one cut off from those 365 which Lapierre had given her.

It came at last—the premiere—came on the evening of a hot, sunny day when Paris basked in the warmth.

Elise went down to the theater in a closed car, and was taken direct to her dressing room, guarded against any intrusion by Brunel's special instructions.

It was her chance. She stood on the brink of vast success or utter failure. It was her chance.

That time during which Elise waited in her dressing room for her call was the longest period of dreadful suspense she had ever known. A hundred doubts and a hundred fears filled her. Brunel had all along emphasized that she should dance just as she had danced to him and the empty theater, that she should forget the multitude of people sitting beyond the footlights, and imagine that only he was watching her. That had all sounded easy until this night, but now it was beyond the bounds of possibility. She must remember the audience, she must acknowledge its presence.

She was to appear twice, once in each part of the revue. Her first appearance, just before the interval, was to be short, a light fantastic dance with plenty of movement, which, as Brunel said, would help to acclimatize her. On her second appearance she was to be present the piece de resistance of her performance—a dance scene of her own invention, which she had entitled "The Valley of Hope Forgotten," and which had been inspired by her own circumstances. Regarding this, Brunel had said very little, but it was significant that it was the one thing he had not attempted to alter, and the first he had chosen for presentation to the public.

The first bars of music from the orchestra crept up to her. The show had started.

She sat listening, afraid as though all the piece was hers and her very life was staked on it. The first burst of applause was like a breath of hope. It went on. The applause was frequent and continuous. She heard the laughter from the packed seats.

Brunel came into the room.

"It's getting them," he said quietly. "You are on in five minutes. Come down with me and look at the people."

She went with him to the wings, and while the two famous comedians talked humorous nonsenses, she peeped out across the footlights to the auditorium. Except for the little colored lamps strung between the tree trunks at the sides of the stalls and across the promenoir, the lights were all dimmed, so that the place seemed to sweep away into a vast immensity, dotted with white shirt-fronts, kissed here and there with the gleam of jewels, heavy with a rustling silence, which now and again was broken by quick, spontaneous laughter as one of the performers made a hit.

To Elise it seemed electric, surcharged with a tension which existed only in her imagination, but which, nevertheless, was real enough to her, and for a little while, as she gazed, she felt that she would never have the courage to walk past the shelter of the wings into the full glare of the arcs.

Brunel was apparently very cool. Actually he was tremendously excited, for the show was going with a bang, and, despite his great experience, first nights—and successful first nights particularly—always stirred him. But for Elise's sake he displayed none of his emotion, and treated the whole affair with an admirably assumed indifference which made an impression on her.

THE comedians finished—the curtain dropped—the orchestra struck up again. It was her music—hers!

She gathered herself. Brunel said gently: "Just dance. Only that. Dance—with all yourself."

She was on the stage almost before she realized it, for so thorough and constant had been her rehearsals that she went forward mechanically at the call of the music.

CHAPTER XXI.

She had always imagined that once on she might forget the audience and think only of the dance; but in this she found she was wrong. The audience, quiet, watching, woven by her imagination into one great living creature, ready to acclaim or destroy, according to its whim, dominated her thoughts entirely. But, curiously enough, it did not frighten her now that she fronted it. Rather did it intrigue her. She wanted to see what she could do with it, whether she could sway it to her will, catch the fancy, please it.

The dance ended in what seemed an incredibly short space of time, and immediately came an outburst of applause. She withdrew, bowing and smiling, while yet they clapped.

Brunel himself threw her cloak about her shoulders.

"That was good. You pleased them." She went up to her dressing room.

She went down for her second dance in a different frame of mind. The applause which had greeted the little fragment she had offered had steadied her and given her confidence, though she knew that this second appearance was the great hazard, the thing which must make or break her. In the first act she had shown that she was a good dancer. In the second she had to prove that she was great.

Afterwards, when the account of that second appearance was written for the newspapers, it was called the Triumph of La Phalene.

The slow, haunting music, the half-lights, the lyrical movements of the dancer, movements in which there was poetry and music unexpressed by the orchestra, gripped the audience, so that it sat still, strained and silent.

There was a pathos in it which no words could ever have told and no brush have portrayed. All the soul of Elise was in it, her fears and her despair. She stripped her thoughts and her emotions for the multitude to see, and in the stripping she made them understand.

The music drooped and died at last. The dim lights dimmed still further. From twilight the stage became darkened. The dancer seemed to melt into nebulous space at the back of the stage, her hands out-flung appealingly.

The curtain dropped.

It came like a clap of thunder on the stillness of a summer's night—applause, appalling in its volume, rolling to the stars above the theater, crashing on the ears of Elise, as the lights on the stage leapt up and the curtain lifted to disclose her.

She came forward, trembling, bowing, smiling, hardly aware of herself. Brunel was beside her, holding her hand and bowing towards her. Bouquets were being handed up, and she gathered them, dropped them, and gathered them again.

She heard Brunel speaking—a few well-chosen sentences, with thanks as their dominant note, and an excuse for her inability to respond to their requests for a speech. Yet still they demanded it, and at last she stepped to the edge of the stage. Silence came down on the place.

She stammered something, words which seemed to her incoherent.

"Thank you," she said at last. "Thank you."

The curtain dropped again while their applause rang out afresh, and behind it Brunel turned to her, his eyes alight, his cheeks unwontedly flushed.

"It is triumph!" he said. "It is triumph!"

CHAPTER XXII.

LOLETTE lounged in bed, lounged on silk, black silk, with a vivid, Oriental kimono about her shoulders. At the bedside was a little ebony table—for ebony was Lolette's favorite wood, a wood made by the gods, it seemed, to set off her flaming beauty—and on the table were the articles of petit déjeuner, the exquisite silver coffee utensils, the fragile cup, the rolls. From the corner of her twisted mouth depended a slender black cigarette holder, and the smoke of a Russian cigarette wreathed up about her brushed-out hair.

She tossed aside the seventh newspaper she had scanned that morning. They lay on the floor at the foot of the bed, all around her, crumpled, some of them torn viciously, all defaced by her slim white hands and her rage.

For each and every one of them blazed forth the triumph of La Phalene. It was stupendous and it was incredible. In a night this simpering Puritan had leaped to the stars. More than one of the journals described her as the greatest dancer in the world. All of them voiced her praises in no uncertain way.

Lolette sat very still when the last of the papers was tossed in a ball to the floor, sat with her hands clasped about her knees under the silkiness of the bed clothes, and stared through the wreath of smoke at the silver and gray tapestry of the wall.

Like all her kind, she was vain to the degree of folly. It had been outside the pale of her calculations that ever there could exist her equal as a dancer—to say nothing of her superior. She was Lolette—the premiere danseuse. It filled the world for her and blinded her sight to every other possibility. There had been but one Lolette. There could never be another.

And yet—there was La Phalene, come like the sun over the edge of the unknown, dimming the lustre of the moon, yet high in the heavens, but like to die as the new light spread across the world.

Lolette watched the overlong ash from her cigarette drop onto the silken coverlet with eyes which did not consciously see the happening. All this was such a shock that she felt stunned and helpless. For she herself had created this creature which was likely to destroy her; she herself had set La Phalene's feet on the steep pathway to fame.

Truly Parisian, she could appreciate the irony of this to the full. She had wrought for this girl's undoing, and, instead she had handed her success beyond her wildest dreams. Where she had planned for the chorus and shame, she had endowed Elise with wealth and fame. What mattered it now if Brunel marked his will? What mattered it how Elise lived? For the armors of a star were, as Lolette knew from experience, like the armors of a great king in the days when kings were really kings—above all criticism.

HER maid came in. Monsieur le Comte de Mordac had called and wondered if madame would receive him. Lolette ordered him to be shown up, and he came into the room, dressed with a scrupulous care which defeated its object, very smooth and suave, with a little sly smile lurking about his lips.

He kissed the hand Lolette held out to him, and seated himself on a chair by the bedside.

"Well—Cherie," glancing round, "you have been studying the news, I perceive."

Lolette nodded. Her wildly beautiful face was beautiful no longer, but appeared to Mordac like a white, contorted mask expressing a nameless evil which almost frightened him, despite his poise.

"Curse them!" she said. "Brunel! All. Cochons!"

Mordac shrugged his shoulders. "You are unreasonably annoyed. One must not grumble when one's schemes go slightly awry."

"Schemes!" she flared at him. "Are you laughing at me? By the good —" Her hand shot out towards the coffee pot.

Mordac put his forearm before his face. "Cherie! Cherie! I have not created La Phalene. I have but come to condole, and to talk to the woman who is still the most beautiful in all Paris. It is not seemly to throw coffee pots at one's friends."

Lolette sank back against the pillow. "I shall finish with that Brunel," she said. "You hear? I shall appear no more at the Internationale. I shall finish. He as betrayed me—utterly."

"That is foolish, Cherie. Why cease to take Brunel's money? Why cut off that adorable nose to spite the face of the little dresser?"

"Dresser!" The word re-aroused Lolette. "Dieu de Dieu! To think! To contemplate it!" She evinced signs of returning uncontrolled rage. "That slut whom I lifted from the gutters, who, but for me, would have been on the outer boulevards, should presume—dare—!" She choked with anger, glaring, and Mordac prepared to dodge the coffee pot, or, at least, to see it flung at the great oval mirror above the dressing table.

She cooled. "She is no good," she said. "She is no good. I know Brunel, and I know all those pigs who write in the newspapers. It is just publicity, a boom. Brunel wants his money back. He thinks to get it. He is building on sand. She is no good. It is impossible that she can be all they say. Impossible!"

Mordac listened in silence. This, he reflected, was the sincerest form of flattery. That Lolette should attempt to belittle Elise's performance, that she should hate Elise and the man who made her, showed fear, and fear like this was praise indeed. Even the newspapers had failed to pay such a tribute to La Phalene as Lolette was, at that moment, paying.

"Do you think she is any good?" Lolette flung the question at Mordac after an interval of silence, and, for once, he was unprepared.

"I have not seen her," he said, not realizing that he should have given a direct negative.

The yellow eyes dulled, with their heavy lids drooped over them so that they showed to him like narrowed pools of suspicious light.

"So! Listen, mon ami. In the past, when that—that—when she was my dresser, you found many smiles for her. I forgave them, I ignored them because I thought you would not stoop so low. But now—she is La Phalene. You understand? It is different."

She paused, changed wonderfully, her vicious face transfigured by something beautiful which flowered somewhere in her dark soul.

"You know, Cherie, I love you. That there are many men about me but of them all you are my man, the one man I would follow, always. So—the little dresser is dead. You need never know La Phalene."

"Of course not," said Mordac, and tried to speak with a great sincerity.

But in the ears of this strange woman who loved him his words rang false, so false that they struck her as a lance point might have struck her.

The beauty died from her face so that it was haglike, with twisted crimson lips, all snarling.

"I know!" she panted fiercely. "You remember all the time that I came from the Butte. You say to yourself this is but an incident. This woman is nothing. Yet, there is something else for you to remember—my darling. Up in the Butte we kill—we kill for hate, but we also passport to "Mrs. Heywood Broun alias Ruth Hale." You can imagine how Ruth answered that proposition. In fact, the Lucy Stone league was her answer. Now wouldn't you think Washington would be good after that?

WELL, to get back to Amy Lowell. She said she refused to debate or to be debated with. If she spoke at all she must be the last speaker. She would not refer to anything that anybody had said and it must be understood that nobody must answer or contradict or debate about anything she might say. Her word was to be final—absolutely final. Like a motion to adjourn, her speech was undebatable.

Ruth is a fiery little thing and she doubtless had to strengthen her character by keeping sweet. After all, somebody had to speak, and Amy is a drawing card. So Ruth very graciously called the debate off and let Amy have her accustomed freedom. Of course that made it all very embarrassing when Amy said things that would have made Lucy Stone turn over in her grave.

Having listened in more or less restivity, I imagine, while several people spoke, Amy opened her undebatable remarks by saying that she had not expected when she accepted the invitation that she was to speak to "a group of ego-maniacs" such as she found there. Considering the pre-banquet promises not to talk back, this observation was received in what might be termed a riotous silence. But this silence was broken by a voice from somewhere saying sweetly—yes, it was a feminine voice—"I should think she'd feel perfectly at home!" The third and not the second person was used, so, technically, it really wasn't exactly talking back to Amy.

But Amy went on to the bitter end of her speech, using the same freedom of words and the same freedom of sentiment that is so characteristic of her verse. Of course Amy is just about the freest person there is. She just lets her foot slip when she speaks and she just doesn't care particularly what she says. She didn't hesitate to tell the Lucy Stoners, even if she was their guest of honor and all that, that she thought the whole thing was much ado about nothing. She saw no sense in it at all, and, as a parting shot, she added that most of the women she knew anything about were far more concerned about changing their names than they were in keeping them.

Amy now marches in history as the most entertaining speaker the Lucy Stone league ever had with the exception of Will Rogers. For sheer brilliancy of achievement, however, that Will Rogers speech for the annual banquet last year will ring down the corridors of time.

Pretty Mrs. Will Rogers, whose name she got with life, as Ruth so snappily puts it, has been lost in the radiance of the one she married—sat in the audience and enjoyed it all as much as anybody. That little Rogers family is just the brightest, happiest little family one would wish to see. The kiddies have that fascinating tendency to adventure which probably comes down from the paternal side and they have that fresh, peach-like loveliness that they certainly get from their mother.

But that speech. What would Will Rogers find to say to or for or about Lucy Stone league? Everybody wondered. Well, just before he was introduced Mary Vida Clark—whose right to the name she was born with has never been challenged, because it is the only one she has any claim to—read an exhaustive paper on the history of marriage or something like that. It was a learned thing, all cluttered up with dates and facts and impressive statements. She is a charter member of the league. She said she had sent this paper to the Century and to Harper's and that they had returned it. The way she said it made the audience sharply conscious of the stupidity of editors in general and of those two in particular.

WILL ROGERS chewed his gum reflectively for a moment. Then he took from his pocket a paper upon which he had copied the biography of Lucy Stone from an encyclopedia. "I sent this to Snappy Stories," he began, "but they sent it back. They said it was too high-browed for them."

Then he took that biography, sentence by sentence and made a perfectly ripping joke about each one, always playing in the key of the Lucy Stone league.

"Now it says here that the night before Lucy Stone was born her mother milked eight cows," he said. And then, growing ponderously serious, "Now, that's what's the matter with the world! The women of this day and generation ain't milkin' enough cows."

The Lucy Stoners tried not to laugh, but they couldn't hold out. You see they take it all very seriously, and that speech certainly wasn't serious. It wasn't provocative of debate. It was just foolish. But it was worth every cent of five dollars, even to the regular banqueters, bored and blasé as they usually are.

There is only one way to settle a great national issue in America, the speaker told them, and that is to have a dinner. He said there were only two great outstanding, fundamental issues before the American people. One is, what are the women going to do about this name business, and the other is, should Valentino draw twelve hundred and fifty a week.

"As soon as we get these two basic questions settled," he continued, "we can go home and rest in peace and enjoy ourselves. But so long as the American nation is torn to pieces by the conflict over these great issues we are threatened with revolution, anarchy and war!"

"Now we have had a dinner here tonight and we have the opportunity to settle at least one of these questions. I therefore suggest that the Lucy Stone league take drastic action right here and now. I propose that this league pass a resolution that, from now on, all of the girl babies be named Lucy Stone and serially numbered! And as for the boy babies, ladies, let your slogan be 'A girl or nothing.'"

Foolish, yes, but terribly funny when Will Rogers is saying it. And, what a delicate, delicious little bit of satire! If it had only penetrated the Lucy Stone league ego! Now, really, what couldn't that group of influential, intelligent women do with their time and their energy and their brains, if they only would! But to appreciate really how they feel about it you'd have to hear Ethel Barrymore wail, "Why won't they take us seriously? It's really such a serious question!"

Maybe some day Ruth will be able to play a double header and get Will Rogers and Amy Lowell to speak on the same evening. Five dollars! Why, the tickets would be cheap at twenty-five!

ONE YEAR TO LIVE

moment of her creation she is his, dependent on him, seeing in him her only hope. And then—Voila! She becomes famous overnight, and overnight the situation is reversed. The master becomes the servant, the servant becomes the mistress. The poor entrepreneur finds himself kneeling at the feet of her whom he has made, begging anxiously that she shall turn deaf ears to the gigantic offers of his rivals, and shall renew her contract with him—on whatever terms she cares to name. It is, in effect, like putting a blank check into the hands of a person whose responsibility is an unknown quantity. Hei?n?"

He watched her slyly while he spoke, and saw her face change. At first she looked a little puzzled, bewildered; then amazed. He realized that his words had sunk in, and that the first little buds of complete understanding were beginning to open out into blossom.

At that moment the door opened and Brunel walked into the room.

He and Mordac had always been friends. Their mutual possession of Lolette had not interfered with this friendship in the slightest, and Elise had considered them, ever since she had known them, as allies whom nothing could separate.

Yet, as they stared at each other in her dressing room, Mordac smiling and easy, Brunel stiffened, with a little scowl knitting his brows, as though he were some great clumsy dog, brining at the neck with rage, she knew that a rift had opened in the closeness of their friendship, a rift which time would widen until it became an abyss.

Brunel nodded to Mordac and turned to Elise.

"I understand, mademoiselle, that I had given instructions nobody was to be admitted to your room, yet."

"I know, monsieur." Elise was remembering Mordac's words. "But I decided to see monsieur le comte. I have met him before."

Again she felt thrilled. These two men were almost quarreling because of her. She was feeling the surge of power, that power Lolette wielded, and which she might wield herself before all the tale was told.

Brunel's mouth tightened. Then he smiled. "As you will. Only—you must not allow visitors to upset you. I came to ask if you were ready for supper."

"In ten minutes, monsieur."

Brunel went out.

Mordac followed him within a few minutes, and he was smiling as he left the theater. The race was not yet run. Brunel had not yet won. And this silly girl was becoming like all her kind, overweeningly in vain, full of confidence in her ability to twist men to her will, blind to the dangers of the path she trod.

"Show a woman a fire, and she must play with it," thought Mordac. (Continued in Tomorrow's Constitution.)

to accomplish her heroic salvation of Bethulia without the assistance of her faithful maid?

Does not this nameless servant, who accompanied her mistress to the enemy's camp and carried away the head of the warrior chief, deserve to be ranked with Judith among the greatest heroines of those times?

In the recent English poll neither Rachel, the lovely, nor Leah, the unloved wife of Jacob, attained a place among the ten most appealing heroines, and for this honor Leah had far more supporters than Rachel.

This is in accord with the opinion of many modern students of the Old Testament who think that Leah, ill favored in appearance as she was, had a great many more admirable qualities than the more comely Rachel.

The story of these two wives and the husband they shared is one of the most dramatic to be found in the pages of the Bible and is probably the first recorded instance of the now familiar "love triangle."

The story of the Magdalene is another in which has always been found the strong "human interest" appeal, that of the woman who for the sake of a great but misplaced love stepped aside from the narrow way.

But there are many who feel that the appeal of this story lies more in its lesson of tolerance as taught by the Master than in the character of the beautiful sinner.

Undoubtedly the Magdalene's story has been a source of inspiration of hope and of new life to many another such as herself through the generations which have heard her story.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 11, 1924.

On the coast of Icefreeze-coldland,
Where the polar bear
cubs grow,
Stood a mighty, icy mountain,
In the middle of the snow.
White it was, and very showy—
With its peaks and sides all snowy—
It was covered all the time,
And was therefore hard to climb.

Once a large and fearful
Groobus,
Who was feeling rather blue,
Tried to climb this very mountain,
Hoping for a cheerful view.
With his paddy-paws all covered With thick boots he soon discovered
That he couldn't help but slide,
And he slid on—right inside!

It was dark inside the mountain,
But the Groobus wasn't scared;
Nights were six months long where he lived,
And he very seldom cared.
But he heard a bubbling fountain,
As he stood within the mountain,
And of course he wished to know
And to see what bubbled so.

Said he: "Did I put my flashlight
In the pocket of this coat?
I do, when I am traveling
To places so remote."
So he felt down in his pocket
And he touched the flashlight's socket;
Then he pressed the button.
click!
And the darkness ran off quick!

Gleaming pink and dazzling yellow Ran before his eyes in streaks;
Brown and white and green hung sparkling Round his loud, delighted shrieks.
"I believe, yes—it's ice-cream!"
Came his happy, gurgling scream,
"And the bubbling in this mountain
Is a giant soda fountain!"

"Um-yum!" cried the happy
Groobus,
Who was now no longer
blue,
But was pink with purple
splashes—
Somewhat of a brighter hue.
Swiftly he dashed forward madly,
Dived into the fountain gladly,
"Zum!" he smacked his lips,
"it's good!"
And drank faster than he should.

Now his mouth was large and spacious,
And because he drank so fast
It was not to be expected
That the precious stuff would last.
"But there's ice-cream all around,"
He observed, and with a bound,
He plunged in and ate and ate
At a most tremendous rate!

When the inside of the mountain
Was all empty, blank and bare,
Greedy Groobus looked and giggled,
Not the least bit did he care.
But your ice-cream you must buy,
And this is the reason why:
Now the ice-cream mine is bare,
Since the Groobus happened there.

EDDIE COLLINS

Answers Boys' Baseball Questions

What Is the Best Play You Ever Saw?

By Eddie Collins (Written Exclusively for This Page.)

I have always found this one of the most difficult questions to answer. Having participated in twenty-three hundred or more American League games, numerous world series and countless other exhibition games, it is pretty hard to pick out one particular play as being the best. The stage of the game, the closeness of the score, the situation under which the play is performed, have a lot to do with the determination of the best play. As far as actual performance is concerned, I saw Tris Speaker make a catch of a fly ball in Cleveland one day in a league game, when he actually ran up the side of the concrete wall that surrounds the out-field, that I don't see how it could have been beaten.

When Eddie Collins is at bat he wears chewing gum on his cap button. You can't see it, but it's there just the same. It's always there. It's there when the first ball goes over the plate. The second ball finds it still there. But before the third comes, Eddie takes the wad off his cap button and begins to chew. On strike three he knocks the ball for a two bagger.

baseball season, coming out of the woods greatly refreshed and rested after a long campaign. I guess football gets most of my attention—not as participant any more, although at the time I was in college I actually enjoyed playing that game more than baseball.

When not otherwise engaged I play quite a bit of golf. I don't know of any game that affords so much opportunity for sociability and good fellowship or one that I enjoy more. After Christmas, when most of the outdoor sports are over, I manage to engage in some light exercise, the nature of which I will discuss under another heading; but, generally speaking, I do not do much active work the first two months of the year.

But the play that stands out so much more than any other wonderful play which I have seen is a double play that Barry and McInnis engineered when they were with the Athletics in the world series against the Braves in 1914. The manner of accomplishment, a seemingly impossible stop, force out and throw, that took less time than its telling, and an equally remarkable catch of the throw on Stuffy's part, while stretched out at full length on his side—bare hand side, too—with a world series setting and everything taken into consideration, I think I would term this as the best that I can recall.

What Do You Do in the Winter Time?

In replying to this query, I am assuming winter time means the period extending from the close of the baseball season to the start for spring training. Contrary to a great many of the ball players, I am in no way occupied in the off season. It has been my privilege for the last two falls to go into the Maine woods on an extended hunting trip of about three weeks, immediately following the close of the

MOTHER'S DAY

Today is the second Sunday in May and is therefore Mother's Day. It has been set aside as the day on which to honor the Best Mother who ever lived—Your Mother. Its object is to recall the memories of the mothers who have gone and through loving words and loving care to brighten the lives of the mothers who remain.

The white carnation is the Mother's Day flower. Its whiteness stands for purity; its form, beauty and fragrance for love; its wide field of growth, charity; its lasting qualities, faithfulness—all a true mother's virtues.

Since the founding of Mother's Day by Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia, the custom of its celebration has spread over the continent. You may read below some of the Mother's Day sentiments as they have been expressed by the poets:

WHO'LL wear a rose for Mother's Day,

A half open rose and white Plucked in the morning while the dew

That gathered over night To kiss its petals like a gem In its pure heart appears, As pure and sweet as a mother love, As rare as mother's tears?

—Judd Mortimer Lewis

WE BREATHED it first with lispings tongue, When cradled in her arms we lay; Fond memories 'round that name are hung,

That will not, cannot pass away. We breathed it then, we breathe it still, More dear than sister, friend or brother,

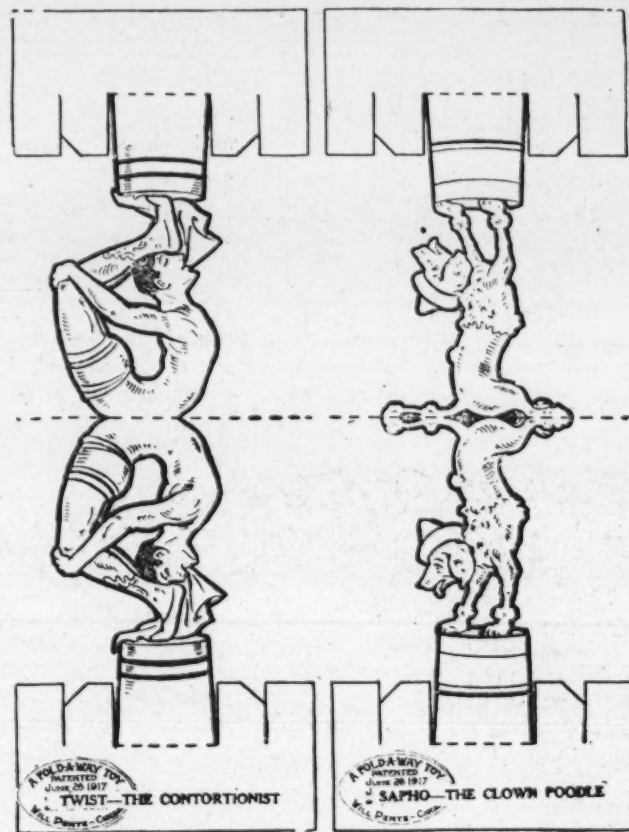

The gentle power, the magic thrill, Awakened at the name of Mother.

TRIPS WITH BIRDS

THE WARBLER FAMILY

The robin and the bluebird have been settled in their nests a month or more and are busy at rearing young ones before the many members of the large warbler family make their appearance. But about this time in May, you will begin to see them among the wild cherry and lilac bushes, late arrivals from the islands of the Caribbean, the Gulf of Mexico and the heart of South America where they winter.

The wood warblers and all their various family connections are in general tiny birds which are seldom seen on the ground, choosing rather to swing in treetops or hide themselves in the depths of shrubbery. They are called soft-billed birds, as they possess very slender, delicate beaks adapted to pecking on silky cocoons or fresh beetles rather than pecking about in the soil for their dinners. The warbler's frail bill would be easily smashed if used in the way the sparrow, for instance, uses his.

Many of the warblers have yellow and black combinations of coloring, but there are distinct members with plumage of fanciful variety and manifold hues. The high range of their song is remarkable, being above the highest tones of the keys on a piano. Perhaps it is because they are small and are therefore at the mercy of larger birds that might attack them that they travel the thousands of miles between their winter and summer homes during the night instead of in daylight. Often they perish on the way, flying into electric light wires or beating their wings against lighthouses.

Warblers seem to know little fear of humans, for the bird student may even approach a nest and stroke the mother bird's back during brooding time.

Five thousand miles is no unusual trip for the Blackburnian warbler to take from his tropical home in Peru, where he winters, to points far north as Hudson's Bay for summer nesting. His nest is sometimes built eighty feet above the ground in the branches of a tall spruce or hemlock. There he flutters from one limb to another, a nervous, restless little fellow with a high, wiry, penetrating song, that grows even more shrill at the end.

The hooded warbler is one of the most attractive members of the family, a gentle, leisurely bird. He flies from Panama, his wintering spot, to haunts as far north as Michigan, making only about thirty-three miles a day, a distance which he can fly in less than an hour.

EXTRA! SNOPPYQUOPS GIVE A BIG PARTY FOR MURRAY

This is the first Snoppyquop that was ever drawn. It is published here today in celebration of the birthday of Feg Murray, papa of all the Snoppyquops. It hung on the side wall of the banquet chamber where the Snoppyquops gave a big shindig today beginning with soup and ending with salted peanuts and speeches. After presenting Mr. Murray with a stem-winding toothbrush, a gift from all the Snoppyquops, Will Barrow, the toastmaster, asked Mr. Murray how old he is today. "Not very," said Mr. Murray. He then made an elaborate "thank you" speech after which he gave an exclamation of how he came to invent Snoppyquops. Feg drew Snoppyquops in a French class in college when he was supposed to be listening to the professor. Now he gets money for them. Pretty soft, isn't it?

In reply to the letter from the young lady of ten summers (and seventeen winters) in Quebec who wrote asking Feg if he got his ideas for Snoppyquops by looking in the mirror, the answer is "No."

On the other side of the picture is a report of the speech Feg made, telling how the Snoppyquops came to be. Be sure to read it.

THE FIRST SNOPPYQUOP THAT WAS EVER MADE

Text of Mr. Murray's Address

In answer to numerous requests from readers I took typewriter in hand to write this speech telling the anxiously waiting world how Snoppyquops happened to be. One little jumping bean in Tiajuana, Mexico, wanted to know if I ate too much mince pie before going to bed and then dreamed them. Well, the truth is that in 1915 I was wasting my time in a French class at Stanford university trying to sleep and look wise all at once. We were translating "Francois le Champi," whatever that means, and whenever we'd come to a page with very little French and lots of white paper on it, I would draw a picture. Then when I'd get home at night my nine-year-old sister, Lydia (who is now a bobbed-haired freshman at Stanford), would be very much interested in the drawings.

"Who's this?" she'd ask, "what's this one's name?" So I'd have to make up a foolish title for each picture. They were "Snoppyquops," and "Gigglegoops" and "Whifflepoofs," but "Snoppyquop" was the name she liked the best, so she'd always say, "Please draw me a Snoppyquop!" I saved the very first one, and here it is hanging in the Snoppyquop art gallery.

AN ATTRACTIVE SUMMER HAT THAT ANY GIRL CAN MAKE

FASTEN MATERIAL AROUND CROWN FIRST.

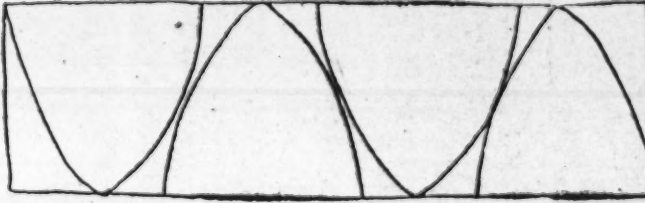

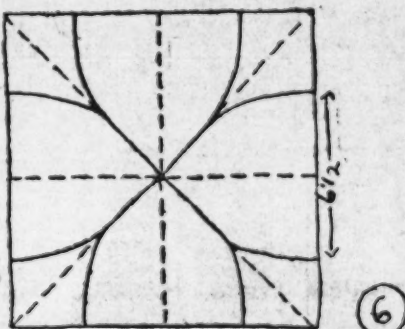

USE DARNING STITCH TO BIND RIBBON ON EDGE OF BRIM.

MAKE A GINGHAM HAT OF THE POPULAR POKE STYLE TO MATCH A SUMMER FROCK. THE MATERIALS MAY BE BOUGHT FOR $1.

SEW CROWN SECTIONS 1/4" FROM EDGE TURN SEAMS INSIDE

SEW CROWN TO BRIM. OVERCAST SEAMS WITH DARNING STITCHES

THE SEAM OF THE CROWN AND BRIM MUST MEET.

The favorite summer frock should have a hat to match it, especially if there happens to be a yard or less of material left from the dress. The rest of the equipment for making the simple poke hat shown above may be purchased for a few cents. These are the materials to use:

- 1-2 yd. buckram.....$0.20
- 1 1-4 yds. gingham......44
- 2 yds. ribbon (1 in. wide)....30
- 1 skein emb. thread......03

$0.97

There's your hat for a bargain price! And in estimating the cost we've used the most expensive materials rather than the cheapest, so if you are lucky in getting good prices you may perhaps make your hat for seventy-five cents. Gingham is not the only material to use, of course. Cretone is inexpensive and comes in pretty patterns. Linen or pique are particularly nice.

If your material is twenty-seven inches wide, you'll need the full 1 1-4 yards listed. If it is thirty-six inches, 3-4 of a yard will be enough.

Cut your brim from a fifteen-inch circle of buckram. You had better make a paper pattern first to avoid mistakes. Cut a lower and top covering of material for the brim, allowing 1-2 inch on each side to turn under. Cut two pie-shaped pieces from the material as well as from the brim, allowing again a margin.

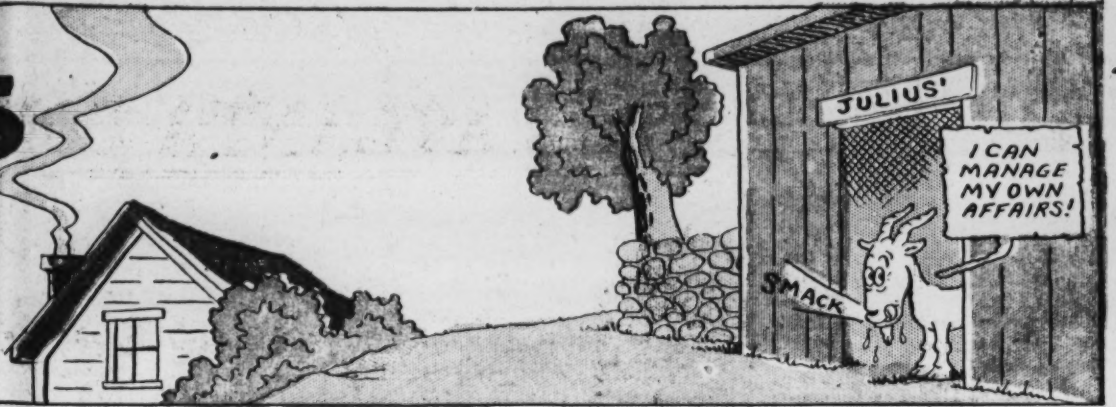

Sew the brim together to make a drooping shape, then slant off the back as the dotted line shows, leaving only an inch at the center back.

Sew a headband of buckram, one inch around the tabs at the crown to make a more secure frame. Then put on the material as in Figure 4. It should be fastened around the crown first, then pulled tight to the edge at the outside. Bind it with your ribbon or cotton bias tape.

Cut the crown from paper, allowing 1-2 inch extra on all edges for seams. Lay the sections on your material as in No. 7. Cut, then sew the sections firmly together and turn in the seams. When you sew the crown to the brim, you may find that the crown is a trifle too large. If so, put a gathering string in it and draw it down to fit the brim size. Place most of the gathers at the back. Darning stitches of black thread sewed over and over make a nice finish for all edges and seams. Use the remainder of your ribbon in a bow around the crown, sew in a lining taken from a discarded hat, and you're ready to parade in your handiwork!

"BLESSINGS ON THEE, LITTLE MAN"
Where will one find a more perfect picturization of James Whitcomb Riley's "Barefoot Boy," with all outdoors his dominion?

"FOR MY MOTHER—"
Simple legend of a hundred million messages of undying love that will go forth today to American mothers, not as the mothers of men, but each one the best friend a fellow ever had. Not as remembrances—these messages—but as wholly inadequate expressions of abiding affection in the years past and a pledge that this affection will become deeper and richer in the years to come.

STYLES OF A GOLF GALLERY DO MOVE

This photograph taken 25 years ago proves that fashions move in cycles. The gallery, snapped on Ardsley on the Hudson course, wore the very latest in style. The men's coats are short, one-button affairs, coming in fast this year, and the wide, bell-bottom trousers are also very popular today. Since golf, a Scotch game, we see two women wearing scotch plaid skirts.

Quiet Dignity and Exquisite Beauty are the outstanding marks of this gem-like cameo brooch. The pure Grecian lines of the facial features combined with the delicate sensitive frame work constitute a pinnacle of the goldsmith's art, with its long centuries of continuous improvement.
Expert medallists are agreed that such work marks the crowning period of an art that has been reaching upward ever since the dim days of antiquity, the days of Pericles and Aristides. Perfumed with reminiscence of the Directoire and Empire styles, such brooches bring back memories of Josephine and Hortense and give visible evidence of a renaissance in the art of manufacturing medallions and brooches.
No gift could be appreciated more as a Mother's Day remembrance than a beautiful cameo.

A teacher to her pupils

"I am glad you ask me about food. What you feed your body is more important than what you feed your mind; for a healthy, robust body generally means a good, sound brain.

"Your body is built out of the food you eat.
Some foods (like potatoes and white flour bread) are almost entirely carbohydrates and hence are only fat-making foods. Other foods (like meat) are protein, and only make muscular tissue. A perfect food is a food which has just enough of all these elements to build a healthy, robust body. Whole wheat is such a food.

"I am glad you like Shredded Wheat because it is made of the whole wheat grain and has in it every element you need. Being thoroughly cooked it is easily digested, and that means a clear brain in a strong body."

We will give $1500 in gold for best ways of
